

Eloquent Zen

Daitō and Early Japanese Zen

Kenneth Kraft

Daitō Kokushi (1282-1337) played a major role in the transmission of Zen (Ch'an) from China to Japan. Not only did he found one of the most influential monasteries, Daitokuji, he also interpreted Chinese texts and composed a body of writing that illuminates the distinctive genres of Zen. This is the first comprehensive account of the life and teaching of this great Zen master. $34.00, cloth

Zen Awakening and Society

Christopher Ives

Foreword by Masao Abe

Zen Buddhism has traditionally focused on monastic practice and the artistic expression of satori (awakening) with little attention paid to social ethics. Here, Christopher Ives considers the relationship between Zen and social ethics by examining ethical facets of Zen practice and satori as well as the traditional socio-political role of Zen in Japan. $25.00, cloth; $14.95, paper

Patterns of Time

Mizoguchi and the 1930s

Donald Kirihaara

"Patterns of Time is a most welcome addition to the field of Japanese film studies, where it will have an immediate impact. Moreover, it is a welcome addition to all of film studies, not simply for the international stature of Mizoguchi, but for the meticulously applied methodology employed by the author. It is also one of the most astute sketches of the Japanese film industry of the 1930s, both as an economic structure and in its relation to the world of international filmmaking, I have read."

Hierarchy, Gender, and Alliance in the Tanimbar Islands

Susan McKinnon

"McKinnon's brilliant analysis confronts a central problem: how to understand a structure which is at once hierarchical and egalitarian. This is a major advance in a theory of culture firmly grounded in Boasian anthropology and structuralism while incorporating and carrying much further the most recent work in cultural analysis by Sahlins, Geertz, Wagner, and Strathern, to mention but a few. This book may change the face of anthropology."

General Trading Companies A Comparative and Historical Study

The Japanese general trading company has received considerable interest and attention in recent years for the important ways in which it is believed to have contributed to Japan's rapid and successful industrialization. This study by a group of Japanese business and economic historians contributes to a better understanding of technological development in Japan. Comparison is made with similar trading firms in Great Britain and the United States; discussion focuses on the aspects of management, merchandise and organization structures. The book also features a detailed study of Japan's largest general trading company, Mitsui Bussan.

THE PHILIPPINES IN CRISIS

W. Scott Thompson

The story of the Aquino era is the story of a failing struggle to utilize the aid which poured in to help the Philippine economy, and to stop the communist insurgency. In this analysis of Aquino's six crisis-filled years, Thompson explores the interconnections between security and development in a nation in crisis.

One of the most devastating periods in twentieth-century history was the rule of Pol Pot and the Khmer Rouge over Cambodia. From April 1975 to the beginning of the Vietnamese occupation in December 1978, the country underwent perhaps the most violent of all modern revolutions. The United Nations Human Rights Commission declared the violations in Cambodia to be "the worst to have occurred anywhere in the world since Nazism." The essays here search for the possible motivations of the Khmer Rouge in perpetrating these atrocities.

"For those who are today charged with finding a political solution to Cambodia's seemingly intractable legacy of war, genocide and foreign occupation, and who may be tempted to go for 'tidy' compromises with an unrepentant Khmer Rouge leadership, this book should be required reading."—Survival

BRUCE CUMINGS

THE ORIGINS OF THE KOREAN WAR

VOLUME II

The Roaring of the Cataract
1947-1950

New in paperback

In continuing his argument that the Korean War was civil and revolutionary in character, Bruce Cumings examines the internal political-economic development of the two Korean states and the consequences, for Korea, of Cold War rivalry between the United States and the Soviet Union. He investigates the intense border fighting and internal political instability that preceded the Northern invasion and challenges the notion of sudden Soviet-sponsored intervention.

"A decade ago, Bruce Cumings opened a new chapter in Korean War studies by arguing that this horrible conflict was above all a civil war. The Roaring of the Cataract is on a grander scale and narrated in a freer, more indignant voice than the first volume. . . . there is no better camera obscura for those daring to revisit the bloodbaths that convulsed Korea at mid-century."

Why have not just Japan, but also Taiwan and South Korea, been so successful in economic development? This book rejects the claims both of those who see the East Asian story as a vindication of "free market" principles and of those who say it all resulted from government intervention. What needs attention, the author maintains, is the way decisions were divided between markets and governments and the synergy between them. He focuses on Taiwan, with comparisons to Korea, Japan, and Hong Kong.

