Colonialism and Underdevelopment in East Africa 1919-39

E. A. Brett

An original and provoking study which seeks to establish a general theory of colonialism. British Colonial policy was an adjustment of interest groups within an ideologically agreed framework, and not just a muddled empirical resolution of differing interests. The author maintains that the efforts of this policy were inimical to economic development in East Africa.

Catholics, Peasants and Chewa Resistance in Nyasaland

Ian Linden

Few people realise that in Malawi the Roman Catholic church is more powerful numerically and politically than the Protestants. This book shows how, by provoking Chewa resistance, the Catholics lost the potential support of the elite to the Presbyterians. It puts the Chitembwe rising in the context of the social and religious history of the colony which is now Malawi. There are many parallels elsewhere in Africa where mission rivalry was strong, especially in Buganda and eastern Nigeria.

The Origins of Rhodesia

Stanlake Samkange

The story of white and black expansion in the nineteenth century into Rhodesia, of the growth of the Matabele nation, and their conquest by the military and financial power of Cecil Rhodes and the British South Africa Company.

'... scrupulously fair. The main theme of the book is of absorbing interest.'—Journal of African History.

CONTRIBUTIONS

Contributions to the Journal are welcomed. They may be submitted in either English or French. They should not exceed about 6000 words (excluding footnotes), except with the prior approval of the Editors. A summary of the contents of the article, not exceeding about 300 words in length, should be attached on a separate sheet. Contributors are asked to observe closely the conventions listed in the Notes for Contributors, inside the back cover of this issue. It is essential that contributors observe these conventions, as the Journal now goes straight into page proof. This severely limits the number of corrections which are possible.

Page proofs will be sent, if necessary by airmail, to each contributor (or his nominee) provided that the Editors have been given an address through which he can be reached without delay. Corrections should be kept to the minimum, and should be corrections, not new material. If they are to be incorporated in the master proof corrected by the Editors, it is important that the contributor should return the page proofs, by airmail if necessary, to the Editor named when they are sent out (and not to the Cambridge University Press), within ten days of his receipt of them.

Contributors of articles and review articles receive 25 free separates. Additional separates may be obtained at reasonable cost, provided that they are ordered before publication on the special form sent out with the galley proofs.

All contributions and books for review should be addressed to The Editors, The Journal of African History, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London, W.C.1.
