Manuscripts

The China Quarterly welcomes the submission of manuscripts from scholars, including research students, on all aspects of contemporary China and from all points of view, including those which deal with Taiwan and the Overseas Chinese. Articles on China prior to 1949 are also welcome, particularly, but not exclusively, when these relate directly to contemporary China or to the history of the Chinese Communist Party. Articles should be submitted, in triplicate, to the editorial office. They should be typed in double spacing, footnotes being placed at the end of the article; preferably conform to the styling of The China Quarterly and normally not exceed 8–10,000 words in length. A style sheet is available upon request. Submission of a manuscript is taken to imply that it has not previously been published and that it is not currently being considered elsewhere.

The China Quarterly is published by the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. The views expressed in articles are those of individual authors and do not necessarily represent the views of the School.

Buddhica Britannica is the name of a publication series recently initiated under the auspices of the Institute of Buddhist Studies, Tring, U.K. and supported by the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. The overall aim of this series is to publish new and original material on Buddhist religion, philosophy, history, art and other related subjects. The series will include studies on all historical periods of Indian Buddhism and on Buddhist traditions established in different countries of Asia. Contributions are solicited from scholars competent in different aspects of Buddhist studies. It is hoped that the series will be of interest not only to scholars and students of Buddhism, but also to the general reader.

Individual Issues of Buddhica Britannica:

The Buddhist Heritage, ed. by T. Skorupski. Released in Autumn 1989; 276 pages, 11 ill; £ 20. This issue comprises fourteen learned articles on different aspects of Buddhism in India, Southeast Asia, Nepal, China, Korea, and Japan.

Indo-Tibetan Studies, ed. by T. Skorupski. Released in Spring 1990; 332 pages, 33 ill; £25. The second issue comprises twenty four articles on a variety of topics related to Indo-Tibetan culture. The impressive selection of articles includes several seminal papers on Tibetan religious literature and history; Indo-Tibetan art and iconography; and selected translations and commentaries from tantric and medical texts.

Ian Astley-Kristensen, *The Rishukyō, A Translation and Commentary in the Light of Modern Japanese Scholarship. Projected for Spring 1991; appr. 300 pages; £27. This work represents an English translation and a full study of Amoghavajra's Chinese version of the Prajñāpāramitā in 150 ślokas in the light of the commentaries written by Amoghavajra (705-774) himself as well as by Kūkai (774-835), the founder of the Shingon tradition, and Japanese studies written in modern times. This text occupies a central place in the history, doctrines and practice of Japanese Shingon Buddhism.