"This new study by Robert Wade is one of only a handful that describes how economic policy in East Asia has actually worked. . . .

A superb book. . . . Governing the Market demystifies East Asia's miracle without making it seem any less remarkable. . . . It is long overdue, and deserves to be widely read."—The Economist

Winner of the 1990 Canada-Japan
Book Award

Investigating the enormous contribution made by female textile workers to early industrialization in Meiji Japan, Patricia Tsurumi vividly documents not only their hardships but also their triumphs. She shows that through their experiences as Japan's first modern factory workers, these "factory girls" developed an identity that played a crucial role in the history of the Japanese working class.

"This fine book should serve as a useful corrective to the glorious view of development in the Meiji period presented in elite histories of the period. It is also a fundamental contribution to the growing literature on the history of women in Japan. The book is well written and clearly presented. . . ."

New in paperback

Five Hundred Years of Chinese Poetry, 1150–1650 offers the only historical survey, in any language, of this important span of Chinese poetry. Written by the foremost Japanese sinologist of this century, the work provides a brief but comprehensive review of the period's literary history, a sketch of its political and social history in relation to literature, and a rendering of more than one hundred and fifty poems.

"Like the adage about firewood, this book warms twice. First there is the warmth of Yoshikawa Kōjirō's spry and versatile mind, and then there is John Wixted's lovely and obviously loving translation of those thoughts into English. . . . THE SPIRIT OF CHINESE POLITICS

New Edition
Lucian W. Pye

Lucian Pye unfolds in this book a deep psychological analysis of Chinese political culture. The dynamics of the Cultural Revolution, the behavior of the Red Guards, and the compulsions of Mao Tse-tung are among the important symptoms examined. But Pye goes behind large events, exploring the more enduring aspects of Chinese culture as they have been manifested in traditional, Republican, and Communist periods. In this new edition he adds a chapter on the basic tension between consensus and conflict in Chinese politics and another discussing the great gap that persists between the worlds of the political leadership and of society at large in post-Tiananmen China.

RADICALISM AND THE ORIGINS OF THE VIETNAMESE REVOLUTION

Hue-Tam Ho Tai

The events of the 1920s and 1930s were crucial in the evolution of modern Vietnam. Yet our knowledge of this complex period has been distorted by a preoccupation with the eventual establishment of a Communist regime there. In focusing on the strikes of the mid-1920s, which triggered student travel to France and China and swelled the ranks of revolutionary parties at home and abroad, this book depicts the political and intellectual options of the beginning, experimental, and most individualistic stage of the Vietnamese Revolution.

This engaging book challenges the traditional notion that Japan was an isolated nation cut off from the outside world and its influence in the early modern era. Taking as his focus the port of Nagasaki and its thriving trade with China in the sixteenth through the nineteenth centuries, Jansen not only corrects this misperception but offers an important analysis of the impact of the China trade on Japan's cultural, economic, and political life.

Economic Theories in China, 1979–1988

Robert C. Hsu

In China, the decade from 1979 to 1988 witnessed among economists and policymakers an unprecedented willingness to depart from the traditional dogmatic interpretations of socialism and to enter into a discourse aimed at promoting economic reforms and development. Robert C. Hsu, in Economic Theories in China, 1979–1988, systematically explores the substance and logic of the evolution of the most vital economic-reform theories prevalent in China.

Foreign Trade and Economic Reform in China

1978–1990

Nicholas R. Lardy

This study explores the relationship between China's foreign trade reforms and the domestic economic reforms that undergird China's policy of openness in the 1980s and 1990s. It provides the first comprehensive analysis of how China has emerged since reform began in 1978 as one of the most dynamic trading nations in the world. The volume concludes with an analysis of the sources of China's export growth and outlines further domestic economic reforms that the author believes will be required to sustain China's increasing integration into the world economy.

Contemporary Chinese Politics in Historical Perspective

Brantly Womack, Editor

Few countries have had more turbulent politics in the twentieth century than China. Although China's unprecedented stability and prosperity in the 1980s gave hope that such turbulence was at an end, the crises of Tiananmen, culminating in the massacre of June 4, 1989, proved that the turbulence continues.

Poems of A Mountain Home

SAIGYŌ

TRANSLATED BY BURTON WATSON

Two hundred of Saigyō's poems celebrate each season of the year and touch upon the timeless themes of loneliness, romantic love, and spirituality. Their agelessness continues, as the influence of Saigyō, the poet whose freedom from convention gave new vitality to late 12th-century Japanese verse.

