SYNTHESE aims at publishing contributions to the study of the foundations and the methodology of science, the analysis of its linguistic aspects and to the study of its psychological and sociological implications.

This programme implies studies as referred to in the following items:

The recent development of logic, semiotics, signification and other theories of signs, especially in their relation to foundation problems.

Contributions to semantics, not only 'theoretical semantics' in the sense of Tarski and Carnap, but also 'empirical semantics' as intended by Arne Naess.

Studies on the verifiability theory of meaning in its present status.

The impact of modern information and communication theory on traditional epistemological problems.

Empirical investigations concerning evaluations in different social and ideological groups.

A Précis of Mathematical Logic

BY J. M. BOCHENSKI

1959, 112 pages, Dfl 13.75 or 27½ s.

This is an English translation by Professor O. Bird of a text which was first published in French in 1949 and which met with considerable success in many European schools.

It is by far shorter than most books of its kind and yet contains a complete elementary course of standard mathematical logic; a great number of theorems (in the symbolisms of Peano-Russell and of Lukasiewicz, the explanation of the basic ideas of deductive method, syntax, etc.

THE MEANING AND PURPOSE OF ART

or

The Making of Life

ARTHUR R. HOWELL
(1881-1956)

Fully illustrated in colour and monochrome. This Important Book on Aesthetic Philosophy was originally published in 1945. The author then made very considerable revisions and additions, and there are additional illustrations. This book has had the honour of being accepted by the London County Council for use in Schools and inclusion in the Teachers' Library, and has recently been acquired for the permanent Collection of The LENIN Library, Moscow.
