Notes on Contributors

Filippo De Pieri teaches architectural and urban history at the Politecnico di Torino, Italy, where he obtained his Ph.D. in 2000. His publications include Il controllo improbabile: progetti urbani, burocrazie, decisioni in una città capitale dell'Ottocento (2005). His research focuses on the history of nineteenth- and twentieth-century urban planning, the history of technical bureaucracies and the history of urban conservation. He is currently working on a cultural history of the debates on 'historic centres' in post-war Italy.

Rosario Forlenza is a postdoctoral fellow at the James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University. His main fields of expertise are political anthropology, symbolic and cultural politics, politics of memory, cinema and propaganda, totalitarianism and democracy. His recent publications include 'The Italian Communist Party, Local Government and the Cold War', Modern Italy (2010).

Daniel A. Gordon is Senior Lecturer in European History at Edge Hill University, holds a D.Phil. from the University of Sussex, and has held visiting fellowships at St Antony's College, Oxford and the Université de Nice. His publications include 'The Back Door of the Nation State: Political Expulsions and Continuity in Twentieth Century France', Past and Present (2005); 'Liquidating May '68? Generational Trajectories of the 2007 Presidential Candidates', Modern and Contemporary France (2008) and 'Memories of 1968 in France: Reflections on the 40th Anniversary', in Sarah Waters and Ingo Cornils, eds., Memories of 1968: International Perspectives (2010).

Kevin McDermott is Senior Lecturer in Political History at Sheffield Hallam University. He is the author of Stalin: Revolutionary in an Era of War (2006) and co-editor (with Matthew Stibbe) of Stalinist Terror in Eastern Europe: Elite Purges and Mass Repression (2010) and Revolution and Resistance in Eastern Europe: Challenges to Communist Rule (2006). He is currently researching a history of post-war communist Czechoslovakia.

Alan Rosenfeld is an Assistant Professor of History at the University of Hawai'i-West O'ahu, where he teaches courses in modern European and world history. He is currently revising his dissertation, completed in 2008, which is a study of state and public responses to urban guerrilla violence in West Germany in the 1970s. He is also researching the wartime internment of ethnic Japanese, German and Italian civilians in Hawai'i.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contemporary European History covers the history of eastern and western Europe, including the United Kingdom, from 1918 to the present. By combining a wide geographical compass with a relatively short time span, the journal achieves both range and depth. It is open to all forms of historical enquiry – including cultural, economic, international, political and social approaches – and welcomes comparative and transnational analysis.

Submissions

Articles submitted for publication should be sent electronically to Contemporary European History, at ceh@sheffield.ac.uk, or, in the case of submissions from North America, to the Corresponding Editor for North America, Professor John Connelly, jfconnel@berkeley.edu

Articles should normally be about 8,000 words long, the total to include footnotes. Review articles should not exceed 5,000 words.

The journal is published in English, and contributions are normally submitted in that language; however, we will also consider articles submitted in other major European languages. If accepted for publication, these will be translated. All articles, including those commissioned, will be refereed.

An abstract of each article is published in English, French and German.

Submission of a paper will be taken to imply that it is unpublished and is not being considered for publication elsewhere. On acceptance of a paper, the author will be asked to assign copyright (on certain conditions) to Cambridge University Press. An article cannot be published unless a signed copyright form is returned promptly.

Contributors are responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce any material in which they do not hold copyright and for ensuring that the appropriate acknowledgements are included in their text.

The editors would be grateful if contributors kept closely to the journal's stylistic conventions. Copy-editing is time-consuming and the editors will return any contribution which does not follow the conventions for correction and re-typing.

Prospective authors should refer to the full set of Instruction for Contributors by following the link at <http://www.journals.cambridge.org/ceh>

Contributors of accepted papers should send a final version via email. This should include

1. the text, which should begin with the title, the author's name and email and postal address, and the author's affiliation as he/she should wish it to appear
2. a 100-word summary of the article in English, French or German
3. a short title for use as a running page-head
4. a statement of the article's length in number of words (including both text and footnotes), and a list of tables, graphs, maps and any other illustrative material (each of which should be supplied as a separate file)
5. a short description of work in progress and previously published work
