

ANNOUNCING the first four volumes in
Interpretations of American History*

THE SOUTH AND THE SECTIONAL IMAGE

Dewey W. Grantham, Jr.

Readings comprising the broadest and most diversified single volume of an interpretive nature to focus on the post-Reconstruction South. Selections show how the South interacted with the larger nation—how the South reflected and differed from the rest of the country and how the southern region and larger nation affected one another. This theme is illustrated through discussion and analysis of some of the major sectional issues and areas of intersectional harmony during the period since the Civil War. 191 pages; $2.50; paper

RECONSTRUCTION

Staughton Lynd

This representative selection of the best writings on Reconstruction reveals the development of historical thinking over the better part of a century. The first to gather together such a group of writings, Professor Lynd provides a penetrating analysis of this body of literature and issues relevant to it in light of today's special concerns. This volume contains seventeen essays in a context that stresses the intentions of the North and the changing views of historians regarding the North's responsibility during the Reconstruction. 181 pages; $2.25; paper

THREE AMERICAN EMPIRES

John J. TePaske

This collection of readings in comparative colonial history, stressing English, French, and Spanish America, is designed as supplementary reading for the survey course in American history to acquaint beginning students with areas oftentimes neglected in American colonial history, Hispanic-American colonial history, and French-Canadian history, and to introduce more advanced students to the problems of comparative study. With the exception of a piece by Edmund Burke and another by Francis Parkman, the selections are by modern authorities in anthropology, history, literature, and sociology. Ready in May.

ANTE-BELLUM REFORM

David B. Davis

This first collection of historical writings dealing specifically with ante-bellum reform—the early reformers and reform movements—identifies some of the key historical problems and points of controversy. The text indicates the wide range of reformers' motives and objectives, considering both the laudable and fanatic manifestations of the movement. Demonstrating the impact of newer theories in psychology and sociology on historical studies, the essays and articles highlight some of the major problems in analyzing any social movement. Ready in May.

READINGS IN UNITED STATES ECONOMIC AND BUSINESS HISTORY

Edited by Ross M. Robertson and James L. Pate

This well balanced selection of 45 outstanding articles and 36 significant historical documents presents to the beginning student the realities of our developing economy in the context of controversy and change. Both sides of arguments are given wherever possible, and the substantial section of articles on methodology comprising Part I effectively reveals the changes in American economic history in the past fifty years.

THEORETICAL ISSUES IN INTERNATIONAL ECONOMICS

M. O. Clement, Richard L. Pfister, and Kenneth J. Rothwell

This volume for collateral reading is a unified, analytical survey of the contemporary literature on issues in the vanguard of widespread debate in the last two decades. The book is organized in two Parts: the first deals with selected topics in the "pure theory" of international trade and the second with monetary aspects of international economic theory. Each chapter treats a single issue and is self-contained. A realistic, up-to-date supplement for advanced undergraduate and graduate courses.

SOVIET ECONOMIC POWER

Its Organization, Growth, and Challenge
Second Edition

Robert W. Campbell

The Second Edition of SOVIET ECONOMIC POWER, like the First, explains the fundamentals of the Soviet economy in terms the student can readily grasp. Up to date and technically sound, the new edition evaluates Soviet economic performance, its growth and its deceleration, reflecting a changing perspective on the Soviet system and its prospects. For comparative systems courses and a highly suitable supplement for introductory economics.

Essays in Interpretation

Edited by STANLEY COBEN, Princeton University and FOREST G. HILL, University of Texas

Edited from the combined viewpoints of a historian and an economist, this fresh collection of thirty-six interpretive articles reflects recent scholarship on the leading issues in American economic history. Focusing on fundamental forces, problems and achievements, these essays reveal the extent to which economic development in the United States has been affected by "Western" values, and demonstrate the relevance that political, social, scientific, intellectual and business history have for the understanding of economic history.

LABOR IN CRISIS

The Steel Strike of 1919

DAVID BRODY, Ohio State University

"The volume is anchored in a thorough knowledge of all aspects of the steel industry, illustrating that its technology, scale, and labor practices made it the most representative of the new mass-production sector of the economy and the greatest challenge to the union movement."

