The Untouchable as Himself

Ideology, Identity, and Pragmatism among the Lucknow Chamars

R.S. KHARE

Professor Khare offers the first major, comprehensive study of what it means to be an Untouchable in contemporary India. Based on a study of the Chamars of Lucknow, the work provides a sensitive description of the Untouchables' cultural ideology and its role in helping them confront their everyday dilemmas and conflicts. $34.50

The Warrior Merchants

Textiles, Trade, and Territory in South India

MATTISON MINES

This work traces the role of the weaver-merchants in the organization of south Indian states and society from medieval times to the present day, showing that there have been periods when they rivaled the status and power of the agriculturalists. It offers an important corrective to the standard picture of Indian society that emphasizes its agrarian economy and parochial outlook. $34.50

Inequality Among Brothers

RUBIE S. WATSON

Using historical documents and evidence gathered in the field, Rubie Watson provides a social history of the 600 year old Chinese lineage village of Ha Tsuen in the New Territories of Hong Kong, and demonstrates that lineage played a crucial role in the evolution of the community from a few scattered households in the fourteenth century into a regional power from the eighteenth century onwards. JACQUES GERNET

"Gernet travels from the neolithic age to the Cultural Revolution of 1966, and along the way his restless and eclectic gaze takes in a wondrous array of detail... his summaries are skillful and precise"—New York Review of Books

"When Jacques Gernet's Le Monde chinois appeared in 1972, it received an enthusiastic welcome as the most useful and comprehensive history of China attempted by a single author without collaborators... the English language version will serve readers with a textbook of unchallenged value."—Modern Asian Studies Cloth $42.50 Paper $16.95

Japan Today

ROGER BUCKLEY

This introductory survey of contemporary Japan places the country's postwar political development and economic advances against a background of social and cultural stability and discusses the gradual changes in Japan's external relations that occurred as the country's increasing industrial power forced a reassessment of earlier policies. It also shows both the positive factors behind Japan's 'recent success story' and points to the political and social problems which frequently receive less attention in popular versions of contemporary Japan. A Mirror for Socialism

Soviet Criticisms of China

Gilbert Rozman

In this revealing study of the Soviet debate on Chinese socialism, Gilbert Rozman examines the writings on peasants, workers, the intelligentsia, national minorities, officials, and scholars denied the right to criticize socialism in their own country. He illuminates a striking similarity between what Soviet scholars write about China and what they criticize as "anti-communist" when it is issued by the West concerning the Soviet Union. $26.50

THE FALL OF THE HOUSE OF NIRE

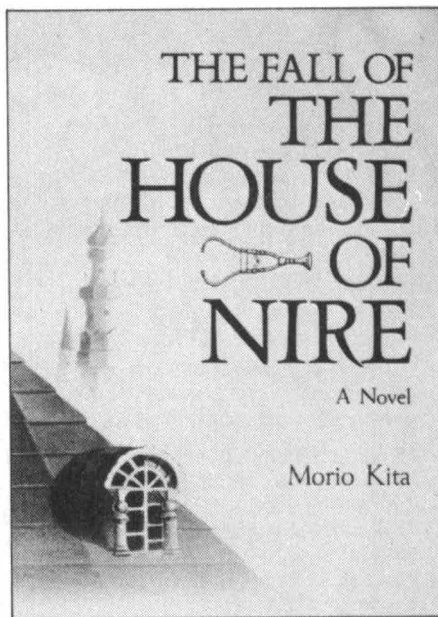

By MORIO KITA

Translated by Dennis Keene

This prize-winning family saga, genuinely moving and funny, chronicles the further adventures of the Nire family, a story so successfully begun in the recently published, THE HOUSE OF NIRE. The Nires run a Tokyo mental hospital and this continuation of their lives and times deals with the period of World War II and the Occupation.

Hailed by reviewers as a "comic masterpiece", THE FALL OF THE HOUSE OF NIRE exudes "... a warm satirical glow ... (the) first one of its many unexpected pleasures."

WORDS IN CONTEXT

A Japanese Perspective on
Language and Culture

By TAKAO SUZUKI

Translated by Akira Miura

How do people learn a language whose culture is completely different from their own? In this thorough analysis, one of Japan's foremost linguists addresses himself to the question. He describes in depth the problems of word definition and meaning and the misunderstandings that arise when one learns only the words of another language without their cultural framework.

