African Encyclopedia

This single-volume encyclopedia treats a whole range of subjects from an African viewpoint: economic development, industry, and agriculture, society, religion, and mythology. Each African country has its own article and there are separate articles on African peoples, languages, historic empires, and on contemporary writers, artists, and leading political figures. £4 paper covers £1.50

---

Chronology of African History

---

G. S. P. Freeman-Grenville

---

This is a comprehensive chronology in tabular form, setting out the known or approximate date of every important event in African history between c. 1000 B.C. and 31 December 1971. It enables the reader to see at a glance the course of events in different regions of Africa, as well as the main events in the rest of the world. £5

---

General Elections in South Africa 1943–1970

---

Kenneth A. Heard

---

This is the first comprehensive account of the general elections in South Africa from the United Party victory in which General Smuts achieved his greatest personal political triumph until the Afrikaner Nationalists became even more firmly entrenched in power. £10.50 OUP South Africa

---

The Chronology of Oral Tradition

---

Quest for a Chimera

---

David P. Henige

---

Chronology is probably the weakest aspect of oral historical materials. The author discusses the various processes by which oral chronology can be distorted and explains the circumstances which promote and facilitate such distortions. Finally he analyses the traditions of some Fante and Asante stools in terms of the principles he has advanced in order to determine their chronological value. £4.75 Oxford Studies in African Affairs

---

Main Currents in Zambian Humanist Thought

---

Henry S. Meebelo

---

Paper covers £3.35 OUP East Africa
