

A Citizen's Guide to the Age of Hype!

"Will take its place alongside Walter Lippman's Public Opinion, Jacques Ellul's The Technological Society, and Marshall McLuhan's Understanding Media." —Neil Postman, author of Amusing Ourselves to Death

"A sweeping, lively story of the people, events, and concepts that have made public perceptions serve private power in the U.S." —George Gerbner,

Dean Emeritus, Annenberg School of Communication

Ewen chronicles the history of a PR culture we now take for granted: the social conditions that brought it about; the specialists who spearheaded campaigns that molded public opinion; the use of images as tools of persuasion; and the ways that corporate image management has become pervasive in American society.

What accounts for the flourishing entrepreneurial spirit among American Blacks in the face of entrenched economic inequality?

Black Entrepreneurs in America

Stories of Struggle and Success

MICHAEL D. WOODARD

"A provocative read! The case materials that Woodard presents are enlightening and engaging. They shed new light on what factors lead to success for African American entrepreneurs in the post-civil rights era as well as the external and internal barriers that continue to block their mobility." —Melvin L. Oliver, Professor of Sociology and Director, Center for the Study of Urban Poverty, UCLA, and author of Black Wealth / White Wealth

"Woodard's ability to paint clear cut pictures kept me saying, 'Yes!, Yes!'. My hope is that a lot of folks get to share in his insights and his comprehensive research."

The Rise of the Large Industrial Corporation in America

WILLIAM G. ROY

Ever since Adolph Berle and Gardiner Means wrote their classic 1932 analysis of the American corporation, The Modern Corporation and Private Property, social scientists have been intrigued and challenged by the evolution of this crucial part of American social and economic life. Here William Roy conducts a historical inquiry into the rise of the large publicly traded American corporation.

Departing from the received wisdom, which sees the big, vertically integrated corporation as the result of technological development and market growth that required greater efficiency, Roy focuses on political, social, and institutional processes governed by the dynamics of power.

"The first thoroughly sociological inquiry into the rise of corporate capitalism I know of, and the most trenchant critique of the prevailing 'efficiency theorists' we are likely to have for some time. The book abounds with stunning insights into the rocky and highly contingent history of the industrial corporation, closely argued and very well documented. These are laurels Roy can rest on for a long time after this immense and exciting effort."—Charles Perrow, Yale University

THE RATIONAL FACTORY

Architecture, Technology, and Work in America's Age of Mass Production

LINDY BIGGS

In their quest for a "rational" work place, turn-of-the-century engineers and industrial architects recast the factory itself as the "master machine." Lindy Biggs shows how the rational factory transformed the nature of work, both human and mechanical.

Innovation and Entrepreneurship records, analyzes, and makes known the human story of chemical achievement.*

Gordon Cain is a legend among chemical engineers. His story reveals the human and economic realities that empowered mergers and acquisitions for the restructuring of the American chemical industry in the 1980s and 1990s.

Ralph Landau
*Professor of Economics,
Center for Economic Policy Research,
Stanford University*

Everybody Wins! is a case study in American business enterprise told through the life of an extraordinary man: Gordon Cain—a legendary entrepreneur who when well past retirement age effected a turnaround in the commodity chemicals industry. The result was a win for management, workers, investors, and the general economy.

Everybody Wins! offers a clarion call for better management and more accountable boards of directors. It outlines a new paradigm of business management—one in which workers help businesses anticipate and embrace market change.

Failure to file or publish a statement of ownership may lead to suspension of second-class authorization

GUIDELINES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

General Information

Manuscripts are considered for publication on the understanding that they are not concurrently under consideration elsewhere and that the material—in substance as well as form—has not been previously published.

Three copies of the manuscript should be submitted.

Authors should identify themselves only on a separate title page that provides name, mailing address, and telephone number. Authors must also remember not to identify themselves in the body of the manuscript; specifically, references to their own work in the text should be in the third person, and citations should be written without possessive pronouns—not “See my. . . .”

Each article should be accompanied by a précis of 75-100 words outlining the main point(s) of the paper and placing the article in context. Subheads should be used to divide the manuscript into three or four sections (or more, depending on length).

We do not have an upper or lower page limit, but articles usually run between 25 and 60 typescript pages, including notes and other material.

