Journal of the Society for American Music

Journal of the Society for American Music (JSAM) is an international, peer-reviewed journal that explores all aspects of American music and music in the Americas. JSAM is dedicated to supporting scholarship that transcends disciplinary boundaries, cutting across historical musicology, music theory, ethnomusicology, cultural theory, and American studies. JSAM encourages international dialogue across disciplines. The journal features articles, reviews of books, recordings, and multimedia items, and explorations of special topics.

Twila Bakker completed her doctorate in musicology at Bangor University, Wales, focusing on Steve Reich's Counterpoint pieces. Her current research addresses digital sketch studies utilizing Reich's compositional output as a case study. Bakker is a committee member of the Society for Minimalist Music and holds previous degrees in music and history from the University of Victoria and the University of Alberta, Canada.

Michael Buchler is associate professor of music theory at Florida State University. He was vice president of the Society for Music Theory from 2014–15 and, in 2013, chair of SMT's program committee. He currently serves as the president of Music Theory Southeast. His partially overlapping research interests include classic and contemporary musical theater, Schenkerian analysis, and atonal theory and analysis.

Todd Decker is professor and chair of the music department at Washington University in St. Louis. His books include Show Boat: Performing Race in an American Musical (Oxford, 2013) and Hymns for the Fallen: Combat Movie Music and Sound after Vietnam (California, 2017). He has lectured on the stage and screen musical at the Library of Congress and London's Victoria and Albert Museum and for Labex Arts-H2H, a humanities institute at Université Paris 8.

Scott DeVeaux teaches at the University of Virginia, and has published The Birth of Bebop (1997) and Jazz (with Gary Giddins, 2007). He is currently reworking the concept of "fusion" for a new approach to jazz history.

Eric Hung is associate professor of music history at Westminster Choir College of Rider University, and co-founder of the Music of Asian America Research Center. His research focuses on Asian American music, recent Chinese music, and public musicology. Hung is an active pianist and conductor who has performed in Germany, Austria, Hong Kong, Australia, and throughout North America. He is also a member of New York-based Gamelan Dharma Swara, and the founder of the Westminster Chinese Music Ensemble.

Ann Glazer Niren teaches music history/literature courses at Indiana University Southeast. She completed her PhD in musicology at the University of Kentucky in 2013, with a dissertation entitled "The Relationship Between Solomon Braslavsky, Congregation Mishkan Tefila, and Leonard Bernstein." She has published articles in Journal of Synagogue Music, American Jewish Archives Journal, and College Music Symposium, and in several encyclopedias. Her other research interests include Marian McPartland and Terry Riley.

Dana Plank is a PhD candidate in historical musicology at Ohio State University. She earned her BA in violin performance, music history, and Japanese from Case Western Reserve University and the Cleveland Institute of Music in 2009, and her MM in violin performance from Cleveland State University in 2011. Her dissertation focuses on the aural representation of injury, disease, and mental illness in 8- and 16-bit video game soundscapes.

William Robin is assistant professor of music at the University of Maryland. He has published on contemporary classical music, early American sacred music, and Stravinsky. He completed his PhD at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with a dissertation focused on indie classical and contemporary music in the twenty-first century United States, and he is currently working on a book project on institutions and American new music in the 1980s and 1990s. He contributes regularly to the New York Times and the New Yorker.

Mary Simonson is associate professor of film & media studies and women's studies at Colgate University. Her research examines late nineteenth- and twentieth-century entertainment, silent film, and dance on screen. Her first book, Body Knowledge: Performance, Intermediality, and American Entertainment, 1907–1917 traces the interplay of live and mediatized performance. Her work has been published in the Journal of the American Musicological Society, Women & Music, and Screening the Past.

John Spitzer retired from Peabody Conservatory in 2004 and from the San Francisco Conservatory in 2014. His book on The Birth of the Orchestra, co-written with Neal Zaslaw, was published by Oxford University Press in 2004. American Orchestras in the Nineteenth Century (University of Chicago Press), which he edited, was awarded the Ruth A. Solie Award by the American Musicological Society as the outstanding collection of musicological essays in 2012.
