National Association for Asian American and Pacific Education National Scholar Awards

The National Association for Asian American and Pacific Education is sponsoring the National Scholar Awards on Asian American and Pacific Island Education. The purpose of the awards program is to encourage and promote scholarly writing on the educational concerns and issues facing persons of Asian or Pacific Island ancestry in the United States.

NAAAPE believes that the National Scholar Awards will provide a means to communicate critical problems confronting Asian and Pacific Americans, and provide recognition to individuals conducting research on educational questions related to this group.

There will be two categories; one for scholars early in their careers and one for advanced scholars. An honorarium of $500 and a certificate of recognition will be awarded to the best original scholarly paper in each category.