A New Microfilm Collection—

Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files

JAPAN

Internal Affairs, 1945-1954

The official surrender of Japan on September 2, 1945 brought to a close the bloody and prolonged war in the Pacific and marked the beginning of a decade of unparalleled change for the Japanese. Now published for the first time, these U.S. State Department Central Files on Japanese internal affairs record those changes in exhaustive and intimate detail, providing an "inside" perspective unmatched by other sources. By making available over 100,000 pages of special reports, confidential correspondence, interviews, minutes of meetings, and translated documents, this new collection is certain to make a contribution to future studies of Japanese history.

Firsthand accounts from diplomatic posts in Japan, supplemented by other reports from U.S. and Allied agencies, offer vivid and immediate testimony of Japan's struggle for adjustment in the postwar world. A few of the many topics given detailed consideration in these reports include the following:

- Allied Occupation: Cooperation and Conflict
- Demilitarization and Democratization
- A New Constitution
- Growth of Political Parties
- Trade Unionism
- Agrarian Reform and Land Reclamation
- The Role of Women in Political life
- Reforms in Education, Business, and Police
- Economic Recovery and Reforms
- The Japanese Press
- The Japanese Left
- The Role of the Emperor
- Law and Civil Liberties
- Public Health and Population Problems
- Status of Koreans in Japan
- Japanese Religious Groups
- The Japanese Communist Party
- Japan's Financial Outlook
- Organization of Welfare Services
- Survey of Labor Unions and Federations
- Survey of Political Trends in Japan
- American Assistance to Japan
- The Japanese Supreme Court
- The Japanese Standard of Living
- Growth of Anti-Occupation Sentiment
- Status of U.N. Forces in Japan
- MacArthur's Political Reign
- Rehabilitation of Japanese Leaders
- Soviet-Japanese Trade
- Japanese Defense Planning

American diplomatic reports on these and many other aspects of Japanese internal affairs portray not only Japan's political and economic recovery but present as well a striking picture of the forces and interests shaping the modern international order. Now available in a convenient microfilm edition, the State Department's Central files on Japanese internal affairs will be an essential addition to any library's holdings.

EAGLE AGAINST THE SUN

The American War with Japan

RONALD H. SPECTOR, University of Alabama

Spector mines newly declassified intelligence files, British and American archives, Japanese documents and scholarship, and the research and memoirs of scholars, political figures, and military men to present the most authoritative and compelling brief history ever written of the American war in the Pacific. "Spector has done the impossible and done it with dazzling brilliance...a superbly readable, insightful, factual, gripping, unbiased one-volume history of the American-Japanese war."—Clay Blair, Washington Post Book World

JOURNEY TO THE FORBIDDEN CHINA

STEVEN W. MOSHER

Mosher recounts the ill-fated excursion that led to his premature departure from the People's Republic, describing in vivid detail a remote and isolated countryside whose peasantry remains mired in backwardness—all but untouched by education or medicine or by amenities as basic as fertilizer, mechanical tools, electricity, or running water. A forbidden journey into one of the darkest corners of the modern world, this intensely provocative book shatters forever the myth of Mao's peasant revolution.

ADVICE AND SUPPORT

The Early Years of the U.S. Army in Vietnam, 1941-1960

RONALD H. SPECTOR

Drawing on recently declassified Pentagon, CIA, and State Dept. files, Spector lucidly documents the U.S. Army's early misperceptions of the Communist threat in Vietnam, its unshakable faith in a firepower-heavy style of warfare against guerilla tactics, and its enduring conviction that ARVN's consistently poor performance was attributable merely to insufficient training and military spirit. "Essential for an understanding of deepening American involvement [in Vietnam] and illustrative of the truism that there is no dividing line between political and military affairs."—Foreign Affairs

American Samurai Captain L.L. Janes and Japan F.G. Notehelfer

Hired by a feudal lord to train young Samurai warriors in early Meiji Japan, West Point graduate L.L. Janes also led many of his students to Christianity, but his particular Christian vision soon left him as much at odds with the missionary community as with Japanese traditionalists.

"None of the studies in Japanese on Janes has mined the Janes papers as carefully as Notehelfer's work, and none has provided such a full-scale 'life,' linking Civil War American society with modernizing Meiji Japan. Around the unusual, and fascinating, career of Captain Janes the author provides a coherent view of the transformation of Japan from feudal to imperial state."

