
Nishi Amane and Modern Japanese Thought

Thomas R. H. Havens

Nishi Amane (1829-1897), one of the first Japanese to assert the supremacy of Western culture, introduced and adapted European utilitarianism and positivism to his country's intellectual world. This book describes his life and influence as teacher, writer, and government administrator at one of the most critical times in Japan's history. $8.50

Agriculture and Economic Growth: Japan's Experience

Edited by Kazushi Ohkawa, Bruce F. Johnston, and Hiromitsu Kaneda

The papers in this volume make a comprehensive reappraisal of Japan's agricultural development and its relevance to economic growth over the last 100 years. They emphasize long term studies. Intensive consideration is also given to the Meiji Era. Copublished with the University of Tokyo Press $12.50

Social Change and the Individual Japan Before and After Defeat in World War II

Kazuko Tsurumi

Introduction by Silvan Tomkins

Discussing the prewar Japanese Army, the International War Tribunal, urban and agrarian families, and student movements, a distinguished Japanese scholar counterbalances the current preoccupation among sociologists with childhood socialization by exploring changes in values and attitudes among adults in Japan before and after World War II. ". . . a major contribution to our understanding of Japanese society." Ezra F. Vogel, Harvard University $15.00

Geneva 1954 The Settlement of the Indochinese War

Robert Randle

“. . . by far the most detailed and comprehensive analysis of Geneva 1954 to date.” (John Norton Moore). Dr. Randle assesses the Eisenhower-Dulles policies in the critical months leading up to the conference, the effects of the antipathy between Foster Dulles and Anthony Eden, Mendès-France’s policies in Indochina and Europe, and the day-by-day bargaining over political issues at Geneva. $17.50

Vietnam and China, 1938-1954

King C. Chen

Why and how did the United States get involved in Vietnam? This is one of the central questions in Professor Chen’s book, which describes Ho Chi Minh’s rise to leadership of the Vietnamese Communist Party and his relations with the Nationalists and then the Communists in China. He explores in detail the Sino-Vietnamese relationship after World War II. $12.50

The Vietnam War and International Law Volume 2

Edited by Richard A. Falk

This second volume of essays and documents has been made necessary by the continuing debate on the central issue of whether American involvement in the Vietnam War is legal. The scope of concerns has been widened to encompass problems bearing on the application of the laws of war, the role of the United Nations, and the domestic legal challenges based on the Constitution and the Nuremberg Judgment. Sponsored by the American Society of International Law

Land and Social Change in East NepalA Study of Hindu-Tribal Relations

Lionel Caplan

In this examination of relations between an indigenous tribal people in East Nepal and the dominant Hindus in their midst, Mr. Caplan explores the deep division that separates the two groups because of their competition for land. Concerned, in the widest sense, with the reaction of one community to domination by another, he discusses the link between culture and politics in a community subordinated to an alien group and threatened with what it regards as economic disaster and cultural annihilation. In order to preserve their ancestral lands under a traditional tenure system, the tribesmen stress their common identity and cultural distinctness from the rest of Nepalese society.

The Political Economy of Change

Warren F. Ilchman and Norman Thomas Uphoff

In this attempt to provide a social science superior to present political science and more relevant than economics for the task of analyzing public policy, especially in relation to developing countries, the authors explore the functions and characteristics of political resources, political exchange, and political productivity. This perspective permits them to compare the efficiency of various public policies and to estimate their costs. For the social scientist in search of a scheme that can deal with any regime, this volume should prove stimulating and refreshing.

Cumulative Bibliography of ASIAN STUDIES, 1941-1965

Association for Asian Studies, Inc.

The Bibliography of Asian Studies and its predecessors, under a succession of editors, have provided bibliographical coverage of the field of Asian Studies to a growing number of Asian specialists for almost thirty years. Present aims are to present as complete a listing as possible of significant books and articles in European languages concerning the countries of the Far East, Southeast Asia and South Asia in the general fields of philosophy, religion, history, economics, social science, education, language and literature, and political science.

