Feminist Perspectives on Contemporary International Law

Between Resistance and Compliance?
Edited by Sari Kouvo and Zoe Pearson

The essays in this volume analyse feminism's positioning vis-à-vis international law and the current paradigms of international law. The analysis is clustered around three themes: the first part, theory and method, looks at how feminist perspectives on international law have developed and seeks to introduce new theoretical and methodological tools. The second part, national and international security, focuses on how feminists have situated themselves in relation to the current discourses of 'crisis', the post-9/11 NGO 'industry' and the changing discourses of violence against women. The third part, global and local justice, addresses some of the emerging trends in international law, focusing especially on transitional justice, state-building, trafficking and economic globalisation.

Dr Sari Kouvo is Senior Program Associate with the International Centre for Transitional Justice and Co-Director of the Afghanistan Analysts Network. Dr Zoe Pearson is a lecturer in the School of Law, Keele University.

Constitutionalism, Multilevel Trade Governance and International Economic Law

Edited by Christian Joerges and Ernst-Ulrich Petersmann

This is a book about the ever more complex legal networks of transnational economic governance structures and their legitimacy problems. Two complementary strands of theorising are expounded. One argues that globalisation and the universal recognition of human rights are transforming the intergovernmental "society of states" into a cosmopolitan community of citizens which requires more effective constitutional safeguards for protecting human rights and consumer welfare in the national and international governance and legal regulation of international trade. The second emphasises the dependence of the functioning of international markets and liberal trade on governance arrangements which respond credibly to safety and environmental concerns of consumers, traders, political and non-governmental actors. Enquiries into the generation of international standards and empirical analyses of legalization and judicialisation practices form part of this agenda.

Christian Joerges is Professor of Economic Law and Ernst-Ulrich Petersmann is Professor of International and European Law, both at the European University Institute, Florence.

British Overseas Territories Law

Ian Hendry and Susan Dickson

This book provides a comprehensive and up-to-date description of the constitutional and international status of 14 British overseas territories, and examines the main elements of their modern governance in law and practice. It describes their constitutional position and relationship with the United Kingdom, and goes on to deal with legislative, executive and judicial authority and controls, the sources of law and human rights protection in the territories. It concludes with a description of the means of terminating British sovereignty. An Annex sets out key features of each territory in turn, describing briefly its history, status, constitutional structure, courts, sources of law and economy.

Ian Hendry is a Constitutional Adviser and Susan Dickson is a Legal Counsellor both to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Transnational Administrative Rule-Making

Performance, Legal Effects and Legitimacy
Edited by Olaf Dilling, Martin Herberg and Gerd Winter

In an age of globalisation, many regulatory problems lie beyond the reach of the nation state. Solutions have to be found which extend beyond territorial borders. The present volume shows how transnational administrative governance leads to a paradox: while it performs well in many areas, providing solutions that are not achievable by state and international law, its informality profoundly lacks legitimacy in a strict sense. This book explores, from a socio-legal perspective, a broad range of legitimisation mechanisms of different types and quality and shows that there can be a fit between certain forms of legitimisation and specific governance constellations. In doing so, the book adds an empirical layer to our understanding of transnational administrative governance.

Olaf Dilling is research associate, Martin Herberg is senior research fellow, and Gerd Winter is Professor of Public Law and the Sociology of Law all at the School of Law, University of Bremen.

Multi-Sourced Equivalent Norms in International Law

Edited by Tomer Broude and Yuval Shany

Recent decades have witnessed an impressive process of normative development in international law. As a result of these developments, international relations have now reached an unprecedented level of normative density and intensity, but they have also given rise to the phenomenon of 'fragmentation'.

The debate over the fragmentation of international law has largely focused on conflicts. However, the same developments that have given rise to greater conflict and contradiction in international law, have also produced a growing amount of normative equivalence between rules in different fields of international law. This book focuses on such instances of normative parallelism, developing the concept of 'multisourced equivalent norms' in international law, with contributions by leading international law experts exploring the legal and political implications of the concept in a variety of contexts that span the full spectrum of international legal norms and institutions.

