Radical History Review

Editorial Secretary

Marjorie Murphy, Swarthmore College

Published for MARHO: The Radical
Historians' Organization

Radical History Review presents innovative scholarship and commentary that looks critically at the past and its historians from a non-sectarian left perspective. RHR scrutinizes conventional history and seeks to broaden and advance the discussion of crucial issues such as the role of race, class and gender in history. The journal offers original articles; review essays that examine the uses and abuses of history in the popular media, film, history museums and other public forums; and interviews with leading radical historians. Each volume is illustrated with drawings, cartoons, photographs and other graphic art. Issues are often thematic and cover a wide range of geographic areas and subjects. Volume 58 will be devoted to "Latin American Labor".

Popular Mobilization in Mexico

The Teachers' Movement, 1977–87

Joe Foweraker

This book explores the process of popular political mobilization in contemporary Mexico through the experience of the country's most important popular organization—the teachers' movement.

44147-1 Hardcover $59.95

The Politics of Work

Gender and Labour in Victoria, 1880–1939

Raelene Frances

This study is concerned with the complex relationship between economic and technological change, nature of sexual division in the workforce, and the role of union, employer and state activists.

Visions of the People

Industrial England and the Question of Class, c. 1848–1914

Patrick Joyce

"The most substantial and sustained attempt yet to go beyond the orthodoxy of class... its achievement should be welcomed and celebrated."

44797-6 Paper about $21.95

The Political Economy of Shopkeeping in Milan, 1886–1922

Jonathan Morris

This book analyzes the business, geography and politics of shopkeeping in Milan between 1886 and 1922. This is the first full-scale study of any aspect of the experience of the Italian petite bourgeoisie in the pre-Fascist period.

39119-9 Hardcover $64.95

Common Labour

Workers and the Digging of North American Canals, 1780–1860

Peter Way

This study of canal construction workers between 1780–1860 challenges labor history's focus on skilled craftsmen. Canalers were unskilled workers, often members of despised social groups such as Irish immigrants and African-American slaves. Lacking the power that skill brought, canalers had little control over their working conditions. Their experiences represent a different strand of the labor story.

The London Hanged

Crime and Civil Society in the Eighteenth Century

Peter Linebaugh

"This is a magisterial book. Few recent works reflect as global an understanding of the eighteenth century and its people, and its unforgettable re-creations of London topography and colloquial language will help to make it a classic."

LABOUR/LE TRAVAIL

JOURNAL OF CANADIAN LABOUR STUDIES

REVUE D'ÉTUDES
OUVRIÈRES CANADIENNES

Labour/Le Travail is the official publication of the Canadian Committee on Labour History. Since it began publishing in 1976, it has carried many important articles in the field of working-class history, industrial sociology, labour economics, and labour relations. Although primarily interested in a historical perspective on Canadian workers, the journal is interdisciplinary in scope. In addition to articles, the journal features documents, conference reports, an annual bibliography of materials in Canadian labour studies, review essays, and reviews. While the main focus of the journal's articles is Canadian, the review essays and reviews consider international work of interest to Canadian labour studies. Many of Labour's articles are illustrated.

Publiée par le Comité canadien sur l'histoire du travail, la revue Labour/Le Travail a fait paraître depuis 1976 plusieurs articles marquants dans le domaine de l'histoire de la classe ouvrière, de la sociologie industrielle, de l'économie du travail et des relations industrielles. Bien qu'elle se propose d'abord d'étudier les travailleurs et les travailleuses du Canada dans une perspective historique, la revue est aussi ouverte aux spécialistes d'autres disciplines. En plus des articles, la revue publie des documents, des rapports de conférences, une bibliographie annuelle, des notes critiques et des comptes rendus de volumes. Si la plupart des articles touchent le Canada, les notes critiques et les comptes rendus portent sur des travaux d'envergure internationale pouvant intéresser les chercheurs canadiens. Des illustrations accompagnent plusieurs articles de Labour/Le Travail.

Subscribers for 1993 will receive/Les abonnés pour 1993 recevront:

Economics and Philosophy

explores the foundations of economics as both a predictive/explanatory enterprise and a normative one. The papers examine the relevance of economic techniques, methods and conclusions to philosophical questions in ethics and social theory. The journal is designed to foster collaboration between economists and philosophers, and to bridge the increasingly artificial boundaries between them. Each issue contains review essays, detailed book reviews, and continuing discussion on topics previously covered.

The Coachmen of Nineteenth-Century Paris

Service Workers and Class Consciousness

Nicholas Papayanis

In his captivating new book, Nicholas Papayanis sets about to penetrate the popular image of nineteenth-century Parisian coachmen and present a realistic picture of this frequently maligned segment of the population. He offers both a definitive history of Paris cabbies, including a sociological portrait of these workers, and an economic and structural history of the Paris cab trade. The Coachmen of Nineteenth-Century Paris fills a gap in the literature dealing with Paris and its working class and tells the intriguing story of expanding public transportation in Paris.
