

the International Institute of Administrative Sciences, will be held in Rangoon in March of 1954. Mr. Laves has been in South Asia during July of this year to consult with the governments of the area concerning their needs and interests in the Conference.

Alpheus Thomas Mason, McCormick Professor of Jurisprudence, Princeton University, spent the summer of 1953 at the University of Tokyo giving lectures on American political thought before the Seminar in American Studies, under the joint auspices of the University of Tokyo and Stanford University.

Dean E. McHenry, professor of political science at the University of California (Los Angeles), delivered an address on "Professors and Politics" at the Conference on Citizen Participation in Politics held at International House, Berkeley, California, in April, 1953. The University of California (Berkeley) was host institution to the conference, which was sponsored by the Citizenship Clearing House.

Norman D. Palmer, professor of political science at the University of Pennsylvania, who is now in India as a visiting professor on a Fulbright grant, delivered a series of twelve lectures on international affairs at Lucknow University during the last week in February, under the auspices of the law faculty and the department of political science. In March, he visited the University of Ceylon and Madras University under the auspices of UNESCO. At each of these universities he gave lectures and consulted with officials of the administration and with members of the faculty. Later in March he went to West Pakistan, where he consulted with administration officials and faculty members of the University of the Punjab, Forman Christian College, and Government College in Lahore; he delivered a lecture at the Law College of the University of Peshawar, and participated in a four-day "Colloquium on Learning in the Twentieth Century" at Peshawar University, under the joint sponsorship of the University and the United States Education Foundation/Pakistan.

George A. Peek, Jr., assistant professor of political science at the University of Michigan, was the 1953 recipient of the 1919 Literary Class Award which is given annually to the outstanding teacher among the junior professors in the College of Literature, Science and the Arts. The award carries a stipend of $1000.

Frances Perkins, former Secretary of Labor (1933-1945) and U. S. Civil Service Commissioner (1946-1953), served as visiting lecturer at the University of Illinois during the period from April 13 to May 22, 1953. Miss Perkins appeared under the joint sponsorship of the department of political science, the Institute of Government and Public Affairs, the School of Social Work and the Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations. In addition to one general university lecture on "The Roosevelt I Knew," Miss Perkins conducted fourteen seminar sessions on subjects in the general fields of federal civil service, labor, social security, and political pressures on administration.

Lindsay Rogers, of Columbia University, delivered the Walgreen Lectures at the University of Chicago during the spring of 1953.

Donald C. Stone, former special assistant to the Director for Mutual Security, has been appointed President of Springfield College, Springfield, Massachusetts.

Eric Voegelin has recently been designated a Boyd Professor, a newly created category of professorships at Louisiana State University for recognizing distinguished and outstanding services to scholarship.

Paul W. Wager, professor of political science at the University of North Carolina, has been elected to the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen for a term of four years.

APPOINTMENTS AND STAFF CHANGES

Henry J. Abraham has been promoted to assistant professor in political science at the University of Pennsylvania.

Robert Agger, recently of the University of Oregon, has been given a one-year appointment as instructor in political science at the University of North Carolina.

Benjamin Akzin, Herbert Samuel Professor of Political Science and Constitutional Law and Dean of the Law School at the Hebrew

University in Jerusalem, filled a visiting professorship at the University of Michigan during the summer of 1953. He lectured on the government of Israel and participated in public law seminars in the University of Michigan School of Law.

Vincent M. Barnett, Jr., who has served during the past two years in the American Embassy in Rome, has returned to Williams College as professor and chairman of the department of political science.

George I. Blanksten, of Northwestern University, is on leave of absence until January, 1954, participating in a study of the effect of Point Four programs upon the countries of Latin America. This investigation is being financed by the Ford Foundation and is being directed by Professor Theodore W. Schultz of the University of Chicago.

W. Theodore Bluhm, of the University of Rochester, has accepted an appointment at Brown University as instructor of political science.

Frank R. Brandenburg, instructor in political science at the University of Pennsylvania, has been awarded the Frederic Courtland Penfield Travelling Fellowship and the Henry L. and Grace Doherty Fellowship for Research on Political Parties in Mexico. During 1953-54 he will be on leave from the University of Pennsylvania to spend the year in Mexico.

Ben G. Burnett, formerly a member of the faculty at Kent State University, has accepted a position as instructor of political science at Whittier College, beginning in September, 1953. His work will include courses in Latin-American government and politics.

James M. Burns has been promoted to the rank of full professor at Williams College.

Paul Camp, personnel adviser to the Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service, has been promoted to the rank of adjunct professor of public administration at the American University.

William N. Cassella has been awarded the National Municipal League Staff Fellowship for 1953-54 and is on leave from the department of political science at the University of Missouri for that period.

H. Paul Castleberry, assistant professor of political science at the State College of Washington, will spend the 1953-54 academic year at American University in Cairo under a Fulbright award lecturing in the field of international relations.

