“Discovering the Political Science Education Section, which focuses on teaching and learning scholarship and includes many members from small colleges, was a professional turning point for me. It’s a joy to know and work with wonderful colleagues from around the country who have the same scholarly and professional interests and aspirations.”

“Over the years, APSA has provided many opportunities for service to the profession and to work with a range of professional colleagues on a variety of tasks. It has also provided opportunities to learn about interesting research being done by others in the profession, get feedback on my own papers, as well as meet and (re)connect with colleagues in the profession.”
