Members of the Association may look forward to changes in the appearance of the ASA's regular publications. The September 1974 issue of the African Studies Review will have a cover distinctly different from the familiar red and black. The cover of Issue will no longer change from number to number within a single volume. Sharply rising costs of paper will probably make a change in the size or format of the Newsletter necessary within the next several months.

The two new annual publications, History in Africa and the ASA Review of Books, will also be affected by rising costs. Preparation, production, and distribution of five to six hundred copies of each journal will amount to about three thousand dollars. Thus the price to members of $5.00 per volume, and $7.50 for non-members.

We are now using our non-profit permit on all large-scale mailings of notifications previously sent first-class. The savings on postage for each one-ounce envelope is eight cents. Please don't discard mail from us because it looks like an advertisement. There may be something—such as a ballot, a questionnaire, or a dues notice—which you will want.
