Small Firms and Entrepreneurship: An East-West Perspective

Zoltan J. Acs and

David B. Audretsch, Editors

This book analyses the relative importance of small firms in industrial economies, identifying their exact role and how this role has evolved over the last fifteen years. It reveals a consistent shift away from large firms and towards small enterprises in the manufacturing sectors of all Western countries, while small firms in Eastern Europe have been remarkably restricted, suggesting that a major challenge for reform in Central and Eastern Europe is to create the strong entrepreneurial sector which exists in the West.

This volume presents alternatives from exclusively Popperian methodology. The purpose of this volume is not to reject Popper, but to show there are other ways of construing methodology.
