The Biblical Doctrine of Initiation

R. E. O. WHITE

'This is a scholarly and important contribution to the current discussions on the sacrament of Christian Baptism.'

REV. PROF. H. H. ROWLEY

'The fruits of very wide reading and careful reflection are here presented clearly and cogently. Both Baptists and Paedobaptists will here find much food for thought.'

REV. DR. E. A. PAYNE

'The book is concerned with a detailed study of the New Testament teaching regarding 'becoming a Christian', 'joining the Church', baptism, confirmation, and the related issues. . . . It is a well-informed, thorough, vigorous but good-tempered consideration of questions of importance to all churches, and is presented in a way to deserve the attention of scholars of them all.'

REV. DR. HUGH MARTIN, C.H.

The Battle for the Soul

Aspects of Religious Conversion

OWEN BRANDON

This book has been written with the needs of the clergy and ministers in mind and as an aid for the many devoted lay people who serve the Church so faithfully as propagators of the faith. 'It will, I am sure, be of great help to those whose work is, in some specialist way, the work of evangelism.' THE BISHOP OF BRADFORD in his Foreword

The Incomparable Christ

GEORGE H. MORRISON

Morrison of Wellington's great sermons selected and introduced by George M. Docherty. 'It is this kind of preaching which can rightly claim to be an integral part of worship.'

HISTORY AND CHRISTIAN APOLOGETIC

T. A. Roberts

25s net

An important study in historical method as applied to the documents of the Faith. Mr Roberts writes particularly for those engaged in constructing an apologetic intelligible and attractive to thinking people of the present day.

STUDIES OF THE SPANISH MYSTICS

Volume 3

E. Allison Peers

32s 6d

This third and final volume of Professor Peers' monumental work bears all the author's deep insight into his subject and his felicity in interpretation and translation. The set of three volumes, 90s net.

THE USE OF LIGHTS IN CHRISTIAN WORSHIP

D. R. Dendy

Published for the Alcuin Club

'A careful, scholarly treatise.' Church Times

THE ANGLICAN COMMUNION

A. E. J. Rawlinson

6s 6d net

Few are as well qualified as Bishop Rawlinson to write of the particular ethos of the Anglican Communion, its relation to other Churches, and the progress made in the approaches to other Churches which are so characteristic and important a feature of present-day Anglicanism. A theologian, a diocesan bishop for 23 years, and a leading representative on several of the commissions concerned with reunion projects, Dr Rawlinson speaks with great knowledge and authority. Every Anglican conscious of his heritage should read this book.

HEBREWS AND THE SCRIPTURES

F. C. Syngé

7s 6d net

'It is unusual to find a book the thought of which is genuinely original, a book which has something really new to say. . . . This book is a most unusually important contribution to the study of Hebrews and to the study of the use of the O.T. This is certainly a book to be reckoned with.' Expository Times

IDEAS OF REVELATION

H. D. McDONALD

'The publisher is Macmillan, and this in itself is a sign of attested scholarship. . . . Dr Macdonald feels that the dominant issue of the eighteenth century—revelation—has not yet been given the prominence it deserves. His book will do much to fill the gap and inaugurate theological debate at the highest level. It may well usher in a new chapter in Christian thinking . . . this highly significant work.'—Life of Faith 30s.

CORPUS CHRISTI

DR. G. MACGREGOR

'The writer's analysis of the varying types of ecclesiology—Lutheran, Anglican, Separatist, and Reformed—is ably and helpfully presented. . . . Corpus Christi should fulfil an educative task among students, ministers and church members not only in Presbyterian but in wider confessional circles.'—Scotsman 30s