Ryōkan

ZEN MONK-POET OF JAPAN

TRANSLATED BY BURTON WATSON

A Buddhist monk and a major Tokugawa poet, Ryōkan (1758-1831) never headed a temple but chose to live alone in simple huts. His poetry is the story of daily life, showing us how rich a spiritual and intellectual life one could enjoy with a minimum of material possessions.

East Asian Art and American Culture

WARREN I. COHEN

Virtually every movement of art between cultures has political implications. Warren Cohen, a leading diplomatic historian, shows how art collecting interacts with the shifting rhythms of international politics and the business cycle.

As he tells of art collectors, dealers, museums, and curators, he also tells the story of art and imperialism, art as an instrument of foreign policy, and art collecting as an indicator of economic power.

"A remarkable analysis. . ."

"It's impossible to understand the People's Republic of China under its contemporary circumstances without He Bochuan's China on the Edge—a remarkable analysis of the social, economical, technological, and environmental forces which will determine China's future in the next century."

Harrison Salisbury

CHINA ON THE EDGE paints a grim picture, based on facts. China has 43 births a minute, has the highest rate of energy consumption per unit of GNP in the world, dumps 3 billion tons of contaminated water into the ocean each year, ranks third in sulfur dioxide emissions, and loses 40,000 acres of cultivatable land a year to desertification. He Bochuan combines a wide array of charts and statistics with lucid prose to document trends. He sounds an alarm, "I wish to underscore the point that in China today, an ill-conceived choice on an important issue may result in the permanent loss of the opportunity ever to correct the mistake. China has gone past the point of no return."

A Thrice-Told Tale

FEMINISM, POSTMODERNISM, AND ETHNOGRAPHIC RESPONSIBILITY

Margery Wolf

The author makes imaginative use of three texts—a short story, anthropological field notes, and a social science article—representing the same set of events to explore the ethnographer's responsibility in light of feminist and postmodernist critiques of ethnography. 163 pp. Cloth, $29.50; paper, $10.95

The Discourse of Race in Modern China

THE TEXTUAL HISTORY OF THE HUAI-NAN TZU

by Harold David Roth

The Huai-nan Tzu is an important source of early Taoist thought completed in 139 B.C. by the intellectual circle surrounding Liu An, the King of Huai-nan, and the grandson of Liu Pang, founder of the Han Dynasty. The Textual History of the Huai-nan Tzu traces the nature, origins, and transmission of the text, analyzes the content and history of all its commentaries, determines the identity and filiation of its 85 complete and 31 abridged extant editions, and establishes a sample critical text for one of its twenty-one chapters.

"Beyond the use of this work as a model for approaching other texts, the study provides extremely important information about the Huai-nan Tzu itself...The Huai-nan Tzu cannot be used in a responsible way without someone having done the kind of work that Roth has done." - Roger T. Ames

"This study is very well organized, clearly and systematically presented, and carefully documented with evidence to discuss the transmission processes of all the editions. ...Roth's book serves as a model for textual identification, which is the first step for textual analysis in criticism of other ancient texts." - T. H. Tsien

"Roth's study exemplifies an extraordinary effort in meticulous textual and historical scholarship." - Anthony C. Yu

NATIONAL UNIVERSITY OF SINGAPORE

Department of Sociology

Applications are invited for teaching appointments in the Department of Sociology from candidates who should possess a relevant PhD degree. Preference will be given to those who specialise in one or more of the following areas and who have teaching and/or research experience within Southeast Asia:

Sociology of Education
Sociology of the Family
Social Stratification
Urban Sociology

The Department of Sociology was established in 1965 under the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. The Department conducts courses leading to the degrees of BA and BSocSci (Honours). Postgraduate programmes are also available for MSocSci and PhD degrees.

The Department is very active in research and the main areas of interests are social change, problems of multiethnic societies, social policy issues and Southeast Asian studies. The University and many international agencies and foundations have provided generous funding for the research programme. Staff members are also very active in applied research and in providing consultancy services to both public and private organisations. The University provides a computer-intensive environment for both teaching and research.

