Edited by JOHN NORTON MOORE

THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

This compilation is a fundamental research tool for students of the contemporary Middle East. It is a successor to John Norton Moore's widely acclaimed three-volume compilation of readings and documents on international law and the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Major events such as the Sadat-Begin rapprochement, the Camp David accords, the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, the Israeli air strike on Iraq's Osirak reactor, and the 1982 Israeli invasion of Lebanon, as well as the intensification of terrorism in the Middle East, are covered in this new work.

Free Speech and National Security

by Shimon Shetreet, The Hebrew University of Jerusalem

International Studies in Human Rights Series

1991 260 pp. ISBN 0-7923-1030-6 $86.00

Free speech is one of the vital and indispensable foundations of a democratic government. However, it is not an absolute right, and there are other vital social interests qualifying it. Examples include such issues as, the interest of protecting the basic framework of society and the existence of the State and its institutions against its enemies from within and from without, and the maintenance of public peace and public order.

This volume presents an analysis of the values of free speech and national security in an international and comparative perspective. The book examines the role of the media and the limits on free expression through censorship and other government controls exercised on the grounds of national security. Particular emphasis is placed on the media coverage of wars and military operations, a topic which became especially pertinent in the Gulf War, as well as in other cases such as the Falklands War, the Israeli context, and the Grenada Operation by United States Forces.

Yearbook of International Environmental Law

Volume 1, 1990

editor-in-chief: Günther Handl, Wayne State University

1991 640 pp. ISBN 1-85333-576-2 $195.00

This yearbook provides an authoritative and comprehensive review of internationally significant legal developments, in a format that makes information easily accessible. In a unique "Year in Review" section, short reports written by recognized international experts summarize year-by-year trends in discreet subject areas that represent the whole spectrum of international environmental legal issues.

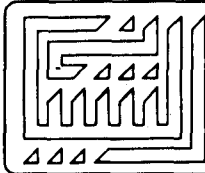

Additionally, internationally significant legal developments in key countries or regions and international governmental as well as non-governmental organizations will be reviewed. A very substantial documents section and an international legal bibliography organized by subject matter enhance the value of the Yearbook as a primary source for research and general reference.

The Yearbook of the Institute of International Law (Annuaire de l'Institut de Droit international)

The latest volume of the Yearbook (64-I, 1991), which has just been published, contains the preparatory work for the next session of the Institute, which will be held in September 1991 in Basel (Switzerland).

This preparatory work was undertaken by specialized Commissions and includes the reports of the rapporteurs and comments by Commission members on the following major issues (in English or French, as the case may be):

- “The autonomy of the parties in international contracts between private persons or entities” (Rapporteur: Professor Erik Jayme).
- “Contemporary problems concerning the jurisdictional immunity of States” (Rapporteur: Professor Ian Brownlie). The question was also discussed at the previous session (Santiago de Compostela, 1989) and the Rapporteur has submitted a revised resolution.
- “The international sale of works of art from the angle of the protection of the cultural heritage” (Rapporteur: Professor Antonio Ferrer-Correia).
- “Non-appearance before the International Court of Justice” (Rapporteur: Professor Gaetano Arangio-Ruiz).

The discussions, conclusions and resolutions on these issues will be published in the following volume (64-II), after the conclusion of the Basel session.

The Institute of International Law brings together 132 members and associate members selected from the world's most eminent specialists of public and private international law. The conclusions that have emerged from its meetings every 2 years have had a notable impact on the development and codification of international law.

The 1980–89 Cumulative Index for International Legal Materials is now available to libraries, institutions and individual subscribers.

The Index is an indispensable tool for research in the fields of contemporary international law and international relations, and provides lawyers, researchers, government officials and scholars with quick and easy access to the wealth of primary documents reproduced in I.L.M. during this decade. These documents include treaties, national legislation, judicial and arbitral decisions, resolutions of international organizations, and a variety of other reports and documents of great importance to the international community.

The Index also features a list of international conferences, and a separate Table of Cases which covers the national court and international tribunal decisions. A new Table of Treaties gives detailed information on the status of all treaties and agreements appearing in I.L.M. during the decade—information not often available.

Cumulative Indexes covering 1962–69 and 1970–79 are also available. Together, all three Indexes cover developments in international law and international relations for nearly 30 years. Can you afford not to have these time-saving resources at your fingertips?

For information on prices and on the special discount for orders of all three Indexes, please see the form below.