Articles must contain notes in the humanities style, not references as in the social sciences.

We are always eager to publish illustrations, but authors should not include originals of illustrative materials at the time of submission; photocopies of such material may be included.

Authors of accepted manuscripts will receive two copies of the issue in which the article appears and twenty-five free offprints.

Manuscript Preparation

ALL material—including extracted quotations and notes—must be double-spaced. Legible photocopies or word-processed originals may be submitted. Use of dot-matrix printers is discouraged.

Notes should be numbered consecutively and citations should be placed at the end of the text. Do not place footnotes at the bottom of the page (see word-processing instructions).

Each table or figure should occupy a separate page and should be numbered (in arabic numerals) and grouped together between the text and the notes. The position of these items should be indicated in the text (as, “see Table 3”), but they should not be mingled with the text and no extra space should be left for them there. Each table and figure must be accompanied by a complete source.

We use the 13th edition of The Chicago Manual of Style (1982) and spell and hyphenate words according to Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary.

The journal encourages authors to use gender-neutral prose in all cases where it is not anachronistic to do so; male nouns and pronouns should not be used to refer to people of both sexes.

We use the day-month-year form for dates, as 11 February 1990.

Double quotation marks should be used for journal titles and direct quotation; single quotation marks are used for quoted material inside quotations.

Sample Citation Forms:

Book: Alfred D. Chandler, Jr., The Visible Hand: The Managerial Revolution in American Business (Cambridge, Mass., 1977), 321-22.

Journal: Charles Cheape, “Not Politicians but Sound Businessmen: Norton Company and the Third Reich,” Business History Review 62 (Autumn 1988): 444-66.

Note that we do not include the publisher in book citations. We do not use loc. cit., op. cit., or idem., but ibid. (not italicized) may be used.

Word-Processing Guidelines

The journal can accept disks of all standard sizes and densities, but they must be formatted in MS-DOS; we cannot use Apple or Macintosh software. WordPerfect is directly compatible, but we may be able to accept your document if it can be converted into an ASCII file.

Potential contributors should submit hard copy, not diskettes, initially, but it will save considerable work for all parties in the event of acceptance if authors working on PCs follow a few rules from the beginning:

In general, use as few formatting commands as possible.

Do not justify or half-justify the right-hand margin.

Do not hyphenate words at the end of lines.

Do not use hard returns except for new paragraphs or required page ends except as absolutely necessary (for example, to break between text and notes).

Do not use special fonts; underline material that is to be set in italics.

Most important, do not use the word processor's automatic footnote functions: do not embed notes in the text. Notes should be keyed in at the end of the text (after any tables) or as a separate file.

Our Credo

WE BELIEVE THAT OUR FIRST RESPONSIBILITY is to our customers.

Our products must always be good, and we must strive to make them better at lower costs.
Our orders must be promptly and accurately filled.
Our dealers must make a fair profit.

OUR SECOND RESPONSIBILITY is to those who work with us—

The men and women in our factories and offices.
They must have a sense of security in their jobs.

Wages must be fair and adequate.

Management just, hours short, and working conditions clean and orderly.

Workers should have an organised system for suggestions and complaints.

Foremen and department heads must be qualified and fair minded.

There must be opportunity for advancement—for those qualified.

And each person must be considered an individual standing on his own dignity and merit.

OUR THIRD RESPONSIBILITY is to our management.

Our executives must be persons of talent, education, experience and ability.
They must be persons of common sense and full understanding.

OUR FOURTH RESPONSIBILITY is to the communities in which we live.

We must be a good citizen—support good works and charity, and bear our fair share of taxes.

We must maintain in good order the property we are privileged to use.

We must participate in promotion of civic improvement,
health, education and good government,
and acquaint the community with our activities.

OUR FIFTH AND LAST RESPONSIBILITY is to our stockholders.

Business must make a sound profit.

Reserves must be created, research must be carried on, adventurous programmes developed, and mistakes made and paid for.

Bad times must be provided for, high taxes paid, new machines purchased, new factories built, new products launched, and new sales plans developed.

We must experiment with new ideas.

When these things have been done the stockholder should receive a fair return.

We are determined with the help of God's grace,
to fulfil these obligations to the best of our ability.