Family and Population in East Asian History

Edited by Susan B. Hanley and Arthur P. Wolf. The 13 papers in this volume represent a concerted effort to place the historical demography of East Asia on a firm quantitative basis. They explore a wide range of Chinese and Japanese documentary sources and raise new and substantial questions about both family history and population change. The most important finding is that when viewed from a demographic perspective, China and Japan are seen to be fundamentally different societies, refuting Malthus's argument that "the state of Japan resembles in so many respects that of China, that a particular consideration of it would lead into many repetitions." What makes this particularly intriguing is that the difference between these two Asian civilizations is shown to be similar to the difference between Western Europe and Eastern Europe. Contributors: Ansley J. Coale, Susan B. Hanley, Stevan Harrell, Akira Hayami, Ts'ui-jung Liu, Dana Morris, Burton Pasternak, Sophie Sa, Yōichiro Sasaki, Robert J. Smith, Thomas C. Smith, Arthur P. Wolf, and Kozo Yamamura. $32.50

P'eng P'ai and the Hai-Lu-feng Soviet

Fernando Galbiati. The story of P'eng P'ai (1896–1929), founder and guiding spirit of China's first Communist enclave, shows that an organized peasantry and the Chinese Communist Party were linked as early as the 1920's. Indeed, P'eng P'ai's experience in Hai-Lu-feng epitomizes almost every ingredient of the later Maoist formula for victory in the countryside, as well as many of the difficulties Communist leaders would face in the 1930's and 1940's. The author emphasizes events in Hai-Lu-feng, but he also traces developments at higher levels of the CCP and the Kuomintang, events that would lead to P'eng P'ai's execution at the personal command of Chiang Kai-shek.

"Galbiati's impressive work is not only the definitive, in-depth study of P'eng P'ai's revolutionary career, it is also a classic analysis of Chinese peasant mobilization."—Lucien Bianco. $42.50

CHINA'S PUPPETS

"The legends, historical facts, illustrations, and photographs in this book shed light on an art that has been neglected in our literature."

Beate Gordon (Performing arts director for the Asian Society)

"This book, which explores China's 2,000-year-old tradition is very significant to my profession."

Jim Henson (Creator of the Muppets)

"Contains a good deal of data on modern Chinese Puppetry that hasn't been published in English before."

Bennet Bronson (Curator of Oriental Art,
Field Museum of Natural History)

About the author: Roberta H. Stalberg, author of best seller CHINA'S CRAFTS, editor and translator, has lectured widely on Chinese Art throughout the U.S. She holds a Ph.D. in Chinese language and literature from Ohio State University. Rituals and Symbol in the Legitimation of the T'ang Dynasty

Howard J. Wechsler

After their conquest of the Chinese empire in A.D. 618, the early rulers of the T'ang dynasty sought to legitimate their authority. This book, which investigates the way various state rituals and political symbols were employed to attain this goal, is the first to view ritual as an important political tool of dynasties and a way of understanding traditional Chinese civilization.

"This is a sound and original piece of scholarship, in many ways a pioneering work."—Charles A. Peterson $27.00

Capitalism and Confrontation in Sumatra's Plantation Belt, 1870-1979

Ann Laura Stoler

As an important locus of foreign agricultural enterprise in the Third World, North Sumatra has seen overt and sometimes violent confrontation between capital and labor. This penetrating ethnographic history analyzes how popular resistance actively molded both the form of this colonial expansion and the social, economic, and political experience of the Javanese laboring communities. $22.00

DENG XIAOPING

The Marxist Road to the Forbidden City

By Ching Hua Lee

WITH AN INTRODUCTION BY PROFESSOR JAMES HSIUNG

The first definitive biography of the Chinese leader. Dr. Lee traces Deng's political career from his youthful activism in France, through two wars and the Cultural Revolution, to his ultimate accession to power. Here is the man in all his complexity -- warrior and diplomat, radical and "capitalist roader," peasant and demigod. Deng's relationship with Mao, his ability to survive three purges and his present economic policy are thoroughly analyzed.

WESTERN ECONOMISTS AND EASTERN SOCIETIES

Agents of Change in South Asia, 1950-1970

George Rosen

George Rosen tells the story of the economists who went to India and Pakistan between 1950 and 1970 to assist in economic training and to provide assistance to the countries' own economic policymakers. In WESTERN ECONOMISTS AND EASTERN SOCIETIES he examines their experiences for the light they shed upon the interaction of intellectual communities from radically different cultures, and he explores the effect these experiences had upon the theory and practice of economic development in the West.

WESTERN ECONOMISTS AND EASTERN SOCIETIES is a fascinating and provocative book on the problems of international relations and American policy as they relate to South Asia, on the issues of intellectual exchange between cultures, and on the interrelationship of economics and other disciplines in policy-influencing and institution-building efforts.
