

Research and Training Support

Announcement of Awards

Urban Studies Fellowships

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has announced the award of graduate fellowships in urban studies to 107 students, five of them political science students. These fellowships are made available to qualified students in a wide range of urban-related fields of graduate service. Grants are made up to $3000 for a year of study preparing for careers in the urban public service. Grants are made up to $3000 for a year of study, plus $500 per dependent.

Awards in political science were made to:

Charles E. Jaten, University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee; Deborah H. Roseboom, University of Montana; Gregory W. Morris, Cornell University; David H. Nexon, University of Chicago; and David A. Witcher, Princeton University.

The awards are made by advisory board which includes political scientists James Banovetz, Northern Illinois University; Robert Huckshorn, Florida Atlantic University; George Blair, Claremont Graduate School; Stephen Horn, American University; Robert C. Wood, MIT; and Arthur Flemming, President, Macalester College.

Colorado Traineeships

Three University of Colorado graduate students in public administration are studying this year under annual City and County of Denver Management Traineeships. All are studying toward master of public administration degrees.

The year's trainees are Milo L. Colton of Denver, George H. Delaney of Sturgeon, Pa.; and Russell Lee Wilson, Jr. of Beaumont, Tex. They receive $562 per month during the summer for full-time service and $281 per month during the academic year for half-time service as management trainees in Denver.

Ford Faculty Fellowships

Award of forty-six faculty research fellowships in economics, political science, and sociology for the 1969-70 academic year have been announced by the Ford Foundation. Totalling approximately $700,000, the awards went to faculty members of graduate departments at thirty-five universities across the nation. Political scientists received 20 awards.

The purpose of the fellowships is to strengthen the social sciences through support of independent research by young faculty members on subjects of their own choosing. Each fellowship provides full salary plus a modest research allowance for an academic year free of teaching and administrative duties.

Nominations for the program were submitted to the Foundation by seventy-six institutions. Recipients were selected with the assistance of advisory committees of economics, political science, and sociology professors. Foundation grants covering individual awards are made to the universities with which the fellows are associated.

Political science awards were:

Martin M. Shapiro, Professor of Political Science. Nominated by the University of California at Irvine. Faculty fellowship for research on organizational decision-making and the Law of Torts.

T. Y. Shen, Associate Professor of Economics. Nominated by the University of California at Davis. Faculty fellowship for research on measuring organization as a factor of production.

Kenneth H. Thompson, Assistant Professor of Political Science. Nominated by the University of Southern California. Faculty fellowship for a cross-national analysis of the determinants of political orientation.

Everett C. Ladd, Jr., Associate Professor of Political Science. Nominated by the University of Connecticut. Faculty fellowship for an investigation of ideology and conflict in a Southern metropolitan region.

Robert L. Peabody, Professor of Political Science. Nominated by Johns Hopkins University. Faculty fellowship for research on the politics of compromise: exchange, hierarchy, and policy outcomes in the U.S. Congress, 1961-68.

William E. Brigman, Assistant Professor of Government. Nominated by Florida State University. Faculty fellowship for research on the social and psychological correlates of petit jury voting behavior.

Morris Davis, Professor of Political Science. Nominated by the University of Illinois. Faculty fellowship for research on the structuring of international communications about the Nigerian-Biafran dispute.

Michael W. Suleiman, Associate Professor of Political Science. Nominated by Kansas State University. Faculty fellowship for research on the political world of Arab intellectuals.

Robert S. Robins, Associate Professor of Political Science. Nominated by Tulane University. Faculty fellowship for research on electoral patterns associated with urbanization in India, 1952-1967.

Roy M. Hofheinz, Assistant Professor of Government. Nominated by Harvard University. Faculty fellowship for research on the Chinese Communist cultural revolution.

Rosemarie S. Rogers, Assistant Professor of Political Science. Nominated by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Faculty fellowship for research on interethnic attitudes and political opinions in Canada.

Leslie L. Roos, Jr., Assistant Professor of Politics. Nominated by Brandeis University. Faculty fellowship for research on elite-mass interaction in Turkish local development.

