NEW IN THE Spirit of the Laws SERIES

The Spirit of Traditional Chinese Law

Geoffrey MacCormack

The Spirit of Traditional Chinese Law studies the views held throughout the centuries by the country's educated elite on the role of law in government, the relationship between law and morality, and the purpose of punishment.

January, $45.00 cl.

The Spirit of Roman Law

Alan Watson

The values and approaches, explicit and implicit, of those who made Roman law during the period of the Twelve Tables to the end of the so-called classical period (around 451 B.C. to A.D. 235) are the focus of this study.

Federal Law and Southern Order

Racial Violence and Constitutional Conflict in the Post-Brown South

Michal R. Belknap

"Belknap has given us an extremely useful narrative of the federal government's all-too-gradual efforts to control racial violence in the civil rights period. . . . [He] combines solid documentation with perceptive analysis and powerful narration."

James Louis Petigru

Southern Conservative, Southern Dissenter

William H. Pease and Jane H. Pease

This is the first modern biography of James Louis Petigru (1789–1863), the dean of the South Carolina bar in the antebellum period and a major figure in the state's political and social development.

TWO NEW WORKS ON THE HISTORICAL JESUS

The Trial of Jesus

Alan Watson

This new study of the arrest, trial, and conviction of Jesus draws on Jewish and Roman laws and customs. Alan Watson adds substantially to what we know about the justness of the charges against Jesus, his degree of guilt, and the powers, prerogatives, and motivations of his accusers.

November, $24.95 cl.

Jesus and the Jews

The Pharisaic Tradition in John

Alan Watson

Alan Watson draws on rabbinic law and ancient history as he reveals and substantiates a central yet previously unrecognized source for the composition of the Gospel of John. This source, says Watson, originated from an anti-Christian tradition promulgated by the teachers of Jewish law, the Pharisees.

THE JOURNAL OF LEGAL HISTORY

Editor Andrew Lewis, University College London, UK

The Journal of Legal History, founded by Albert Kiralfy in 1980, is the only British publication exclusively devoted to legal history. Whilst its main aim is the publication of good quality research on the sources and development of the Common Law, in the British Isles, in the Commonwealth and in the United States of America, it also carries articles in English on Roman Law and the European tradition and maintains a wide-ranging section of reviews of recent literature.

Women, Property and Islam

Palestinian Experiences, 1920–1990
Annelies Moors

According to Islamic law, women are entitled to inherit property, to receive a dowry at marriage, and to manage their own income. This study of different Palestinian women reveals the circumstances under which they can actually claim property rights and when they are prevented from doing so.

Henry Parker and the English Civil War

The Political Thought of the Public's 'Privado'

Michael Mendle

This is the first full study in 50 years of the author of the most celebrated political tract of the early years of the English Civil War, Observations upon Some of His Majesties Late Answers and Expresses. Mendle situates each of Parker's significant tracts in its polemical, intellectual, and political context. Parker emerges as a fierce opponent of clerical prevention, a strikingly brutal critic of the common law mind, and a leading proponent of parliamentary absolutism.

Stare Indecisus

The Alteration of Precedent on the Supreme Court, 1946–1992

Saul Brenner and Harold J. Spaeth

Although the concept of precedent is basic to the operation of the legal system, there has not yet been a full-length empirical study of why U.S. Supreme Court justices have chosen to alter precedent. This book attempts to fill that gap by analyzing those decisions of the Vinson, Warren, and Burger courts, as well as the first six terms of the Rehnquist Court, that formally altered precedent.

LAWYERS AGAINST LABOR

From Individual Rights to Corporate Liberalism

DANIEL R. ERNST

“A riveting study of the emergence of the modern state in the U.S.” — Melvyn Dubofsky, author of The State and Labor in Modern America

“Perhaps the best example yet of a ‘business-oriented’ history which is also essential reading for students of American labor.” — Leon Fink, author of In Search of the Working Class

In the first full treatment of the turn-of-the-century American Anti-Boycott Association (AABA), Daniel Ernst ably leads the reader through a compelling story of business and politics.

The AABA was an organization of small- to medium-sized employers whose staff litigated and lobbied against organized labor. Ernst captures in depth the characters involved, bringing them to life with a writer’s eye and a touch of wit.

PROTECTING WOMEN

Labor Legislation in Europe, the United States, and Australia, 1880-1920

EDITED BY ULLA WIKANDER, ALICE KESSLER-HARRIS, AND JANE LEWIS

“Superb. . . . Illuminates the ways that motherhood as cultural role, public discourse, political strategy, and lived experience intersected with welfare state development, labor market expansion, and definitions of citizenship.” — Eileen Boris, author of Home to Work: Motherhood and the Politics of Industrial Homework in the United States

Does “protective” legislation help preserve women’s capacities to mother, or is it intended to preserve men’s jobs? Does it help achieve workplace equality? Does it give the state the right to intrude into private family life and, if so, how far?

Contributors to Protecting Women analyze ideologies, attitudes, and effects of such legislation, raising profoundly disturbing questions and providing startling insights as to why the debates that originated more than a hundred years ago are still unresolved.
