"The Japan-China Phenomenon—conflict or compatibility?"
by Shuichi Kato

A rare opportunity to explore the relationships and comparative values of the two giant cultures of China and Japan as seen by one of Japan's leading literary figures.

Including an in-depth study of the latest twist in China's cultural revolution, the anti-Confucius movement.

"Readers of Mr Kato's book will find it illuminating. This book throws light, not only on recent events, but on the long-term Japanese and Chinese attitudes to life, and on the differences between them."

Arnold Toynbee.

Manuscripts

The China Quarterly welcomes the submission of manuscripts on all aspects of contemporary China and from all points of view, including those which deal with Taiwan and Overseas Chinese. Articles on China prior to 1949 are also welcome, particularly, but not exclusively, when these relate directly to contemporary China or to the history of the Chinese Communist Party. Articles should be submitted, together with a duplicate copy, to the editorial office. They should be typed in double spacing and, preferably, conform to the styling of The China Quarterly.

The China Quarterly is published by the Contemporary China Institute of the School of Oriental and African Studies, London University. The views expressed in articles are those of individual authors and do not necessarily represent the views of the Contemporary China Institute.

The Origins of the Cultural Revolution

I: Contradictions Among the People 1956-7

Roderick MacFarquhar

In the course of the strange events of the cultural revolution it became clear that Chairman Mao himself was the progenitor of the movement. The three volumes of this study will seek to explain Mao's apparently inexplicable behaviour by showing how a combination of political, economic, social, and international developments, as well as cultural ones, led him to make his fateful decision. £5.50 Royal Institute of International Affairs

The First Chinese Embassy to the West

The Journals of Kuo Sung-t'ao, Liu Hsi-Hung, and Chang Te-Yi

Translated and edited by
J. D. Frodsham

In 1876 Kuo Sung-t'ao set out to London as the first Chinese Ambassador to the West. In his journal this highly intelligent Confucian gentleman records his day-to-day impressions of the strange world he was entering. It makes a refreshing change from the abstract hypothesizing about China's attitude to the West and the West's attitude to China on which so much scholarly labour has been spent. Illustrated £4