Florence in Transition

Vol. I: The Decline of the Commune

By Marvin B. Becker

This is a study of the social and economic forces that upset the cultural equilibrium of late medieval Florence. Using the Florentine polis as a laboratory in which to examine the decline of late medieval culture and the emergence of the Renaissance, Dr. Becker surveys a wide range of activities—mercantile, juridical, political, and aesthetic—and explores the hopeful beliefs of poets, preachers, and chroniclers that the Florentine citizenry could be educated in the arts of good government. He then shows how these communal ideals gave way, under the stress of political and economic crises, to a series of futile resorts culminating in the expedient of despotism, out of which emerged at last a democratized regime that was intensely legalistic and puritanical. Marvin Becker is professor of history at the University of Rochester. $7.50

LAND AND WORK IN MEDIEVAL EUROPE

Selected Papers

MARC BLOCH. Translated by J. E. Anderson; Foreword by F. R. H. DuBoulay

The eight essays in this volume (all but one written during his Strasbourg period) display Marc Bloch's gift for luminous explanation and his ability to ask fresh questions of his subject matter. They also reveal Bloch's consummate mastery of medieval European history. $5.50

THE TECHNOCRAT

Ernest Mercier and the Rise of Technocracy in Modern France

RICHARD F. KUISEL

The effect of technocracy upon democratic institutions, economic development and national traditions has become a major issue in France, as in many other advanced countries. This study of Mercier's career suggests the scope of these effects. Mr. Kuisel has drawn upon the Mercier archives, notably adding to our understanding of French political behavior in the crucial decades between Versailles and Vichy. MAY. $6.00

The comparative economic analysis and economic history of the North Atlantic Community

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT OF THE NORTH ATLANTIC COMMUNITY

By DUDLEY DILLARD, University of Maryland

Analyzing the economic development of the North Atlantic economy from its Medieval origins to 1966, this book illustrates how our economy got where it is today in its transition from feudalism to capitalism—from the development of Adam Smith's classical capitalism to today's mixed economy. The unusually broad scope of this book includes the important developments experienced by both the U.S. and Europe in relation to the Common Market and the suggestions by both U.S. and European statesmen for an Atlantic Partnership. Applying economic analysis to economic history, it shows how the North Atlantic economy developed from a nucleus in Western Europe in the late Medieval and early modern period along rather similar lines in a similar type of economy. PLUS, a fresh approach to American economic history

GROWTH AND WELFARE IN THE AMERICAN PAST

By DOUGLASS NORTH, University of Washington

This brief, provocative, yet non-technical re-examination of the major issues in American economic history reveals the strengths and weaknesses of the much touted "new" economic history. Using the tools of economic theory and statistics, Dr. North presents the development of U.S. history with exceptional clarity and preciseness—from British Colonial history to current problems. 1966, 224 pp., cloth $5.95, paperbound $2.95

*The Fourth Biennial
Edwin Francis Gay Memorial Prize in Economic History*

The Economic History Association announces the Fourth Biennial Prize competition for the best unpublished manuscript in the general field of economic history. The award, called the Edwin Francis Gay Memorial Prize in Economic History, will be $1,500.00 plus payment of any costs that may be required to assure publication of the prize-winning manuscript. Funds for the prize and for any publication costs will be contributed by the Council on Research in Economic History.

The judges will take into account both the intrinsic scholarly qualities of the submittals and the felicity with which findings are presented. Preference will be given to manuscripts which combine breadth of enquiry and insight; which open up new areas of scholarship; which explore analytically major changes or developments in economic processes or institutions. No award will be made if, in the opinion of the judges, no manuscript is of acceptable quality.

The competition is open to any American or Canadian scholar. Manuscripts must be in the English language and ought not to exceed one hundred fifty thousand words. Two copies should be submitted unless exemption from this requirement shall have been granted by the Secretary of the Economic History Association for special and compelling reasons. Each competing manuscript should be unsigned and contain no internal evidence of authorship, but should be accompanied by a signed letter that can be removed or detached before the manuscript is submitted to the judges.

Manuscripts should be sent to Professor Theodore F. Marburg, Secretary of the Economic History Association, Department of Economics, Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and they must be received before July 1, 1968, in order to be eligible for the 1968 competition. The judges for this Fourth Biennial Prize competition will be announced in a later number of THE JOURNAL OF ECONOMIC HISTORY.

THE ECONOMIC HISTORY ASSOCIATION

The Economic History Association was organized in 1940. Its purpose is to encourage research and teaching in the history of economic activity and of economic thought. It seeks to cooperate with societies devoted to the study of agricultural, industrial, and business history. It aims to bring together economists, historians, statisticians, geographers, and others who find that the story of economic change throws light on their field of interest or is enriched by their contribution. Membership is open to all who are interested in the history of economic life in all its phases in the United States and other countries.

The JOURNAL OF ECONOMIC HISTORY is published for the Economic History Association by the Graduate School of Business Administration of New York University. Correspondence concerning contributions to the Journal should be addressed to the editorial office: Hugh G. J. Aitken, Editor, Department of Economics, Amherst College, Amherst, Massachusetts 01002. Applications for membership should be addressed to Herman E. Krooss, Treasurer, in care of New York University, 100 Trinity Place, New York, New York 10006.
