CATCH-22: A Dramatization

Joseph Heller

Here is the author's own dramatization of the novel that since its publication has sold more than 8,000,000 copies. "Wildly original, brutally gruesome, vulgarly, bitterly, savagely funny."—The New York Times

A Delta Book $2.45

CARL THEODOR DREYER'S JESUS

The original and unexpurgated screenplay of Carl Dreyer's unrealized masterwork—the life on film of Jesus Christ, a project that the great Danish filmmaker spent the last twenty years of his life planning. Three essays by Dreyer accompany the script, as well as a review of his career, an outline of his working methods, and tributes to him by Jean Renoir, Federico Fellini, and François Truffaut.

THE MAKING OF NO, NO NANETTE

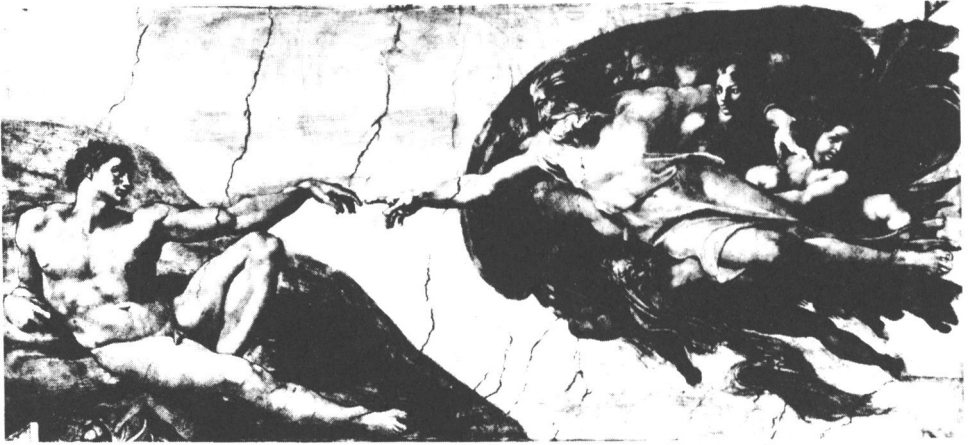

Don Dunn

The scandalous backstage saga of the making of a Broadway hit. "We see the rehearsals, the infighting, the heads rolling... a delicious cat fight; it makes one wonder how shows ever do get on Broadway."—The New York Times

Would you spend $5 for a magazine that shows you how to walk on water, raise the dead and make angels of mere mortals?

No miracle is too great for the behind-the-scenes professional.

Yours are the costumes and scenery that set Shaw's Inferno ablaze. Whose lighting brings out the best in Olivier. Whose direction keeps the freshman class from falling flat on its face.

And often you manage on what seems little more than a borrowed shoelace and your own creativity.

So to make the task a bit easier, there's THEATRE CRAFTS. The magazine with the professional know-how that helps you turn the impossible into the beautiful.

In each issue you'll discover a host of how-to articles on lighting, set design, make-up, costuming, music, film and so much more!

THEATRE CRAFTS is diagrams and drawings. Candid, no-nonsense dialogues with backstage masters. And the best of the best from their decades of professional experience.

And it's all yours. In the magazine that's all yours.

THEATRE CRAFTS. Especially written for the people who never take a curtain call.

RECENT THEATRE CRAFTS ARTICLES:

- The Philosophy of Costuming
- Street Theatre
- Face Painting and Furnishings
- Who Goes to an American Play?
- Creative Recycling Is a Budget Boon
- Theatre for Theatre
- Managing a Regional Theatre

"Caravaggio" Produced by Playhouse-In-The-Park, Cincinnati, Ohio. Directed by Word Baker. Sceneography by Jo Mielziner.

Go ahead. Try and paint scenery like this.

The last one who planted this type of material was Michelangelo Caravaggio, the Baroque painter who died in 1610.

So when Jo Mielziner had to design scenery for a play about Caravaggio, he didn't try to re-paint the artist's work. Instead, he used scenic projections of his own designs . . . and fragments from Caravaggio's canvases. The results, in the words of one reviewer, "provided flexibility for the actors and directors and fluidity to the production."

To get the effects he wanted, Mielziner used 20 Kliegl scenic projectors and 6 Kliegl-adapted Carousel projectors. A Kliegl SCR dimming system was used to control all of the projection equipment.

By adroit use of the projections and equipment, some scenes were played without any additional lighting. The actors could be seen in the light (or the reflected light) of the projections. You don't have to be Jo Mielziner, of course, to use scenic projections. But you can use the same sources Jo Mielziner turned to for equipment Ideas, hardware and service.

It's easy to get complete data on Kliegl's line of scenic projection equipment. For fast service, write, call either office directly.

FOOTWEAR:

A Short History of European and American Shoes
by Iris Brooke

A leading authority on historical costume and particularly costume for the stage, Miss Brooke here produces a witty survey of shoe fashions, enlivened by her own drawings. From Roman sandals found in the mud of the River Thames, to the extravagances of the 1970s, she shows how footwear is shaped by practical considerations and by other arts. For the theatre designer particularly she has given selected patterns drawn from existing specimens.

UNDERWEAR: A History
by Elizabeth Ewing

As every costume designer, stage director, and actress knows, what is underneath a costume affects unalterably the appearance of what is on top. Although primarily for costumers and students of the history of fashion, this book also becomes a history of the emancipation of women, in which underclothes played a primary role.

MICRO-SET 96

The new generation Memory System for the now generation theatre...

Micro Set 96 is a new generation memory control system designed to offer the flexibility and convenience of memory type controls to all performing arts applications.

