"If a comparison of Kenya and Tanzania has occurred to others ... it has never been handled as well as in this volume. The book has unity, balance, and coherence seldom found in an edited collection on any subject. As a contribution in political science ... the book deserves the very highest praise. It is clearly one of the best so far." — African Studies Review

The Cambridge History of Africa

Volume 7: c. 1905 - c. 1940

Edited by ANDREW ROBERTS

The publication of this volume represents the completion of The Cambridge History of Africa. By 1905, most of the continent had been subject to European rule; in the 1940s the colonial regimes faced widespread opposition. They confronted not only the criticism of literate Africans but organised protest among wage-earners and farmers, even though anti-colonial nationalism was still embryonic. This volume surveys the period during which the opposition developed.

Political Domination in Africa

Reflections on the Limits of Power

Edited by PATRICK CHABAL

This collection of essays brings together historians and political scientists who have been involved in the process of rethinking African politics. Their approach seeks to integrate the history of Africa (from pre- to post-colonial) with concepts of political theory as they have been applied historically to the analysis of Europe and America.

The Dynamics of Productive Relationships

African Share Contracts in Comparative Perspective

A. F. ROBERTSON

In its analysis of the importance of observing how economic relationships develop over a long period of time, this book examines four African cases (Ghana, Sudan, Lesotho and Senegambia) in the light of long-standing debates about sharecropping with the broader purpose of discovering how the dynamics of productive relationships may be better understood.

Strategies and Norms in a Changing Matrilineal Society

Descent, Succession and Inheritance among the Toka of Zambia

LADISLAV HOLY

The theme of this book is the analysis of the changes that have occurred in the kinship patterns of the Toka of South Zambia as a result of a shift in their form of production. Dr Holy uses a rich, detailed ethnography to confront several theoretical issues as well as to examine the basic methodological problems of anthropological enquiry.

THE JOURNAL OF MODERN AFRICAN STUDIES

The Journal offers a quarterly survey of politics, economics, and related topics in contemporary Africa.

The main emphasis is upon the peoples and policies, the problems and progress of this dynamic and disparate continent; upon the many societies that are evolving rather than the essential characteristics of the old; upon the present, not on the more distant past. The best current work is sought from specialists in different academic disciplines, whose contributions can illuminate and cross-fertilise one another.

The Journal seeks to promote a deeper understanding of what is happening in Africa today. It is intended for both the political scientist and the practical politician, the administrator and the advocate, the economist and the educator, the banker and the business man, the diplomat and the technocrat, the civil servant and the nationalist leader. All have something to contribute to these pages and, it is hoped, much to learn from them.

Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, whether imperialism, pan-Africanism, capitalism, socialism, or nationalism. Such concepts, however, have relevance to the modern African situation, and merit serious discussion, often from several different points of view, in order that controversial issues may be fairly examined.
