At the Heart of the Empire

Indians and the Colonial Encounter in Late-Victorian Britain

ANTOINETTE BURTON

Burton focuses on the experiences of three Victorian travelers in Britain to illustrate how “Englishness” was made and remade in relation to imperialism. The accounts left by these three sojourners—all prominent, educated Indians—represent complex, critical ethnographies of “native” metropolitan society and offer revealing glimpses of what it was like to be a colonial subject in fin-de-siècle Britain.

But, as Rodner's beautifully illustrated book makes clear, Turner also drew inspiration from the sweeping new forces of the Industrial Revolution that were to transform Britain and the world during his lifetime.