All academic staff have access to the following computer and telecommunication resources: an individual microcomputer (an IBM AT-compatible or Apple Macintosh); an IBM mainframe computer with 16 MIPS of computing power; an NEC SX supercomputer with 650 MFLOPS of computing power; departmental laser printers; a wide spectrum of mainframe and microcomputer software; voice-mail. A campus-wide network, which is based on the high speed optical fibre based FDDI technology, links up all the academic staff and student microcomputers, UNIX workstations and provides access to the mainframe computer, the supercomputer, UNIX hosts, the on-line library catalogue, Internet and BITNET.

Gross annual emoluments range as follows:

Lecturer	S$50,390 - 64,200
Senior Lecturer	S$58,680 - 100,310

(US$ 1.00 = S$ 1.63 approximately)

The commencing salary will depend on the candidate's qualifications, experience and the level of appointment offered.

Leave and medical benefits will be provided. Depending on the type of contract offered, other benefits may include: provident fund benefits or an end-of-contract gratuity, a settling-in allowance of S$1,000 or S$2,000, subsidised housing at nominal rentals ranging from S$100 to S$216 p.m., education allowance for up to three children subject to a maximum of S$16,425 per annum per child, passage assistance and baggage allowance for the transportation of personal effects to Singapore. Staff members may undertake consultation work, subject to the approval of the University, and retain consultation fees up to a maximum of 60% of their gross annual emoluments in a calendar year.

JOHN KING FAIRBANK

CHINA

A New History

Recognized for decades as the West's doyen on China, John King Fairbank here offers the full and final expression of his lifelong engagement with this vast, ancient civilization. Fairbank's masterwork is without parallel as a concise, comprehensive, and authoritative account of China and its people over four millennia. Bringing to bear sixty years of research, travel, and teaching, Fairbank weaves a richly detailed history that reaches from China's neolithic days to its troubled present.

Richly illustrated, delicately nuanced, and broadly interpretive, this introduction to the Chinese people and their past will enlighten both the novice and the seasoned China-watcher.

Winners in Peace

MacArthur, Yoshida, and Postwar Japan

by RICHARD B. FINN

Singular for its breadth and balance, Winners in Peace chronicles the American Occupation of Japan, an episode that profoundly shaped the postwar world. Finn, who participated in the Occupation as a young naval officer and diplomat, tells the full story of the activities from 1945 to 1952. He focuses on the two main actors, General Douglas MacArthur and Japanese Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida, and details the era's major events, programs, and personalities, both American and Japanese.

Rainbow

by MAO DUN

Translated from the Chinese by Madeleine Zelin

With this translation of the 1929 novel Rainbow (Hong), one of China's most influential works of fiction is at last available in English. Rainbow chronicles the political and social disruptions in China during the early years of the twentieth century. The novel moves from the conservative world of China's interior provinces down the Yangzi River to Shanghai, China's most modern city. Voices from Asia, $13.00 paper, $38.00 cloth

Siting Translation

History, Post-Structuralism, and the Colonial Context
by TEJASWINI NIRANJANA

Examining translations of Indian texts from the eighteenth century to the present, Niranjana urges post-colonial peoples to reconceive translation as a site for resistance and transformation.

"Shows how the questions of translation must be reframed in light of the critique of emerging work on imperialism and cultural studies. This is a key work for translation studies."

Taiwan and the Geopolitics of the Asian-American Dilemma

By Jen-kun Fu

1992. 160 pages. 0-275-94130-2. $42.95

The position of Taiwan is examined in light of its dependence on the vagaries of American and Chinese (both PRC and ROC) geopolitical machinations. Fu traces the ROC's changing geopolitical position on Taiwan—particularly in light of improved relations between the PRC and the U.S. in the early 1970s.

Labor and Economic Growth in Five Asian Countries

South Korea, Malaysia, Taiwan, Thailand, and the Philippines

By Walter Galenson

1992. 144 pages. 0-275-94200-7. $39.95

This work explores developments in the labor markets of five countries that have undergone successful economic development during the past quarter of a century. This includes employment, earnings, industrial relations, and social security measures.

Japan Thrice-Opened

An Analysis of Relations Between Japan and the United States

By Hideo Ibe

Translated by Lynne E. Riggs and Manabu Takechi

1992. 328 pages. 0-275-93178-1. $49.95

A history of Japan-United States relations from the point of view of a pro-American Japanese scholar, this work is designed to serve as an analysis of the current situation. This book argues that Japanese and Americans must both learn to understand Japanese history and Japanese sensibilities.

