

Dora Bruder

PATRICK MODIANO

Translated from the French by Joanna Kilmartin

In 1988 Patrick Modiano stumbled across an ad in Paris Soir from late 1941. Placed by the parents of a 15-year-old Jewish girl who had run away from her convent school, this ad set Modiano on a quest to find out everything he could about Dora Bruder. The result is a montage of creative and historical material that unfolds as a moving rumination on loss.

Berlin Metropolis

Jews and the New Culture, 1890–1918

EDITED BY EMILY D. BILSKI

Between 1890 and 1918 the city of Berlin became an international center for radical new ideas in the visual, performing, and literary arts. Berlin Metropolis vividly documents the many ways that Jewish artists and entrepreneurs participated in this burst of artistic creativity and promoted the emergence of modernism on the international scene.
