

WORLDVIEW

CONGRESS AS A WORLD POWER

Thomas M. Franck & Edward Weisband

POLITICAL ZIONISM: A CHRISTIAN PERSPECTIVE

Isaac C. Rottenberg

THE AMERICAN CONSENSUS ON SOUTH AFRICA

James E. Baker, John de St. Jorre,
& J. Daniel O'Flaherty

THE TWO WHITE RACES IN SOUTH AFRICA

David Mesenbring

"I WANT ROTTEN BOURGEOIS DEMOCRACY":
AN INTERVIEW WITH A RUMANIAN DISSIDENT

Paul Goma

MOVEMENT TOWARD DEMOCRACY IN SOUTH KOREA

Edward A. Olsen

PINOCHET'S CHILE

Karen Remmer

SENSE & NONSENSE ABOUT ANTI-CATHOLICISM

Jim Castelli

HUNGER IN CHINA: THE FAILURE OF A SYSTEM?

Miriam London & Ivan D. London

COMING

- ALBERT J. MENENDEZ has for some time been analyzing "the religious factor" in presidential elections. He argues that a hard-nosed approach to data makes it seem inevitable that, for better or worse, religion will again play a big part in determining the outcome of 1980.
- The Dalai Lama has just completed an unprecedented visit in the U.S. One of his aides, KESANG TSETEN, offers a glimpse of the possible futures for Tibet, with or without the Dalai Lama.
- NATO was created as a military instrument in a modern world, but it has to work with perduring cultural and religious conflicts that resist military rationality. GREGORY F. TREVERTON examines the problems posed by Greece and Turkey, two nations that have more on their minds and in their hearts than strategic security.
- Somewhere "over there" are the tens of thousands of children of Asian mothers and U.S. soldiers now long gone. These are the "Amerasians," an unhappy legacy of our military misadventures. EDWARD A. OLSEN asserts that they are in large part an American responsibility and explains what we can and should do about them.

FOUNDED IN 1914 BY ANDREW CARNEGIE