Tomer Broude is a Senior lecturer in Law and Yuval Shany is the Hersch Lauterpacht Chair in Public International Law, both at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Foreword

From its beginning, the Society established as one of its primary functions the regular collection, publication, and dissemination of important international legal materials. These materials were first published as a section of the American Journal of International Law, and since the 1960s as the current stand-alone International Legal Materials publication. The publication met a critical need in that earlier era—when access to primary source legal materials was limited. Today, access to information is no longer a problem. Indeed, our challenge is too much information. And therein we find a continuing mission for International Legal Materials.

The dramatic growth in the international legal field makes it nearly impossible for scholars and practitioners—let alone the general public—to keep abreast of the most important international legal developments. Fortunately they can rely on our staff and Editorial Advisory Committee to sift through the vast array of documents, identify those that are truly significant, and highlight them in International Legal Materials and our bi-weekly electronic bulletin, International Law in Brief. The Society's periodic ASIL Insights provide additional analysis of particularly high-profile developments.

Beginning in 2007, we have been supplementing all documents published in International Legal Materials with an introductory note from one of the many experts ASIL counts among its members. These notes provide summaries of the documents and key insights into their significance. In this volume we feature notes by Laurel S. Terry, Ian A. Laird, Charbel A. Moarbes, Viren Mascarenhas, Laurie R. Blank, David A. Wallace, Anastasia Telesetsky, and Tom Syring. We are extremely grateful to these authors, and we are confident that you will value their contributions as well.

Please send us your comments and suggestions as we continue our efforts to meet the evolving needs of the international legal community.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Andersen
Chair
Editorial Advisory Committee

Statement of Editorial Policy

International Legal Materials is a core publication of The American Society of International Law that reproduces texts of documents reflecting the broad scope and evolution of international law. The range of covered subjects has expanded from traditional topics such as international organizations, jurisdiction, and international trade to include developments in fields such as intellectual property, environmental law, nuclear non-proliferation, human rights, and international criminal law.

International Legal Materials serves as both a bi-monthly information service and a widely recognized archive of international law documents for a diverse, global community of legal scholars, government officials, private practitioners and institutions sharing a common interest in international law. To meet the varied demands of such a readership, documents are selected from world-wide sources on the basis of their present and future legal significance.

International Legal Materials is prepared for publication in Washington, D.C., with both the advice of the Editorial Advisory Committee and the assistance of Corresponding Editors around the world. In order to reproduce the texts of selected documents under tight production schedules, the best available source is used, whether electronic or printed.

Guidelines for Submission of Documents

The ILM Office welcomes any effort to bring suitable documents to the Office's attention. Electronic files or web links are required for publication, although printed texts can be used for initial deliberations regarding republication.

The authenticity (i.e. official version status) of submitted documents must be easily verifiable. This is facilitated by submitting files or print versions which are clearly attributable to the original source, or by providing links to documents on the original source's official website.

If the official version of a document is not available in English, an unofficial translation is acceptable. The original text must accompany such a translation.

Introductory Notes

Introductory Notes are brief articles from one to three pages in length which are intended to provide background information for a document reproduced in ILM.

For example, an Introductory Note for a treaty might include a short history of the negotiations, the dates of signature, and entry into force. An Introductory Note for legislation would give its history and international significance, while one for judicial proceedings would provide the background of the case.

The views of authors in Introductory Notes are their own and do not necessarily reflect those of either the American Society of International Law or the Managing Editor.

Acceptance of Materials and Corrections

Print submissions cannot be returned. Translators and others submitting material will be notified of the acceptance of their document for publication.

Once a translation or Introductory Note has been accepted for reproduction, the American Society of International Law will send a publication agreement to the author.

Translators and Introductory Note Authors shall be acknowledged in International Legal Materials.

In some cases minor editorial or typographical alterations may be made without contacting the author or translator. Major corrections will be sent to the author or translator for approval. Corrected Introductory Notes or translations must be returned within the time specified.
