This journal aims to define a field of historical sociology concerned with long-term continuities and discontinuities in the structure of past societies. Emphasis will be upon studies whose agenda or methodology combines elements from traditional fields such as history, sociology, law, demography, economics or anthropology, or ranges freely between them. There will be a strong commitment to comparative studies over a broad range of cultures and time spans.

Cambridge University Press express grateful thanks to Tulane Law School for financial support for Continuity and Change.
