

Notes on the Contributors

Rafael Argullol is a philosopher and the author of many publications including El quattrocento, L'attraction de l'abîme, Le héros et l'unique, and La fatigue de l'Occident. He is also a dramatist, novelist and poet. He holds the chair in aesthetics and theory of arts at the University of Pompeu Fabra, Barcelona. His research bears on the philosophy of culture, cultural and literary myth, and Greek tragedy. Address: Universitat Pompeu Fabra, Departament d'Humanitats, Ramon Trias Fargas, 25-27, 08005 Barcelona, Spain. [email: rafael.argullol@huma.upf.es]

Zygmunt Bauman is emeritus professor of sociology at the universities of Leeds and Warsaw, and has taught in Tel Aviv and at the London School of Economics. His work, which has earned him the Theodor W. Adorno Prize and the European Amalfi Prize, bears on the complex interactions between order and liberty, equality and difference, tolerance and solidarity. He is the author of Prix humaine de la mondialisation, of Moderne und Ambivalenz, Das Ende der Eindeutigkeit, of Dialektik der Ordnung and of Work Ethic, Consumerism and the Poor. Address: Department of Sociology, University of Leeds, Leeds LS2 9JT, UK.

Homi K. Bhabha has a doctorate in philosophy from the University of Oxford and was nominated one of Newsweek's '100 personalities of the new century'. He is professor of literature and English and American languages, and of African-American studies, at Harvard University. His work also bears on the history of art, languages and civilizations of South Asia, and on human rights. He is a regular contributor to Artforum Magazine. The author of numerous publications including The Location of Culture (1994), he is the editor of Nation and Narration (1990) and is currently working on a history of cosmopolitanism entitled A Measure of Dwelling. Address: Barker 220, 12 Quincy Street, Cambridge, MA 02138, USA. [email: hbhabha@fas.harvard.edu]

Barbara Freitag is a sociologist. She holds a degree from the Free University of Berlin, where she is an assistant professor, and she also works at the Technical University of Berlin. She has been an honorary professor in the department of sociology at the University of Brasilia since 1974. She has published many works in German, including Die brasilianische Bildungspolitik, Aufbau kindlicher Bewusstseinsstrukturen and Florestan Fernandes, and in Portuguese, including Teoria e crítica: ontem

Copyright © ICPHS 2003

SAGE: London, Thousand Oaks, CA and New Delhi, www.sagepublications.com 0392-1921 [200302]50:1;113–115;032759

e hoje, itinerários de Antígona, Piaget e a filosofia. She has also written many articles for Brazilian and other journals. She is director of the publication Anuário de Educação, Rio de Janeiro. Address: SQN 205, Bloco L, apt. 205, CEP 70843-120, Brasília DF, Brazil. [email: bfreitag@uol.com.br]

Masahiro Hamashita is professor in the department of intercultural studies at Kobe College, where he is also head librarian. He studied aesthetics at the University of Tokyo and is the author of several published works in Japanese and English, including Imo no chikara to sono Henyo [The Power of Womanhood and its Variety], 2002. He is co-founder of the Japan-Korea Aesthetic Studies Society, which held its 10th conference in 2002. Address: Kobe College, 4-1 Okadayama, Nishinomiya, 662-8505 Japan. [email: m-hama@mail.kobe-c.ac.jp]

Harris Memel-Fotê was appointed emeritus professor of the University of Abidjan in 1990, and is an Associate of the Collège de France (international chair, 1995-6). He was director of studies at the Ecole des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales (1978-9 and 1991-2). His books include Le modèle ivoirien en questions. Crises, ajustements, recompositions (with Bernard Contamin, 1997) and Les représentations de la santé et de la maladie chez les Ivoiriens (1998). He has written numerous articles, of which the most recent are 'La traité des négresses au XVIIIe siècle' (1997), 'L'universalité de l'abolition de l'esclavage de 1848. Sa place dans la généalogie de la libération de l'Afrique' (1998), 'Essai sur le contour théorique de l'ethnie' (1999) and 'Trois essais philosophiques sur Environnement et Sociétés en Afrique' (1999). Address: Faculté de lettres, arts et sciences humaines, Institut d'éthnosociologie, 08 BP 1606, Abidjan 08, Ivory Coast.

Liubava Moreva is associate professor and head of the department of cultural research in the Russian Institute, St. Petersburg. Her research centres around the philosophy of culture, hermeneutics and phenomenology. Her publications include works on the history of the philosophy of religion in Russia, the history of gnosticism, and the study of mental states. Among her main publications are Leo Shestov. The Unconquerable Striving (1991), Ontology of Violence and Some Strategies for Escaping to Freedom (1992), Reflections on Absurdity (1997) and Reflection on the Poetics of History and the Rhetoric of Ending (1999). Address: Russian Institute for Cultural Research, Russian Academy of Sciences, Universetskaya nab.5 r. 102, St. Petersburg 199034, Russian Federation.

Fatma Oussedik is a sociologist who specializes in nationalism and agrarian revolution in Algeria. She is a founder member of the Association of African Women for Research and Development, a founder member of the Association of Arab Sociologists, and secretary general of the Association of Arab Researchers in France. She has been visiting professor at Brown University (Rhode Island) and consultant to various organizations including UNESCO. After teaching for 17 years at the University of Algiers, she is now an associate at the Maison des Sciences de l'Homme in Paris. She is the author of several articles and books. Address: c/o Maison des Sciences de l'Homme, 54 Boulevard Raspail, 75270 Paris 06, France.

Eduardo Portella is an essayist, emeritus professor of the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro, and president of the Biblioteca Nacional foundation, Brazil. Formerly Minister of Education, Culture and Science in Brazil, founder of the Colégio do Brasil and of the journal Tempo brasileiro, he has also been director general adjunct, and president of the general conference, at Unesco. He is the author of several works on modernity, culture, education, politics and literature, and is currently chair of the steering committee of a project examining directions of thought at the beginning of the third millennium. Address: Fundação Biblioteca Nacional, Avenida Rio Branco, 2199/39, 20042 Rio de Janeiro, RJ, Brazil.

Sergio Paulo Rouanet is an essayist who trained in legal and social science at the Catholic University of Rio de Janeiro. He pursued his studies in the USA in economics, political science and philosophy, culminating in a doctorate in political science from the University of São Paulo. A former Minister of Culture and Brazilian Ambassador to Denmark, the Czech Republic and Germany, he founded the Brazilian Cultural Institute in Berlin. His work reflects his preoccupation with the vicissitudes of the values of the Enlightenment tradition. Address: SQN 205, Bloco L, apt. 205, CEP 70843-120, Brasília DF, Brazil. [email: rouanet@uol.com.br]

Gianni Vattimo is a philosopher, and holds the chair of hermeneutic philosophy at the University of Turin. He is a member of the European Parliament. A former pupil of Luigi Pareyson, he introduced the philosophy of his teachers, Karl Löwith and Hans Georg Gadamer, into Italy, and developed a hermeneutic interpretation of contemporary thought. He is the author of several major works, including Les aventures de la différence, Au-delà du sujet, La pensée faible, La fin de la modernité, L'éthique de l'interprétation, and Au-delà de l'interprétation. Address: Università degli Studi di Torino, Dipartimento di Ermeneutica filosofica e tecniche dell'interpretazione, Torino, Italy.

Acknowledgements

The Editor of Diogenes warmly thanks all those who have assisted in the preparation of this issue, and particularly, as usual, Emo Lessi.