

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

EDMOND COSTANTINI, Professor of Political Science at the University of California, Davis, received his Ph.D. from the University of California, Berkeley. His articles have appeared in a number of social science journals.

RONALD A. FARRELL is Associate Professor of Sociology at the State University of New York at Albany. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Cincinnati and has authored several books and articles on the sociology of law and deviant behavior. His current work is in areas of deviance theory and corporate criminal liability.

HERBERT JACOB is Professor of Political Science at Northwestern University and President-elect of the Law and Society Association. He is principal investigator of the Governmental Responses to Crime Project and will be visiting fellow of Wolfson College, Oxford while working at the Centre for Socio-Legal Studies during the spring of 1981.

ROBERT F. KIDD is Assistant Professor of Psychology at Boston University. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin. Current work includes co-editorship of a three-volume series titled New Directions in Attribution Research.

JOEL KING is a Ph.D. candidate in Political Science at the University of California, Davis. His previous research efforts have been in the fields of international relations and American political parties.

ADAM PODGÓRECKI, formerly Professor at the University of Warsaw, is currently Professor of Sociology and Anthropology at Carleton University, Ottawa. He is the author of several books in Polish; his books in English include Law and Society (1974) and Practical Social Sciences (1975).

MICHAEL J. RICH is a graduate student in political science at Northwestern University and a Research Assistant in the Governmental Responses to Crime Project. He holds an M.A. from the University of Virginia and has served as research assistant for the Brookings Institution.

JOHN PAUL RYAN is Director of Research at the American Judicature Society. His major research interests are trial courts and their judges, and he is currently engaged in a comparative study of adjudication in four communities. He holds a Ph.D. in Political Science from Northwestern University.

MICHAEL J. SAKS is Associate Professor of Psychology at Boston College. He received his Ph.D. in 1975 from Ohio State University. Recent work includes co-authorship of Social Psychology in Court (1978) and co-editorship of The Use/Non-Use/Misuse of Social Research in the Courts (1980).

VICTORIA LYNN SWIGERT is Assistant Professor of Sociology at Holy Cross College. She has authored several books and articles in the areas of law and society and social deviance. Her current research interests include changing definitions of corporate liability.

GERALD TURKEL is a sociologist at the University of Delaware. He received his Ph.D. in 1976 from the University of California, Santa Barbara. His articles on social theory, law, and political ideology have appeared in various social science journals. His current research focuses on governmental financial assistance to major corporations.