David T. Cattell has been appointed instructor in political science at the University of California (Los Angeles).

James C. Charlesworth, professor of political science and supervisor of the educational program of the Institute of Local and State Government at the University of Pennsylvania, assumed the presidency of the American Academy of Political and Social Science on June 1. He was elected to this post upon the retirement of Dr. Ernest Minor Patterson, internationally noted economist who served as president of the Academy since 1930. During the past several years Professor Charlesworth has been identified with the work of the Academy as associate editor of The Annals.

John L. Chase, recently of Brown University, has been given a one-year appointment as visiting lecturer in political science at the University of North Carolina.

Harwood L. Childs, professor of politics, Princeton University, has been granted a year's leave of absence to accept an appointment to the faculty of the School of Public Administration in Rio de Janeiro for 1953-54. The School was established by the United Nations in cooperation with the Brazilian Government and the Vargas Foundation in 1952 in connection with the Technical Assistance program of the U.N. Professor Childs will give lectures and seminars in government public relations.

James B. Christoph, instructor in political science at the University of Minnesota, has been granted a Fulbright award for a year's study at the London School of Economics. He plans to study the political rights of state workers in Great Britain.

Dorothy I. Cline, assistant professor of government at the University of New Mexico, was recently appointed a member of the newly created Advisory Board to the New Mexico Land Commissioner's Office.

Morris H. Cohen has been promoted to associate professor of government at Clark University. Mr. Cohen, who returned to Clark in the fall of 1952 after a year in Washington, D. C. and Chicago on a Ford Foundation grant, was director of a program of a team of civic leaders from Neumuenster, Germany, who spent two weeks in March, 1953 in Worcester under the sponsorship of the Governmental Affairs Institute.

Joseph D. Cooper, executive director, Salary Stabilization Board, is serving as a professorial lecturer in public administration at the American University.

Brownlee S. Corrin has been reappointed to the staff of the political science department of Goucher College. During 1953-54, he will present a course in politics using the internship technique in political party offices and civic organizations in the Baltimore area.

Edward S. Corwin, formerly of Princeton University, has accepted an appointment as visiting professor on the graduate faculty of the New School for Social Research. During the second semester of 1953-54, Professor Corwin will teach at Whittier College where he will offer work in contemporary aspects of national constitutional law.

L. Gray Cowan, assistant professor of government at Columbia University, has been granted a two-years' leave of absence to undertake a study of comparative colonial administration in the British, French and Belgian territories of Central Africa.

Winston W. Crouch, University of California (Los Angeles), has been named President of the Los Angeles County Civil Service Commission. Professor Crouch has also been appointed to the board of trustees of the John Randolph Haynes and Dora Haynes Foundation.

Robert F. Cushman has resigned his assistant professorship at the Ohio State University to become associate professor at New York University, where he will give the graduate courses in public law at Washington Square.

A. P. Daggett, of Bowdoin College, was a visiting professor at Columbia University during the summer session.

Melvin D. Davidoff, head, Research and Analysis, Test Development Section, U. S. Civil Service Commission, is serving as a professorial lecturer in public administration at the American University.

James C. Davies, Carnegie Fellow in Political Science at the University of Michigan

Survey Research Center, has been appointed assistant professor of political science at the California Institute of Technology.

Herbert A. Deane has been appointed assistant professor of government at Columbia University.

John T. Dempsey, who has spent the past two years in graduate work at the University of Michigan, has rejoined the staff of the department of political science at the University of Detroit.

Nicolas de Rochefort is serving as a professorial lecturer in public administration at the American University.

Conley H. Dillon, who has been on leave in Washington with the Office of Price Stabilization, resumed his duties in June as professor and head of the department of political science at Marshall College.

Richard W. Dodge, who has recently completed his doctorate at the University of Michigan, has been appointed to an instructorship in the department of social studies at Case Institute of Technology.

Paul S. Dull resumed his duties in September at the University of Oregon after a year's sabbatical leave. Professor Dull spent the major part of the past year in Japan studying the impact of the war, occupation, and recent political changes in local government in Japan.

John Eaves, Jr. has been awarded a Ford Foundation fellowship to study at the School of African and Oriental Studies, University of London.

Charles P. Edwards, formerly of the University of Connecticut and Tufts College, is teaching this year in the department of government at the University of New Hampshire.

Harold E. Engle, who is completing his dissertation for the doctorate at Columbia University, has joined the staff of the Center for Research on World Political Institutions at Princeton University for the year 1953-54 as research assistant. Mr. Engle was with the Center on a half-time basis during the past year.

David G. Farrelly, assistant professor of political science at the University of California (Los Angeles), has received a grant from the Social Science Research Council to supervise an undergraduate student project on California electoral behavior.

