GRANTS, AWARDS, PRIZES

Latin American Teaching Fellowships

Fellowship and internship opportunities under the Latin American Teaching Fellowships program are available for the 1970-71 academic year. Applicants should be graduate students in the social and natural sciences who have completed all preliminary requirements except dissertation for the PhD, or recent recipients of LLB or MBA degrees. Fluency in Spanish or Portuguese is required prior to departure for Latin America. L.A.T.F. Fellows spend approximately half time teaching in a Latin American university, generally under the immediate supervision of a senior Latin American professor. The other half time is available for research and/or internship activities. More than 60 L.A.T.F. Fellows have been teaching in universities in Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela. Applications and further information can be obtained by writing: Gary A. Glenn, Associate Director, Latin American Teaching Fellowships, Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Tufts University, Medford, Massachusetts 02155.

Ogden Mills Fellowships Offered by American Museum of Natural History

Each year the Department of Anthropology of the American Museum of Natural History sponsors Ogden Mills Fellowships, for research in residence at the museum. Research may be conducted in any major branches of anthropology, with preference given to projects which make most use of the museum's collections and archives. No rigid requirements exist as to candidate eligibility; applicants are judged on the basis of scholastic records and research aims. Each appointment carries a fellowship grant of $8000, with possible allowance for dependents. Information concerning application procedures and deadlines may be requested from Harry L. Shapiro, Department of Anthropology, American Museum of Natural History, New York, N. Y. 10024.