Robert D. Putnam, Lecturer, Department of Political Science. Nominated by the University of Michigan. Faculty fellowship for research on bureaucracy and bureaucrats in Britain and Italy.

Ted R. Gurr, Assistant Professor of Politics. Nominated by Princeton University. Faculty fellowship to be held at Northwestern University for research on conditions of civil violence in 19th and 20th century England and Canada.

William A. Lucas, Assistant Professor of Political Science. Nominated by the State University of New York at Buffalo. Faculty fellowship for research on military professionalism and civil-military relations in the United States.

Donald R. Matthews, Professor of Political Science. Nominated by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Faculty fellowship for research on decision-making by U.S. Congressmen: a study of roll-call voting.

L. Harmon Zeigler, Professor of Political Science. Nominated by the University of Oregon. Faculty fellowship for a comparative study of interest groups.

Chong-Sik Lee, Associate Professor of Political Science. Nominated by the University of Pennsylvania. Faculty fellowship for research on the pattern of interaction of leaders in Korea between 1945 and 1948.

Robert L. Hardgrave, Jr., Assistant Professor of Government. Nominated by the University of Texas. Faculty fellowship for research on film and society in India.

Bernard C. Cohen, Professor and Chairman, Department of Political Science. Nominated by the University of Wisconsin. Faculty fellowship for research on the public impact on foreign policy.

Edward A. Kolodziej, Associate Professor and Chairman, Department of Government. Nominated by the University of Virginia. Faculty fellowship for research on revolt and revisionism in French foreign policy.

Ford Grants

An increased level of support for academic exchange and foreign area study programs focusing on both Western and Eastern Europe, including the Soviet Union, has been announced by the Ford Foundation.

Grants totaling $1 million to the American Council of Learned Societies, Harvard University, and the Social Science Research Council are designed to improve U.S. knowledge and understanding of postwar Europe and to take advantage of the increased opportunities for the exchange of scholars with Eastern Europe.

A number of other grants for foreign area and related studies were also announced by the Foundation: $154,880 to the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy for a new graduate program in "public diplomacy" $400,000 to the University of Michigan for comparative political studies in the Latin countries of Europe and Latin America; and $150,000 to Yale University for Caribbean studies, with emphasis on Cuba and Haiti.

SSRC Grants

Foreign Area Fellowship Program

In the seventh year of administration of the Foreign Area Fellowship Program by the Social Science Research Council and American Council of Learned Societies, fellowships have been awarded for study of five major world areas as in previous years, and also special awards for research, training, and internships in Latin America and the Caribbean. As of August 1, the following appointments have been accepted for 1969-70 in political science.

African Studies Program

M. Catharine Atterbury, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of Wisconsin, for intensive Kinyarwanda language training and research in Rwanda and Belgium on the political integration of Kinyaga, 1916-60

Research and Training Support

Announcement of Awards

Walter L. Barrows, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Yale University, for research in Sierra Leone on its national integration and political development

Gerald J. Bender, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of California, Los Angeles, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation in Portugal and the United States on Portuguese immigration to Angola (renewal)

Michael A. Cohen, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of Chicago, for research in Ivory Coast on the politics of urban development.

John D. Collins, Ph.D. candidate in comparative politics, Johns Hopkins University, School of Advanced International Studies, for research in Niger and France on animation rurale

Mark W. Delancey, Ph.D. candidate in government, Indiana University, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation in West Cameroon and the United States on interethnic communication and the development of a sense of community on the Cameroons Development Corporation plantations (renewal)

Dennis L. Dresang, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of California, Los Angeles, for preparation of a dissertation on the Zambian Civil Service: a study in development administration (renewal)

Robert M. Price, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of California, Berkeley, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation on organizational control in a transitional society (renewal)

Harlan D. Robinson, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Stanford University, for preparation of a dissertation on the political and economic development of the Malagasy Republic (renewal)

Joel Samoff, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of Wisconsin, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation in Tanzania and the United States on the political process in a single-party state (renewal)

Heidi S. Tauss, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Northwestern University, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation in Ghana and the United States on politics in an urban area: a comparison of indigenous and immigrant communities in Accra (renewal)

Asia and Near East Studies Program

James W. Bjorkman, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Yale University, for Hindi-Urdu language training, course work relating to South Asia, and research in the United States and India on political value configurations in India.

