REDGRAVE announces the publication of a unique quarterly review journal designed for the business and financial communities in general and the securities field in particular—and for academic specialists in these areas. THE WALL STREET REVIEW OF BOOKS will publish thoughtful, in-depth reviews of scholarly and popular books—mainly trade and professional works—in the fields of economics, business, finance, banking, economic and business history, and other relevant areas. Novels and foreign-language publications will be reviewed, as will textbooks, reprints, and research monographs.

Lengthy, critical review-essays by academic specialists and members of the securities and financial communities will provide useful synopses as well as in-depth evaluations. Reviews will appear within six months or less after original book publication.

WSRB will appear in March, June, September, and December. Each issue will include approximately 160 printed pages in a 6" x 9" paperbound format.

Subscription rates for individuals in the U.S. (outside the U.S. please add $2.00):

1 yr. $15 2 yrs. $28 3 yrs. $40

Subscriptions are on a volume-year (4-issue) basis only; Shipment cannot be made without payment.

In a fully updated outgrowth of his previous book, The American Business System, Thomas C. Cochran explores the new social implications of American business. Mr. Cochran, Benjamin Franklin Professor of History, University of Pennsylvania, emphasizes that while the purpose of business is to produce and distribute goods and services for profit, business has great importance too as a social institution. He points to the automobile and the PR man, and their effects beyond the business office.

With neither hostility nor apology, Cochran's analysis of the current state of corporate affairs will provide provocative reading for every businessman and businesswoman from the board room to the mail room. $11.95

The War Industries Board

Business-Government Relations during World War I

ROBERT D. CUFF

Robert Cuff examines the goals and techniques of the businessmen who organized the War Industries Board, the chief agency of coordination in America's industrial mobilization for World War I. He shows how the War Industries Board interacted with business groups in the industrial economy and challenges the traditional interpretation of Bernard Baruch's role in industrial mobilization.

THE HISTORY OF AMERICAN MANAGEMENT

Selections from the Business History Review

Edited & with an Introduction by

JAMES P. BAUGHMAN
Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration

Original essays which view in historical perspective the key problems faced by managers of large-scale American enterprise. The emphasis is on "Big Business" covering the period from 1850 to 1950. Focuses on volatile questions and dramatic incidents in the business world. The essays give substantive information about historical events and provide for discussion of the real world versus the ideal world. Presents sufficient data to provide stimulating discussions about each selection.