To achieve this aim, the editors regularly scan the Library of Congress Printed Catalogs and National Union Catalogs, the British, French, German and other national bibliographies, several American and European commercially published bibliographies, as well as the listings and notices appearing in numerous learned journals. In addition, some 700 periodicals devoted to Asian studies, and over 1500 other periodicals of a more general nature are systematically scanned for articles to be listed in the Bibliography.

Chao-Lun

*THE TREATISES OF SENG-CHAO:
A TRANSLATION WITH INTRODUCTION, NOTES, AND APPENDICES; SECOND REVISED EDITION*

Translated by WALTER LIEBENTHAL. Toward the end of the 4th century Mahāyāna Buddhism was well-established in China largely through the efforts of Kumārajīva, a Buddhist monk, and Seng-chao, a mystic and student of Taoist philosophy. The Chao-lun marks a turning point in Chinese thought when Buddhism, a foreign philosophy, was accepted to form, with Taoism and Confucianism, the three religions of China. Included in this translation are introduction, notes, bibliography and references. $9.10

The Administrative History of India, 1834-1947

By B. B. MISRA. This work presents in broad perspective the growth in India of modern political and administrative institutions. It is based on a study of primary sources, including the private papers of the Viceroys and Secretaries of State for India. The period covered begins in 1834, when the East India Company's trading rights were abolished, and ends in 1947, when India achieved independence. $19.00

The Angami Nagas

SECOND EDITION

By J. H. HUTTON, Cambridge University. At one time the Angamis were one of the most culturally advanced of all the Naga tribes. This was due in part to their well developed system of hillside irrigation which assured them of having an abundant supply of rice. The Angamis fought British administration more fiercely and for a more prolonged time than did any other Naga tribe. Hutton's account, first published in 1921, includes descriptions of the tribe's domestic life and agriculture, its subdivisions, its laws, customs, religious observances, folklore, legends, and language.

The Communist Collapse in Indonesia

by Arnold C.
Brackman

A noted authority on Southeast Asia presents the first analysis in depth of the collapse of the Indonesian Communist movement in 1965, placing it in the context of world affairs. "The main thesis of this remarkable book is that if the United States had not made a deep military commitment to South Vietnam in 1965, Indonesia and possibly the rest of Southeast Asia would now be Communist. . . . One may disagree with Arnold Brackman's view. But one must respect the exhaustive research and meticulous documentation that support his findings." — PAUL GRIMES, Philadelphia Bulletin. $6.95

ASIAN SURVEY

Leading American monthly devoted to current developments in Asia. Coverage of political, economic and social trends in such societies as Communist China, India, Japan, Pakistan, Korea, Indonesia, Thailand and Burma.

Recent articles have analysed such topics as Civil-Military relations in North Vietnam, Japan-China trade, India's third Communist Party, politicization and political development in rural Malaysia, the chemical war in Vietnam, peasant movements and political participation in Rajasthan, and Australia and the West New Guinea problem.

Special coverage is provided at intervals, such as the symposium on the Report of the Indian Education Commission (October 1969). In addition, as a regular feature two structured issues are published in January and February surveying trends for the previous years in some twenty Asian countries.

Rates: $10 per year for 12 issues ($11 for overseas subscribers). Special student rate: $5 per year ($6 overseas). ASIAN SURVEY, University of California, 2234 Piedmont Avenue, Berkeley, California 94720.

THE UNITED STATES AND CHINA The Next Decade

Edited by A. DOAK BARNETT and EDWIN O. REISCHAUER
With the assistance of Lois Dougan Tretiak

Two leading experts on Asian affairs bring together discussions on every aspect of relations between the United States and the Chinese People's Republic. The many distinguished contributors to this volume (which is based on a conference sponsored by the National Committee on United States-China Relations, a non-partisan organization) show a lively diversity of opinion on some of the most urgent questions of our time. Published for the National Committee on United States-China Relations. 270 pp., 2 maps, glossary, 5 appendixes.

Cloth, $7.50. Paper, P-274/$2.95.

