

FOREWORD

On the occasion of the founding of this quarterly review our President has expressed, with admirable clarity, the thoughts and feelings that are shared by all members of the Canadian Philosophical Association.

Having benefited greatly from fraternal associations at meetings of our society, we now employ another, supplementary, medium of communication. We hope to converse not only with our present colleagues but also to extend the range of our symposium, to include all lovers of wisdom. This philosophical review is Canadian. But Canada is part of a wide, wide world. Therefore, we welcome the participation of all who respect the philosophical way of life.

In this present moment of exaltation we are moving swiftly from the luminous shadow of the past into a future which is bright with promise.

A.H. Johnson, Vice-President