Michael W. Donnelly, Ph.D. candidate in government, Columbia University, for Japanese language training and research in Japan on the politics of rice prices

David J. Elkins, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of California, Berkeley, for preparation of a dissertation on correlatives of political participation in South Asia (renewal)

Stephen L. Keller, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, for preparation of a dissertation on refugees and political development: effects of adult trauma on attitudes and personality (renewal)

Benedict J. Kerkvliet, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of Wisconsin, for Tagalog language training and research in Manila on the historical process of the Huk revolt.

Michael H. Van Dusen, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Johns Hopkins University, for research in Lebanon on intra- and intergenerational civil-military conflicts in Syria

Lynn T. White, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of California, Berkeley, for research on the politics of Shanghai City since 1949 (renewal)

Latin American Studies Program

Wayne A. Cornelius, Jr., Ph.D. candidate in political science, Stanford University, for research in Mexico on political correlates of the assimilation of urban migrants in metropolitan areas

W. Winfield Crowther, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of California, Berkeley, for preparation of a dissertation on the political economy of the Chilean State railways as a public enterprise (renewal)

John H. Magill, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of Wisconsin, for preparation of a dissertation on labor unions as a Bolivian institution (renewal)

Christopher Mitchell, Ph.D. candidate in government, Harvard University, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation on political parties in Bolivia, 1952-64 (renewal)

Liisa L. North, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of California, Berkeley, for completion of a dissertation in Peru and the United States on the Peruvian Aprista Party (renewal)

John C. Pollock, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Stanford University, for preparation for examinations, and research in the United States and Colombia on the impact of bureaucratic roles on the growth of urban housing in Colombia (renewal)

Alexander W. Wilde, Ph.D. candidate in government, Columbia University, for preparation of a dissertation on the role of the Church in the political system of Colombia (renewal)

Soviet Union and Eastern European Studies Program

Raymond W. Baker, Ph.D. candidate in government, Harvard University, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation on Soviet influence in the Middle East (renewal)

George W. Breslauer, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of Michigan, for participation in the Inter-University Consortium for Political Research and preliminary research on decision making and implementation in the Soviet Union.

Lenard J. Cohen, Ph.D. candidate in government, Columbia University, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation in Yugoslavia and the United States on the politics of national integration (renewal)

Donald R. Kelley, Ph.D. candidate in government, Indiana University, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation on the Union Republic press (renewal)

H. Hugh Hecló, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Yale University, for completion of research in England on political forces in the development of social security programs in Great Britain and Sweden (renewal)

Stephen M. Hellman, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Yale University, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation in Italy and the United States on attitudes and behavior of bureaucratic elites in the Communist Party of northern Italy (renewal)

William M. Lafferty, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of Florida, for Norwegian language training, completion of research, and preparation of a dissertation in Norway and the United States on industrialization and political radicalism in the Scandinavian countries (renewal)

Peter M. Lange, Ph.D. candidate in political science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, for Italian language training and research in the United States and Italy on internal operations of its Communist and Socialist Parties

Alan R. Posner, Ph.D. candidate in government, Columbia University, for research in the United States and Western Europe on Italy and the Atlantic Alliance

Ezra N. Suleiman, Ph.D. candidate in government, Columbia University, for research in France on directors of the Central Administration under the Fourth and Fifth Republics

Timothy A. Tilton, Ph.D. candidate in government, Harvard University, for intensive German language training and research in West Germany on North German peasant politics

Special Awards for Latin America and the Caribbean

David V. Fleischer, Ph.D. candidate in political science, University of Florida, for research on political recruitment in Minas Gerais, in affiliation with the Department of Political Science, Federal University of Minas Gerais, Belo Horizonte, and participation in development of the department's data bank

Theodore H. Moran, Ph.D. candidate in government, Harvard University, for research on the political problems of United States investment in copper in Chile, in affiliation with the Institute of Political Science and Public Administration, University of Chile, and participation in a research seminar on contemporary Chile