CHINA'S CULTURAL LEGACY AND COMMUNISM

Edited by RALPH C. CROIZIER

This unusual anthology has been designed to show how the People's Republic has inherited what it describes as China's "cultural legacy." A special feature of the reader is that every chapter combines contributions from major intellectual and art historians and observers in the West with the commentaries of Chinese Communists. In his penetrating introduction and epilogue, Professor Croizier traces the evolution of Chinese Communist cultural policy from the Yen-an period through the current Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution. 327 pp., 16 pp. illus., bibliog.

Cloth, $8.50. Paper, U-686/$3.50.

MAN, STATE, AND SOCIETY IN CONTEMPORARY SOUTHEAST ASIA

Edited by ROBERT O. TILMAN

"This collection of previously published articles by experts taken from various journals is excellent background reading about man and his relations with his political and social environment in Southeast Asia. The authors are concerned with the setting, its historical, cultural, geographical, and political aspects, and tradition, modernization, and social change. . . . This volume will be most useful and is highly recommended to students of Southeast Asia and interested laymen."—Library Journal. 544 pp., maps, charts, bibliog., index.

SECOND EDITION—May 1970!

JAPAN'S MODERN CENTURY

From Perry to 1970

HUGH BORTON

East Asian Institute, Columbia University

Now completely revised, this book presents the story of Japan's transformation from a secluded, semifeudal, agrarian society into a democracy and the world's third largest industrial power. Written by an outstanding American authority on Japanese affairs, the book analyzes and interprets the forces that shaped Japan's history from its opening to the West by Perry in 1853 through the devastating years of World War II and the phenomenal recovery and economic growth that have characterized the decades of the 1950's and 1960's.

Political, economic, social, and international factors are emphasized in proportion to their shifting importance in the various periods. Maps and carefully selected illustrations supplement the text. Also provided are notes, brief chronologies for each major period, an appendix containing important documents, and a detailed annotated bibliography.

Outline of contents—

PART I: The Opening of Japan, 1850-1868

PART II: Formation of a Centralized Monarchy, 1868-1890

PART III: Establishment of the Japanese Empire, 1890-1915

LAND AND PEASANTS IN CENTRAL LUZON

The Socio-Economic Structure of a Philippine Village

by Akira Takahashi

The Central Luzon Plain is the principal agricultural area as well as the focal point of agrarian unrest in the Philippines. Using a small tenant-dominated village as a microcosm for the study of the socio-economic structure of Central Luzon village communities, this work reveals the fundamental problems confronting development of agricultural production and the modernization of rural areas based on the author's observations and participation in both production activities and social life. The study concludes with the period immediately prior to the introduction of "miracle rice" and thus provides a valuable and detailed basis for future comparative studies.

SOCIO-ECONOMIC RESULTS OF LAND REFORM IN TAIWAN

by Martin M. C. Yang

The Republic of China, Taiwan, like several other Asian nations, has in recent years carried out a land reform program of far-reaching significance. Martin M. C. Yang, author of A Chinese Village (Columbia University Press), here presents a thorough analysis of that program. In scope, the study embraces such interdisciplinary fields as sociology, social anthropology, and agricultural economics.

WEST PAKISTAN: RURAL EDUCATION AND DEVELOPMENT

by Abdur Rauf

Guided by the concepts of Islam, machinery for social and political progress in West Pakistan—where nearly eighty per cent of the population is rural—gradually is being developed. This, coupled with an improvement in literacy, may well trigger significant advances in the next generation. Conversely, if normal development is retarded, a potentially disastrous situation could result. Here, written from the viewpoint of a Pakistani scholar, is a much-needed progress report which encompasses the impact of educational, social, political, and health-education programs on the rural population as well as an analysis of these programs in their wider historical perspective.

THE VILLAGE CULTURE IN TRANSITION

A Study of East Pakistan Rural Society

by S. M. Hafeez Zaidi

This study of an Asian rural society explores the dynamics of change and conflict in the Hindu-Muslim communities of East Pakistan as traditional institutions, rituals, rites, and superstitions are challenged by modernization. It provides a penetrating look at the villagers' attitudes—their value orientation, wishes, and aspirations—as they face new ideas and experience the disorganization of social upheaval.
