Pursuit of Truth

W.V. Quine

In Pursuit of Truth, W.V. Quine gives us his latest word on issues to which he has devoted many years: cognitive meaning, objective reference, and the grounds of knowledge. Starting with sentences, Quine sketches an epistemological setting for the pursuit of truth. He proceeds to show how reification and reference contribute to the elaborate structure that can relate science to its sensory evidence. $17.50 cloth

Schopenhauer and the Wild Years of Philosophy

Rüdiger Safranski

Translated by Ewald Osers
"A most comprehensive and learned biography [that] says everything it is possible to know about Schopenhauer today."

—Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung
$30.00 cloth

Wise Choices, Apt Feelings

A Theory of Normative Judgment
Allan Gibbard

The book examines some of the deepest questions in philosophy: What is involved in judging a belief, action, or feeling to be rational? What place does morality have in the kind of life it makes most sense to lead? Allan Gibbard develops what he calls a "norm-expressivistic analysis" of rationality. What emerges is an interpretation of human normative life, with its quandries and disputes over what is rational and irrational, morally right and morally wrong. $35.00 cloth

Mimesis as Make-Believe

On the Foundations of the Representational Arts
Kendall Walton

Representations—in visual arts and fiction—play an important part in our lives and culture. Walton presents here a theory of the nature of representation, which illuminates its many varieties and goes a long way toward explaining its importance. Walton's theory also provides solutions to thorny philosophical problems concerning the existence of fictitious beings. Throughout, his analysis is illustrated by a rich array of examples drawn from literature, painting, sculpture, theater, and film.

The Dynamics of Rational Deliberation

Brian Skyrms

In this illuminating work, Brian Skyrms constructs a theory of "dynamic deliberation" and uses it to investigate rational decisionmaking in cases of strategic interaction.

"An important book...With its unprecedentedly broad and clear surveys, unified by Skyrms's original contributions, it will be read and discussed by a good many practitioners and students of philosophy (and economics and political theory)."

—Richard Jeffrey,
Princeton University

Sources of the Self

The Making of the Modern Identity
Charles Taylor

"Taylor has taken on the most delicate and exacting of philosophical questions, the question of who we are and how we should live... and he has made this an adventure of self-discovery for his reader. To have accomplished so much is an important philosophical achievement, which will considerably enhance the contribution made by contemporary philosophy to private and public life."

—Martha Nussbaum,
New Republic

$37.50 cloth

Innocence and Experience

Stuart Hampshire

"Stuart Hampshire's new book is an elegant, restrained, and highly persuasive defense of minimalism... One comes away from reading this book a little wiser, and that can't be said of many books in moral or political philosophy or, for that matter, in any other academic field."

—Michael Walzer, New Republic
$20.00 cloth

Intentions, Plans, and Practical Reason

Michael E. Bratman

"Bratman gives an account of intentions that rings true, and shows why a limited being with complex goals in a complex world really must have something like intentions...He makes a major contribution to the theory of bounded rationality in action."

—Allan Gibbard,
$12.95 paper

Political Ethics and Public Office

Dennis F. Thompson

"[Thompson's] arguments distill the best of classical political and moral theory into a form that can be applied to public office in a democratic society...Through simple historical reflection, Thompson debunks the myth that there is some relevant connection between personal morality and public decision-making."

—Deni Elliott,
Journal of Mass Media Ethics