International Capital Movements and the Developing World

The Case of Taiwan

By Chich-Heng Kuo

1991. 224 pages. 0-275-92969-8. $45.00

Written by a distinguished scholar and Taiwanese government official, this case study examines Taiwan's success in balancing inward and outward capital flow in a manner that has stimulated domestic development, stabilized the national economy, and created a growing trade surplus.

China at the Brink

The Political Economy of Reform and Retrenchment in the Post-Mao Era

By Peter M. Lichtenstein

1991. 176 pages. 0-275-94052-7. $42.95

From the early euphoric stage to the last and most brutal episode, Lichtenstein, a first-hand observer in the 1980s, describes and explains the economics behind this cycle and ties together the economic, political, and cultural aspects of the reform era.

Political Change on Taiwan

A Study of Ruling Party Adaptability

By Peter R. Moody, Jr.

1991. 224 pages. 0-275-94035-7. $47.95

This volume surveys recent Taiwanese politics, mainly from the perspective of the ruling KMT party. It includes analysis of recent changes in the party itself and also in the relations between the party, the opposition, and society generally.

THE TRIUMPH OF JAPANESE STYLE

16th-Century Art in Japan

Michael R. Cunningham with Contributions
by Suzuki Norio, Miyajima Shin'ichi, and Saito Takamasa

"This dazzling elasticizing of pictorial space—of spatial illusions and leaps in scale that unfold and close up again as surely as the screen on which they appear—is but one of the many visual thrills and epiphanies available at 'The Triumph of Japanese Style,' a stunning exhibition of Japanese art from the 15th, 16th and early 17th centuries at the Cleveland Museum of Art." —The New York Times

PURPOSE AND ORGANIZATION

The Association for Asian Studies is a scholarly, non-political, and non-profit professional association open to all persons interested in Asia and the study of Asia. It seeks through publications, meetings, and seminars to facilitate contact and exchange of information among scholars and to increase understanding of Asia. The Association for Asian Studies is the largest society of its kind in the world. Its 7,000 members include scholars, teachers, business people, diplomats, journalists, and interested laypersons.

Founded in 1941 as the Far Eastern Association, the organization was renamed the Association for Asian Studies in 1957 to reflect the wider geographic interests of its membership. In 1970, four elective area Councils—South Asia, Southeast Asia, China and Inner Asia, and Northeast Asia—were established to guarantee each area constituency its own representation and a proportionate voice on the Board of Directors. In 1977, a Council of Conferences was established as a liaison with eight regional conferences throughout the United States to serve the needs of those interested in Asian studies in different parts of the country. The Association is a member of the American Council of Learned Societies and the National Council of Area Studies Associations, actively participating with its sister societies in a wide range of activities, including joint participation in research and informational exchanges.

Publications of the Association include The Journal of Asian Studies, the Bibliography of Asian Studies, Doctoral Dissertations on Asia, the Asian Studies Newsletter, the Monograph Series, and committee publications. The Association holds a three-day meeting each spring devoted to planned programs of scholarly papers, round table discussions and panel sessions on a wide range of problems in research and teaching, and on Asian affairs in general. From time to time, it sponsors, through its committees, special conferences on research problems and other matters of topical interest.

Popular Hinduism is shaped, above all, by worship of a multitude of powerful divine beings. The fluid relationship between these beings and humans is a central theme of this rich and accessible study of popular Hinduism in the context of the society of contemporary India.

Lucidly organized and skillfully written, The Camphor Flame brings clarity to an immensely complicated subject. C. J. Fuller combines ethnographic case studies with comparative anthropological analysis, and draws on textual and historical scholarship as well.

"This is a major contribution to the field . . . Fuller covers a vast terrain of material, successfully managing to capture the complexity and variation of each subject while at the same time providing nicely rendered examples and case studies."

In this reevaluation of the estate system, which has long been recognized as the central economic institution of medieval Japan, Thomas Keirstead argues that estates, or shōen, constituted more than a type of landownership. Through an examination of rent rolls, land registers, maps, and other data describing individual estates he reveals a cultural framework, one that produced and shaped meaning for residents and proprietors. Keirstead's discussion of peasant uprisings shows that the system, however, did not define a stable, closed structure, but was built upon contested terrain.

"This elegantly concise, profusely documented account demonstrates conclusively the ready applicability of Foucauldian concepts and methods to medieval Japanese social history. It is an iconoclastic and extremely suggestive study."
