

Illustrations

	page
1. Universal Infirmary for Children, 1832, engraving by J. Shury after T. H. Sheppard. (The Wellcome Institute Library, London)	7
2. Christmas at University College Hospital, 1884, photo-engraving by Joseph Blomely (John) Swain, after a drawing by Horace Morehen, possibly intended for publication in a journal. (The Wellcome Institute Library, London)	19
3. New Year's Day at the North Eastern Hospital for Children, c. 1872, wood engraving by H. Harral after M.E.E. (The Wellcome Institute Library, London)	51
4. Two brothers before treatment with thyroid gland (From: Telford Smith, 'Case of Sporadic Cretinism Treated with Thyroid Gland', British Medical Journal , i (1894): 1178)	100
5. Two brothers after less than one year of thyroid gland therapy (From: Telford Smith, 'Case of Sporadic Cretinism Treated with Thyroid Gland', British Medical Journal , i (1894): 1179)	101
6. 'The Children's Garden', drawing by John Gascoine showing the fever block of the Hospital for Sick Children, Great Ormond Street, opened in 1878. This picture of it first appeared in the 1901 Annual Report of the Hospital. (By kind permission of the Hospital for Sick Children, Great Ormond Street)	114
7. Illustration of deformity following the spontaneous cure of disease of the hip joint (From Timothy Holmes, Surgical Treatment of the Diseases of Children , 1869, p. 440, fig. 72)	133