WAY OF DEATH

Merchant Capitalism and the Angolan Slave Trade 1730-1830

Joseph C. Miller

“There have been studies on this or that aspect of the slave trade. . .but it took Miller to give us a full study of a slave trade, the little-known Portuguese trade in the South Atlantic. Insofar as any single book can be definitive, this one is. . .it is truly essential, truly a major advance in our understanding of African history, Brazilian history, the slave trade, and the world system in the eighteenth century.”

The African Poor

A History

JOHN ILIFFE

This first history of the poor of Sub-Saharan Africa begins in the monasteries of thirteenth-century Ethiopia, and ends in the South African resettlement sites of the 1980s.

'This wonderful book is a timely reminder of why the African past matters and how stimulating and provocative its study can be ... quite simply the most important book on Africa to be written in the past decade.'

National and Class Conflict in the Horn of Africa

JOHN MARKAKIS

John Markakis argues that the reasons for the violent and many-sided conflict that has shaken Ethiopia, Somalia, Sudan and Djibouti for three decades were fostered during the colonial period, when the disparity created and maintained by the power of the state became the prime cause of a conflict fought in the name of nations and classes.

African Studies Series 55

Francophone Sub-Saharan Africa, 1880-1985

PATRICK MANNING

This textbook introduces students to the history of the seventeen nations of Sub-Saharan Africa. Chapters cover economic and social history, government and politics, culture and religion. Particular features of the book are its integrated treatment of colonial and post-colonial history, its emphasis on social and cultural history, and its focus on cities.

Games Against Nature

An Eco-cultural History of the Nunu of Equatorial Africa

ROBERT HARMS

Professor Harms explores the changing relationship between nature and culture among the Nunu. He traces how competition pushed people into new environments and how adaptation to the new environments in turn led to new forms of competition.

CONTRIBUTIONS

Contributions to the Journal are welcomed. They may be submitted in either English or French. They should not exceed about 6000 words (excluding footnotes), except with the prior approval of the Editors. A summary of the contents of the article, not exceeding about 300 words in length, should be attached on a separate sheet. Contributors are asked to observe closely the conventions listed in the Notes for Contributors, Vol. XV, pp. 173–4. It is essential that contributors observe these conventions, which may be had on request from the Editors, as the Journal now goes straight into page proof. This severely limits the number of corrections which are possible.

Page proofs will be sent, if necessary by airmail, to each contributor (or his nominee) provided that the Editors have been given an address through which he can be reached without delay. Corrections should be kept to the minimum, and should be corrections, not new material. If they are to be incorporated in the master proof corrected by the Editors, it is important that the contributor should return the page proofs, by airmail if necessary, to the Editor named when they are sent out (and not to the Cambridge University Press), within ten days of his receipt of them.

Contributors of articles and review articles receive 25 free offprints. Additional offprints may be obtained at reasonable cost, provided that they are ordered before publication on the special form sent out with the page proofs.

All contributions and books for review should be addressed to The Editors, The Journal of African History, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London, WC1H 0XG.