Priced to compete with three-scene and five-scene preset equipment, it incorporates the features and capabilities formerly associated with systems four to five times more costly. Further, Micro Set 96 can be handled by just one operator, with complete control of all functions for even the most complex productions.

Another advantage of the Micro Set 96 is that its design allows it to be used in conjunction with older systems or those built by other manufacturers.

THEATRICALITY

A Study of Convention in the Theatre and in Social Life

By Elisabeth Burns. The author incisively explores the familiar metaphors we draw from the theatre and apply to human behavior from a vision that sees, simultaneously, life as a stage and drama as a representation of social life. Examining the conventions, both within and without the theatre, the author explores theatricality and its inherent presence in all human behavior.

ADVENTURES IN CONTEMPORARY THEATER
BY JOHN LAHR

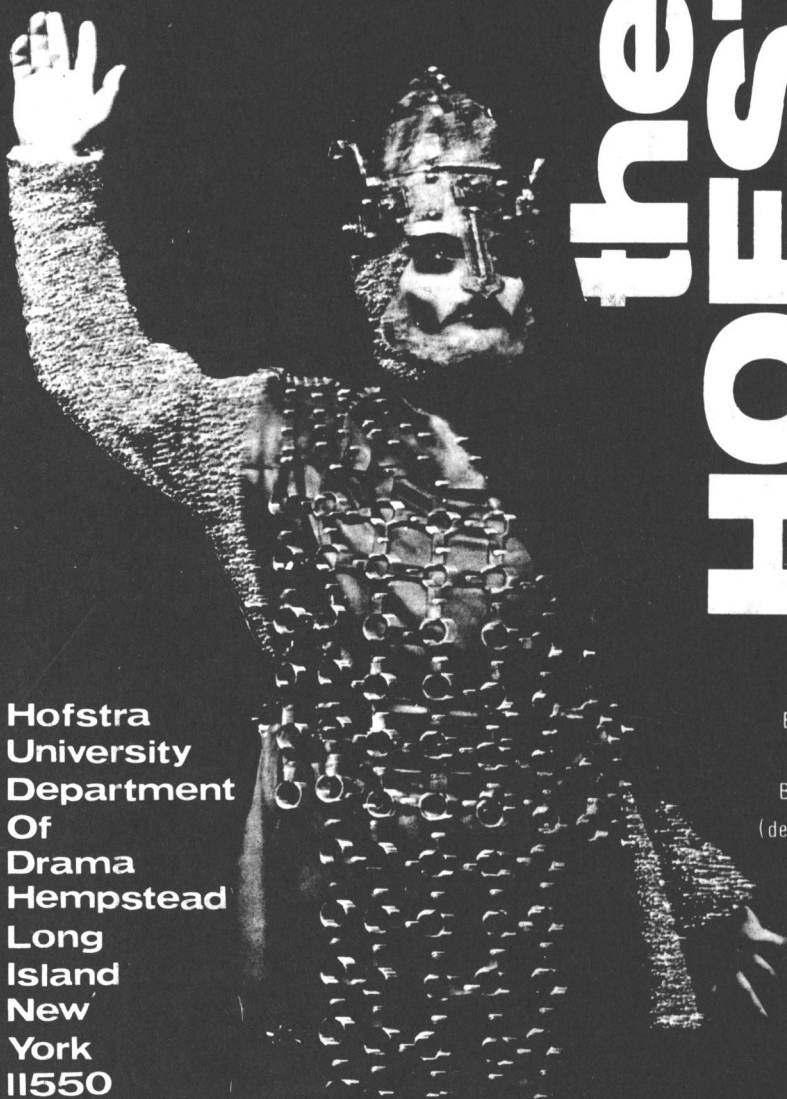

Studs Terkel calls him "the best young critic in the United States." Now John Lahr is expanding his scope to the world. Specifically, the state of world theater. Focusing on such diverse subjects as Andre Gregory's production of Alice in Wonderland, Maurice Chevalier, the unconventional theater that marks a return to true theater, Orlando Furioso, Sam Shepard, Neil Simon, the moribund state of Broadway, and Woody Allen, "John Lahr's marvelous book is not about theater; it is theater."

Inside a new form ENVIRONMENTAL THEATER

By Richard Schechner

Creating and using space for audience as well as player participation has made Environmental Theater one of the most important movements in theater today. Richard Schechner, founder of The Performance Group which was responsible for such innovative drama as "Dionysus in 69," "Makbeth," "Commune," and "Tooth of Crime," discusses ancient sources and special techniques of what has been for many a shocking and confusing approach to theater. Illustrated with photographs and drawings.

TWO PLAYS

It's about technology. And the media. And the necessity to fight "psychic capitalism." It's mad. And inventive. And frightening. And exciting. It's AC/DC, a play that has acquired a near-legendary status abroad and in America. Andre Gregory calls it "the most important play in English since Beckett." Harold Pinter says: "Unique . . . a work of ferocious and finely controlled power."

The Cart and the Trumpet

The Plays of George Bernard Shaw

By Maurice Valency

464 pages • $12.50

Oxford University Press
200 Madison Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10016

The greatest and most prolific modern playwright, George Bernard Shaw was one of the most complex and elusive personalities the theater has known. Like Shaw's plays, this study is both erudite and entertaining. It skillfully integrates Shaw's life and work with the artistic, social, and intellectual currents of his time.

Professor Valency offers a detailed examination of Shaw's major dramatic works from Widowers' Houses to The Apple Cart, paying particular attention to Man and Superman, St. Joan, and Heartbreak House. He also explores the effects of Shaw's intricate relationships with his mother, his wife, his mistresses, and two of the most famous actresses of the day, Ellen Terry and Mrs. Patrick Campbell.
