

THE MAKING OF A CHRISTIAN

Charles Davis

8/6

We think very little about the process of becoming a Christian. What is really involved in Christian initiation? The author, with his usual clarity, throws new light on the sacraments of baptism and confirmation.

THE NEW CREATION

Herbert McCabe, O.P.

10/6

We are learning to think of the Church sacramentally, but we still have great difficulty in making many of the new ideas our own. The author is well known for his ability to express much of modern theology in the language of every day.

SENSE, NONSENSE AND CHRISTIANITY

Hugo A. Meynell

12/6

Here a philosopher examines the way in which we use religious phrases. How many of the terms we use so glibly actually make sense?

NEW HORIZONS IN CATHOLIC THOUGHT

Philip Scharper and others

9/-

We hear a lot about renewal in the Church, but what does it amount to? What is new in scripture, theology, liturgy and Christian sociology? Here is a concise survey of the modern Christian revolution.

A THEOLOGY OF HISTORY

Hans Urs von Balthasar

10/6

Most of us have heard of Saving-History, but what is it? This famous theologian is concerned with the historical location, now and then, of the Incarnation.

SHEED & WARD

A HISTORY OF ISRAEL

Leonard Johnston

12/6

We tend to have a confused idea of what actually took place in Israel. The Old Testament is not a history book. Father Johnston, a scripture scholar, provides us with a historical background to the complex events narrated in the Bible.

UNDERSTANDING THE LORD'S PRAYER

H. van den Bussche

8/6

This, our common prayer, must be seen in the context of the Incarnation. Father van den Bussche is concerned with the openness of the Son to the Father and our understanding of sonship and fatherhood. Its simplicity and clarity makes this book a rare achievement by a scripture scholar.

KIERKEGAARD AS THEOLOGIAN

Louis Dupré

12/6

Kierkegaard's influence on modern religion and philosophy is widely acknowledged. If we want to understand much of what is taking place today, then the value of seeing the work of men like Kierkegaard properly is impossible to over estimate.

PAUL ON PREACHING

Jerome Murphy-O'Connor, O.P.

Preaching is a central activity in the Liturgy of the Word. Both clergy and laity must begin to take it seriously. Here is a study of the roots of much intelligent Christian thinking about the subject.

MAN, INDUSTRY AND SOCIETY

Rodger Charles

How can men in all their variety and equality, best co-operate in industrial society for the common and individual good? For all its professional competence this is not a book of a computer-brained technocrat; it is an expression of intense human concern for persons.
