Americas THE POLICY JOURNAL FOR OUR HEMISPHERE
QUARTERLY

PITT LATIN AMERICAN SERIES

Catherine M. Conaghan and John Charles Chasteen, Editors

The Pitt Latin American Series began in 1968. Since then PLAS has grown to include a wide array of distinguished books from a variety of disciplinary, ideological, and methodological perspectives on every aspect of Latin American politics, society, economics, and culture—with particular strength in the disciplines of politics and history.

ILLUMINATIONS: Cultural Formations of the Americas

John Beverley and Sara Castro-Klarén, Editors

The Illuminations series features cutting-edge books on Latin American and inter-American societies, histories, and cultures that offer new perspectives from postcolonial, subaltern, feminist, and cultural studies.

In highlighting cultural formations of the Americas, it aims to represent work that not only is national in focus, but also crosses regions and continents, encompassing the spatial relations of Atlantic studies, of precolonial or prenational territoriality, and of U.S. Latino and other diasporic cultures.

Mexican Mosaic: A Brief History of Mexico

Jürgen Buchenau, University of North Carolina, Charlotte

The most concise introduction to Mexican history on the market, this new book emphasizes two major themes as organizing principles: Mexico in the global community, and the negotiation of power. In keeping with the overarching purpose of the Global History Series, Mexican Mosaic analyzes the way Mexicans interacted with the rest of the outside world. As political leaders, soldiers, consumers, entrepreneurs, and migrants—indeed, in all aspects of their lives—Mexican men and women have increasingly confronted global influences, by no means limited to their interrelationships with the culture and economy of their powerful neighbors to the north. The second theme analyzes the way Mexicans have contested and negotiated their place in a society marked by great social differences, limited access to political power, impartial justice, and repeated upheaval. Though this volume focuses on political and economic history, colorful anecdotes and brief biographical sketches give readers an appreciation of Mexico's cultural and social history, specifically of how ordinary Mexicans lived, making Mexican Mosaic the ideal core text for undergraduates of all levels and insightful and supplementary reading for survey courses in Latin American, World, and Diplomatic history. 160 pages. includes photographs, maps, bibliographical essay, and index. paperback, $16.95 (ISBN: 978-0-88295-263-5) © 2008.

Cuba Libre: A Brief History of Cuba

Paul J. Dosal, University of South Florida

With its selection of facts and figures and steadily paced storyline, this succinct and lively history of Cuba, from first contact with Europeans to the present, will appeal to students and instructors alike as interesting and informative reading for the Latin American, World, or U.S. History surveys as well as more-specialized courses in Cuban history or Latin American–U.S. relations. 178 pages. Includes Photographs, Maps, Bibliographical Essay, and Index. Paperback, $14.95 (ISBN: 978-0-88295-246-8) © 2006.

How to End Poverty

NEW

“I wish politicians of all ideological persuasions would pay careful attention to the arguments expounded in Making Poor Nations Rich.”

—Ernesto Zedillo, former President of Mexico; Director, Yale Center for the Study of Globalization

Why do some nations become rich while others remain poor? Traditional economic theory has done little to answer this question. Now, through case studies from Asia, Africa, Latin America, and Europe, Making Poor Nations Rich argues for examining the critical role of entrepreneurs, private property rights, and economic freedom.

“Lessons from the Poor shows that the mightiest soldiers in the war on poverty are poor people themselves. The book is profoundly hopeful—as governments remove obstacles to entrepreneurship, there is much potential for the poor to lift themselves out of poverty.”

—William R. Easterly, Professor of Economics and Director, Development Research Institute, New York University

Combining rigorous economic and political analysis with narrative highlights, this volume chronicles remarkable stories that will inspire and educate readers. As an important contribution to the literature on economic development, Lessons from the Poor is a must-read.

MARÍA ELENA MARTÍNEZ

"Genealogical Fictions is the first serious treatment in English of the origins of the sistema de castas and racial ideology in colonial Mexico. Martínez also has much to say about the development of Mexican society in the seventeenth century, a largely neglected period that is only now beginning to attract the attention of contemporary historians. This is an important and original work and a first-rate addition to the existing literature."

DECONSTRUCTING LEGITIMACY

VICEROYS, MERCHANTS,
AND THE MILITARY IN LATE
COLONIAL PERU

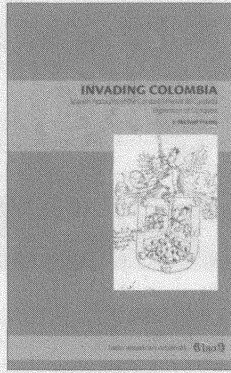

Patricia H. Marks

"Examining the bitter trade disputes that divided Peru and shaped its conflicts with Spain, Patricia Marks casts new light on Spanish America's bumpy transition from colony to republic. In delightfully clear prose, she contributes to our understanding of the Wars of Independence and the trans-Atlantic struggles about 'free trade' and representation. This is a landmark book that offers many surprising and welcome discoveries."

J. Michael Francis

Through a series of firsthand primary accounts, translated into English for the first time, Invading Colombia reconstructs the compelling tale of the Jiménez expedition, the early stages of the Spanish conquest of Muisca territory, and the foundation of the city of Santa Fé de Bogotá. These highly engaging accounts not only challenge many current assumptions about the nature of Spanish conquests in the New World, but they also reveal a richly entertaining, yet tragic, tale that rivals the great conquest narratives of Mexico and Peru.

IN SEARCH OF PROVIDENCE Transnational Mayan Identities

Patricia Foxen

Traveling back and forth between the Guatemalan highlands and Providence, Rhode Island, Patricia Foxen followed the migration paths of a community of K'iche' Indians, often acting as a courier to bring news and photographs to families. This ethnography juxtaposes the context of post-war reconstruction at home, shaped by a fragile institutional peace process and emerging pan-Maya movement, with the hidden, marginal lives of mostly undocumented K'iche' transmigrants in New England, and describes the continuous movement of people, money, symbols, and ideas between the two locations.

The Latin American Research Review is the official journal of the Latin American Studies Association and is published to achieve greater and more systematic communication among individuals, institutions, and organizations concerned with scholarly studies and disseminating knowledge relating to Latin America.

The Latin American Research Review was founded with the support of contributions from a number of sponsoring institutions acknowledged in past issues of LARR, and from a supplementary grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation (for LARR Online).

Membership in the Latin American Studies Association includes a subscription to the Latin American Research Review. Dues for calendar year 2008 and three-year rates are listed below. Checks for membership should be made payable to LASA and sent to LASA, 416 Bellefield Hall, University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, PA 15260. Payment may be in the form of a check in U.S. dollars drawn on a U.S. bank, a money order in U.S. dollars, or a traveler's check in U.S. dollars with signatures on both lines made out to LASA. LASA also accepts Visa and MasterCard. To become a member or renew your membership online, please visit http://lasa.international.pitt.edu/membership_new.html. Membership forms can also be obtained by contacting our office—telephone (412) 648-7929; fax (412) 624-7145; e-mail lasa@pitt.edu
