Four Middle English
Mystery Cycles
Textual, Contextual, and Critical Interpretations
Martin Stevens

Martin Stevens examines the four extant complete cycles of Middle English mystery plays in light of the most recent research on the manuscripts, sources, and records relating to the medieval drama. He argues that the cycles, which as texts date from the late fifteenth or early sixteenth centuries, must be read as distinct works of dramatic literature, each with its own design, purpose, and execution.

Redeeming Eve
Women Writers of the English Renaissance
Elaine V. Beilin

Essential reading for anyone interested in women's literature and Renaissance studies, this first full-length study of women writers of Tudor and early Stuart England inquires into the historical and literary circumstances surrounding the establishment of a female voice. Elaine Beilin seeks to find out how the thirty authors she examines were able to "redeem Eve"—or overcome the psychological effects of believing that one is evil merely because one is female.

Cloth: $33.00 ISBN 0-691-06715-5

Horace's Poetic Journey
A Reading of Odes 1–3
David H. Porter

"This is a bold and exacting piece of literary criticism that will offer a fresh measure by which to approach one of the great lyricists. Furthermore, it is one of the most convincing arguments for an ancient poet's arrangement of his own poetry into books and groups of books that I have seen."

—Charles L. Babcock, The Ohio State University

Disguise and Recognition in the *Odyssey
Sheila Murnaghan

The motifs of disguise and recognition of identity are commonly recognized as traditional features of the Odyssey's plot. Now this distinctive reading shows how those motifs are used not only to tell the story of Odysseus' return but also to explore the central values of Homeric society. In a world where identity is largely defined through the esteem of others, the recognition of identity represents the acknowledgement of heroic prestige.
