Contributors

Kevin Bartig is associate professor of musicology at Michigan State University. His research explores intersections between music and politics in the Soviet Union and U.S.–Soviet cultural exchange. He is the author of Composing for the Red Screen: Prokofiev and Soviet Film (Oxford University Press, 2013); and Sergei Prokofiev: Alexander Nevsky (Oxford University Press, 2017).

Christa Anne Bentley is an assistant professor of musicology at Oklahoma City University. Her research focuses on the politics of popular music at the intersections of folk and commercial styles. She is currently working on a monograph about confessional songwriting as political discourse in the United States singer-songwriter movement during the 1970s.

Gina Bombola earned her PhD in musicology from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She received the Alvin H. Johnson AMS 50 Dissertation Fellowship for her final year of doctoral study. Her primary area of research focuses on Hollywood's production and marketing of films featuring operatic singers, investigating how these films intersect with representations of gender, race, and class as well as broader cultural phenomena such as the music appreciation movement.

John Brackett teaches at Vance-Granville Community College in North Carolina. He is a co-editor with Ciro Scotto and Kenneth Smith of The Routledge Companion to Popular Music Analysis: Expanding Approaches (forthcoming 2017). Brackett also plays drums in the band Supercollider, an academic supergroup featuring American music scholars Chris Reali and Allison Portnow Lathrop (<https://www.reverbnation.com/supercollidermusic>).

Eduardo Herrera is assistant professor at Rutgers University and specializes in contemporary musical practices from Latin America. His book, Elite Art Worlds: Philanthropy, Latin Americanism, and Avant-Garde Music (under contract, Oxford University Press) explores the history of the Centro Latinoamericano de Altos Estudios Musicales as a meeting point for local and transnational philanthropy, the framing of pan-regional discourses of Latin Americanism, and the aesthetics and desires of high modernity. Herrera is co-editor of Experimentalisms in Practice: Music Perspectives from Latin America (Oxford University Press, 2018).

Denise Machin graduated from Columbia University and is currently a PhD candidate at the University of California, Riverside pursuing a degree in critical dance studies. Machin works full time at Pomona College, serving as the director of the Claremont Colleges Ballroom Dance Company and as adjunct faculty in the physical education department. Machin's research examines the intersection of gender expression and amateur competitive ballroom dance and dancesport in the United States.

Victoria von Arx is a member of the music faculty at the University at Albany, an active performer of piano and chamber music, and the author of articles appearing in the Journal of the Society for American Music, the International Dictionary of Black Composers, and the RiD'im Newsletter. Her book, Piano Lessons with Claudio Arrau: A Guide to His Techniques and Philosophy, was published by Oxford University Press in 2014.

Amy Lynn Wlodarski is the author of Musical Witness and Holocaust Representation (Cambridge University Press, 2015) and co-editor, with Elaine Kelly, of the volume Art Outside the Lines (Rodopi, 2011). Her research on postwar music has appeared in the Journal of the American Musicological Society, the Journal of Musicology, and the award-winning volume Dislocated Memories (Frühau and Hirsch, eds.). She is the recipient of the Irving Lowens Article Award (2012) from the Society of American Music and the Lockwood Award (2016) from the American Musicological Society. Wlodarski is associate professor of music at Dickinson College.

Alexa Woloshyn is assistant professor of musicology at Carnegie Mellon University. Her research focuses on how electronic, physiological, and socio-cultural technologies mediate the creation and consumption of musical practices in both art and popular musics. Her work has been published in Circuits: musiques contemporains, eContact!, The Journal of Popular Music Studies, The American Indian Culture and Research Journal, and TEMPO.
