British Actuarial Journal, Vol. 22, part 1, pp. 1–1. © Institute and Faculty of Actuaries 2017. This is an Open Access article, distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution licence (http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/), which permits unrestricted re-use, distribution, and reproduction in any medium, provided the original work is properly cited. doi:10.1017/S1357321717000046

Editorial

This issue marks a milestone in the development of BAJ. It is the first issue to be produced under the new Open Access arrangements. All articles in BAJ from this issue onwards are now freely available to anyone who has access to the internet. Members of the IFoA have always had free access but, until now, others have had to pay for this privilege. The IFoA has removed this barrier as part of its commitment to furthering the advancement of actuarial science.

Researchers from all disciplines can now access this and all future issues of BAJ. This will be of particular benefit to researchers in disciplines related to the profession such as medical researchers, statisticians or demographers. In addition, members of the profession will benefit from the open availability of their research to others, which in turn will enhance the visibility and reputation of the profession.

We have also made another change; henceforth, the BAJ will be published in online format (PDF and HTML) only. This will enable us to publish issues more quickly and to make better use of colour and modern graphical techniques.

More details about Open Access, including Copyright and Licensing issues are available on the IFoA's website.

Cathy Robertson Editor British Actuarial Journal