Michael Elmer, D.Phil. candidate in politics, University of Liverpool, for research on contemporary Bolivian political parties, in affiliation with the Bolivian Institute for Studies and Social Action, and organization of a seminar on contemporary Bolivian politics

Grants for Slavic and East European Studies

Under the program sponsored by the Joint Committee on Slavic and East European Studies, its Subcommittee on Grants for Russian and Soviet Studies — Edward J. Brown (chairman), Clayton L. Dawson, Warren W. Eason, Stephen D. Kertesz, and Hans J. Rogger — and Subcommittee on East Central and Southeast European Studies — Irwin T. Sanders (chairman), William E. Harkins, George W. Hoffman, Paul L. Horecky, Andrzej Korbonski, J. M. Montias, Michael B. Petrovich, and Alexander M. Schenker — awarded the following grants in political science.

John H. Hodgson, III, Associate Professor of Political Science, Syracuse University, for research on a political biography of Otto V. Kuusinen

Edward Taborsky, Professor of Government, University of Texas, for research on President Edward Benes, between the East and the West

Henry Teune, Associate Professor of Political Science, University of Pennsylvania, for an empirical study of the processes of social change and integration in Yugoslav communes

Research and Training Support

Announcement of Awards

Grants for Study of East European Languages

The Subcommittee on East Central and Southeast European Studies, of the Joint Committee on Slavic and East European Studies, made grants in political science in the following languages.

Czech

Zvi Gitelman, Assistant Professor of Political Science, University of Michigan

Serbo-Croatian

David W. Paul, graduate student, politics, Princeton University

Sharon Z. Rousmaniere, graduate student, government, Columbia University

Susan L. Woodward, graduate student, politics, Princeton University

THE AMERICAN POLITICAL SCIENCE ASSOCIATION'S

Personnel Service . . .

The American Political Science Association's Personnel Service operates as a "clearing house," bringing together political scientists seeking positions and prospective employers. Registration in the service, at a $6 per calendar year fee, is open to all members of the Association. Here are the details of its operation:

Position Openings

- A Newsletter is mailed monthly to those Association members seeking positions through the Personnel Service. There are presently over 900 members in the Personnel Service.
- The Newsletter lists, by code number, position openings and job descriptions.

Employers Using the Service

- Any employer may use the Association's Personnel Service.
- Types of positions listed include teaching on the university level, administrative positions with professional organizations, research and administrative positions with federal, state and local government agencies.
- There is no cost to the advertising institution.

For further information concerning registration write to:

Director, Personnel Service

The American Political Science Association

1527 New Hampshire Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20036

For American Government courses
Harcourt, Brace & World offers

POLITICS AND GOVERNMENT IN THE UNITED STATES
Second Edition

EMMETTE S. REDFORD, University of Texas

DAVID B. TRUMAN, Mount Holyoke College

ALAN F. WESTIN, Columbia University

ROBERT C. WOOD, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Widely acclaimed as a stimulating, authoritative introduction to American government, this textbook provides a thorough and integrated treatment of the three main aspects of the American political system: the process of politics, the structure of government institutions, and the substantive policies that emerge from the interaction between institutions and politics. This Second Edition, organized within a political-systems framework, incorporates the latest research in political science and includes material on recent political events. With Instructor's Manual and Text Booklet.

National, State, and Local Edition: 964 pages. $9.95

National Edition: 835 pages. $8.95

THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE
Revised Edition

LOUIS W. KOENIG, New York University

Now available in a revised, paperback edition, The Chief Executive is a comprehensive, analytical study of the American Presidency—the office itself and the men who have held that office. This recent edition includes material from the Johnson administration and reflects current scholarship in the field. Two entire chapters are new to this edition: one in which Professor Koenig offers a comparison of the Presidency with state and local executive offices, and another in which he provides a fascinating consideration of political personality—the values, goals, and stylistic traits of several of our presidents, and how these characteristics affected their conduct in office.

Paperbound. 466 pages. $4.50

Harcourt, Brace & World, Inc.
New York / Chicago / San Francisco / Atlanta