Islamic Ritual Practices

Frederick M. Denny with Abdulaziz Sachedina

This set of 180 slides illustrates formal and folk dimensions in the religious life of a Muslim. Separate sections deal with worship, the pilgrimage to Mecca, life-cycle rites, Shi'ite observances, the veneration of saints, and Islamic symbols. Each slide is described in the text which can be used as a script. A glossary and bibliography are included.

Islamic Ritual Practices is designed for courses in the history of religion, surveys of Islam and Islamic civilizations. The set is a unit of the Islamic Teaching Materials Project, sponsored by the American Council of Learned Societies and funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Pp. 116, 180 slides in binder; $100.00 plus $2.00 P&H.

The set may be previewed by requesting a 30-day rental. The rental fee of $15.00 can be applied to the purchase price. Institutional orders must be on purchase order forms. Individual orders must be prepaid.

Established to provide a forum for innovative writing on the contemporary Middle East and the modern history of the region, this new series will include surveys of important issues along with substantive research contributions. Broad in scope, it will cover the politics, societies, economy, modern history, and culture of all parts of the region.

Medicine and Power in Tunisia 1780–1900

Nancy Elizabeth Gallagher

Nancy Gallagher explores the ways in which medicine became a political tool that facilitated French domination of North Africa, focusing on the severe epidemics of plague, cholera, and typhus that swept across Tunisia between 1780 and 1900. She shows how Muslim political leaders followed European practice in imposing quarantines on their ports, and how the resulting transition from Muslim to European medical authority played a significant role in the onset of European political domination.

Cambridge Studies in Islamic Civilization

Editorial Board: Michael Cook, Martin Hinds, Albert Hourani, Roy Mottahedeh, and Josef Van Ess

A series presenting the most current knowledge, research, debate, and writing about classical Islamic history – from the formation of Islam, through its medieval achievements, to the nineteenth-century Arab, Persian, and Ottoman world. Each book in this multidisciplinary series deals in an original and thoughtful manner with a topic of central importance, and will be of interest to a wide range of scholars.

Sex and Society in Islam

Birth Control Before the Nineteenth Century

Basim F. Musallam

In this detailed study of birth control in the classical Islamic world, Basim Musallam marshalls a wide range of evidence that contradicts many current assumptions: medieval Arabic discussions of contraception and abortion in Islamic jurisprudence, medicine, materia medica, belles lettres, erotica, and popular literature show that birth control was sanctioned by Islamic law and opinion and that contraceptive methods were available throughout pre-modern times to meet social, economic, personal, and medical needs. $29.95

Muslim Tradition

Studies in Chronology, Provenance and Authorship of Early Hadith

G.H.A. Juynboll

A broad-ranging review of the closely linked questions of date, authorship, and origin of hadith, the records of the sayings and deeds of the Prophet Muhammad which are central to Islamic teaching and belief. Professor Juynboll uses the wealth of material available to explore issues basic to an understanding of the formative period of Islam, arriving at a position that falls between the orthodox Muslim view and that of Western scholars. Social History of Timbuktu

The Role of Muslim Scholars and Notables 1400–1900

Elias N. Saad

Dr. Saad traces the precolonial history of the Islamic West African city of Timbuktu from its origins in the twelfth century down to the French conquest in the late nineteenth century. Utilizing such sources as the well-known chronicles or tarikhs of Timbuktu, the author focuses on the role of scholars, thereby providing the first available study of a learned community in sub-Saharan Africa. $49.50

Agricultural Innovation in the Early Islamic World

Andrew M. Watson

This book examines the revolutionary changes that transformed agricultural life in the Islamicized world in the four centuries following the early Arab conquests. Professor Watson discusses the origins, mechanics of diffusion, and uses of eighteen new crops – from sorghum and rice to the watermelon – that spread through the Near East and Africa during this period. Merchants and Migrants in Nineteenth-Century Beirut

Leila Tarazi Fawaz

Fawaz examines the migration that lay behind the growth of Beirut—a small provincial town of 6,000 in the 19th century that grew into a political and cultural center of 120,000, making it the leading seaport of the eastern Mediterranean.

She discusses why the migrants came, what economic changes resulted, and how social relations among the city's religious communities were transformed.

A Concordance of the Qur'an

by Hanna E. Kassis

Foreword by Fazlur Rahman

For centuries the Qur'an has been a closed book both to non-Muslims and, to some extent, to Muslims who do not know Arabic. Translations have long been available, but the elusive organization of the work has prevented any but the most devoted student from finding easily what the Qur'an has to say on a given topic. Kassis opens the Qur'an to serious, English-speaking students of all faiths in a way that preserves the connotations that any given verse has in the original Arabic. $75.00

The Jewish Communities of the Arab World as Portrayed in the Documents of the Cairo Geniza—Volume IV: Daily Life

by S.D. Goitein

In Volume IV of his magisterial study of the documents of the Cairo Geniza Goitein examines the relationship between the Jewish community in the Islamic world of the tenth through the thirteenth century and its material civilization. "Stupendous labor of love... such scholarship as his is, in Lord Acton's phrase, 'not a burden on the memory, but an illumination of the soul.'" George Kirk, Muslim World $38.50

The Armenian Quarter of Jerusalem

Urban Life Behind Monastery Walls

by Victor Azarya

Much of the Armenian quarter of the old city of Jerusalem lies within the walls of St. James Monastery, home to twenty-to-thirty monks and a lay population of about fifteen hundred people. This fascinating study shows how a coexistence begun in necessity has transformed the monastery. "A marvelous study and an extremely well-told story, written with a sustained sense of intellectual discovery."—Gerald D. Suttles $22.50

Civil Religion in Israel

Traditional Judaism and Political Culture in the Jewish State

by Charles S. Liebman and Eliezer Don-Yehiya

Israel was founded by and continues to be governed by nonreligious Jews who nonetheless are committed to the notion that Israel is a Jewish state. This first comprehensive study of civil religion in Israel examines the system of beliefs and practices that underlies the conception of Israel as a moral community. "Throughout this admirable study, the authors are careful to set current developments in historical perspective. Highly recommended."—Jehuda Reinharz, Library Journal $24.95
