Achilles' Choice

Examples of Modern Tragedy
DAVID LENSON

The work of various writers not ordinarily placed in the tragic tradition—among them Goethe, Melville, Yeats, and Faulkner—suggests to Lenson that the tradition of tragedy continues in genres other than the drama. "An interesting, original, often persuasive investigation of modern endeavors in the field of tragedy."—Richard Lattimore, Bryn Mawr $9.50

Modern Shakespeare Offshoots

RUBY COHN

"A rich and often surprising panorama of the ways in which Shakespeare's plays have been emended, adapted, and transformed for the modern theater [in English, French, and German]. . . . Her book should interest almost anyone seriously concerned with twentieth-century drama."

A major theatrical document by one of the century's greatest playwright/philosophers

This remarkable new book brings together for the first time the incisive—and often surprising—views of Jean-Paul Sartre on the role of the theater in contemporary society, and on each of his plays: such classics as No Exit, The Condemned of Altona, The Devil and the Good Lord, and Dirty Hands.

“For the theater lover and the student of theater the book presents in sweeping perspective

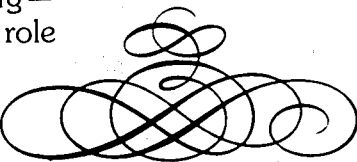

Sartre’s point of view on various contemporary attitudes toward theater. Sartre’s judgments are always stimulating...this volume will no doubt become a classic.”

—GERMAINE BRÉE,
The New Republic

“Sartre on Theater is essential for devotees of theater and literature.

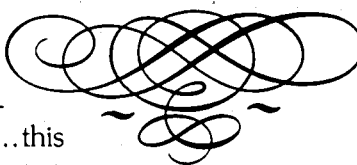

The student of contemporary culture will be fascinated by what these materials reveal not only about Sartre and his development but also about Cocteau, Camus, Deullin, and other colleagues and collaborators.”

New York University
School of the Arts
Department of Drama, Undergraduate

IS OFFERING AN ALTERNATIVE PROGRAM IN:

EXPERIMENTAL THEATRE

The Department of Drama, Undergraduate, which offers a B.F.A. degree in acting, is pleased to announce the formation of the Experimental Theatre Wing. A limited number of students will have the opportunity to work intimately with four of New York's leading experimental theatre groups in a two-year program designed specifically for students who have already completed two years of foundation work with one of the three studios working with our Department: Stella Adler Conservatory, The Circle in the Square Theatre School, and the Lee Strasberg Theater Institute. The ETW is also open to students who have studied acting elsewhere and who wish to transfer into our Department. Students in the ETW will spend one semester with each of the following groups: The Performance Group (best known for Dionysus in 69 and The Tooth of Crime), The Ridiculous Theatrical Company (specializing in commedia dell'arte techniques), Mabou Mines (recently featured in Newsweek for their highly acclaimed Beckett production), and Richard Foreman's Ontological-Hysteric Theatre (frequently featured in The Drama Review). Students will work in unique acting, voice, and movement workshops taught from each particular group's point of view. In the last semester a production, directed by Richard Foreman, will be performed by the students. In addition to studying with the four groups, students will take dramatic literature and history of performance courses offered through the Department.

GRADUATE DRAMA AT NYU'S SCHOOL OF THE ARTS

We don't take a literary approach. We study the play on stage; our emphasis is the history and theory of performance itself. This makes our graduate program unlike any other.

Faculty members must be more than scholars. They must be involved in practical theatre. Like Michael Kirby, author of Happenings, The Art of Time, and Futurist Performance, who is also a playwright, director, and editor of The Drama Review. Brooks McNamara is a theatre set designer as well as author of The American Playhouse in the Eighteenth Century and The Medicine Show. Richard Schechner is the author of Public Domain and Environmental Theatre. He is the founder and co-director of the Performance Group. Theodore Hoffman, the co-author of A Guide to Theatre Study, is also a critic and a teacher of improvisation.

Our A.M. program covers the history of theatre, the history of acting, directing, physical theatre, and theatrical theory. Its focus is contemporary performance practice.

Our Ph.D. program emphasizes the specialties of the faculty. Courses are offered in such areas as History of Avant-

Garde Performance (Kirby), Popular Entertainments (McNamara), Ritual and Theatre (Schechner), and Theatrical Criticism (Hoffman).

All our students must have practical theatre experience (not necessarily at the professional level). We feel our ideas will be most useful to people who are interested in doing theatre rather than merely reading about it.

There is no better place to study drama than in New York—the theatre capital of the world.

For more information and application, call (212) 598-2407 or mail coupon.

Richard Foreman

Plays and Manifestos

Edited, with an Introduction, by Kate Davy. The texts of eight of the twelve plays Richard Foreman has produced for his Ontological-Hysteric Theatre appear in this new book (six of them previously unpublished) along with three manifestos on theatre art. Kate Davy's perceptive introduction examines the major influences on Foreman's work and skillfully guides the reader to an understanding of how to approach the texts. Illustrated. $9.75 paper; $18.50 cloth

Ur-Drama

The Origins of Theatre

By Ernest Theodore Kirby. A provoking and controversial work, Ur-Drama contradicts the common view of the origin of theatre as having been founded in fertility worship and organized in a seasonal pattern. E. T. Kirby demonstrates here how many of the world's most important theatre forms—ancient Greek drama, Sanskrit drama, Chinese classical drama, and Japanese noh drama—were developed from early shamanistic rituals, rather than fertility worship.

Illustrated. $12.50

The New Theatre

Performance Documentation

Edited by Michael Kirby. Entirely reprinted from The Drama Review, The New Theatre covers a wide range of experimental and avant-garde performances, offering a recreation of various theatrical experiences occurring in contemporary drama. Illustrated. $10.00