Milton Feder has been appointed predoctoral instructor in political science at the University of Michigan.

Russell H. Fifield, associate professor of political science at the University of Michigan, who is spending a sabbatical year studying foreign policy in the Philippines and Southeast Asia, has been appointed to a consultantship on this area in the U. S. Department of State.

Edgar S. Furniss, Jr., assistant professor of politics, Princeton University, has returned from a year in Paris under a Social Science Research Council Faculty Fellowship and a Bicentennial Preceptorship. While in France he worked on particular aspects of the French foreign policy under the Fourth Republic.

Peter Gay has received an appointment as assistant professor in Columbia College.

John J. George, professor of political science at Rutgers University, was a visiting professor at Emory University during the summer quarter, 1953.

Frank K. Gibson, formerly an instructor in political science at the University of North Carolina, has been appointed to a research assistantship in the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of Virginia.

Juanita Gibson, instructor in the School of Public Administration at Florida State College, spent the academic year 1952-53 on work toward the doctorate at the University of Michigan.

E. Drexel Godfrey has been promoted to an assistant professorship in political science at Williams College.

Ralph M. Goldman, who has been staff and editorial associate on the American Political Science Association's Cooperative Research Project on Convention Delegations, has been appointed to the staff of the Brookings Institution in Washington, D. C.

Charles H. Goodman, research psychologist, Department of the Air Force, has been promoted to the rank of adjunct professor of public administration at the American University.

D. Thurston Griggs, recently a lecturer in the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, joined the faculty of Drew University in September as assistant professor of international relations.

Bertram M. Gross, research consultant to the Public Affairs Institute and legislative consultant to Senator James E. Murray of Montana, will serve for the next two years as planning adviser on the Economic Advisory Staff in the Office of the Prime Minister of Israel, commencing in July, 1953.

C. P. Harper has been advanced to a full professorship in political science at Marshall College.

Henry C. Hart, of the University of Wisconsin, has received a Ford Foundation grant for the year 1953-54 to study river-valley developments in India.

Ray F. Harvey has been appointed head of the department of government in the Graduate School of Arts and Science of New York University.

Alexander Heard, of the University of North Carolina, will be released from the major portion of his teaching duties during the next two years to make a study of "Money in Politics" which is being financed by a grant to the Institute for Research in Social Science by the Stern Foundation.

John G. Heinberg, professor and chairman of the department of political science, University of Missouri, was a visiting professor of political science during the 1953 summer session at the University of Nebraska.

Charles M. Hersh has been promoted to an associate professorship in political science and public administration at the American University.

Edward J. Heubel, of the University of Minnesota, has been appointed to an instructorship in political science at Reed College.

Chesney Hill, professor of political science at the University of Missouri, has been granted leave for the fall semester to join the civilian faculty of the National War College, Washington, D. C., where he will be a member of the international affairs committee.

John Perry Horlacher has been appointed chairman of the department of political science at the University of Pennsylvania to succeed Dr. Charles C. Rohlfing. Dr. Horlacher has been on leave of absence for two years as chairman of the Regional Wage Stabilization Board in Philadelphia.

Charles D. Hounshell, assistant professor of political science at Emory University, will be on leave during 1953-54 under a Ford Foundation grant to study international relations at Princeton University.

Ronald F. Howell, who received his degree from the Johns Hopkins University in 1952, and has been in Europe during the past year studying European federation, has accepted an instructorship at Emory University for the academic year 1953-54.

Ralph K. Huitt, of the University of Wisconsin, has received a Faculty Fellowship for the year 1953-54 from the Fund for the Advancement of Education. He will spend a year in Washington studying the Congress.

Charles S. Hyneman has been appointed chairman of the department of political science at Northwestern University for a two-year period, beginning September 1, 1953.

David L. Jickling has been appointed instructor in the department of government and international relations at Carleton College.

Jack T. Johnson, who had been on leave of absence from the department of political science at the state University of Iowa, has resigned and will continue in his post with the Office of Civilian Defense in Washington, D. C.

Frank Jones, who was on a leave of absence with the Office of the High Command in Germany, resumed his duties in July, 1953, as associate professor of political science at the University of Utah.

Joseph E. Kallenbach has been advanced to a full professorship in political science at the University of Michigan.

Herbert Kaufman, recently a lecturer in government at the City College of New York, has been appointed to an assistant professorship in political science at Yale University.

David C. Knapp has been appointed assistant professor of government at the University of New Hampshire to teach in the areas of public administration and state and local government.

Martin Kriesberg, Production and Marketing Administration, Department of Agriculture, is serving as a professorial lecturer in public administration at the American University.

Allan A. Kuusisto, assistant professor of government at the University of New Hampshire, will be in Finland during the next academic year on a Fulbright research grant.

Robert Lacour-Gayet, head of the department of history and government of St. Johns University, has been chosen president of the Société des Professeurs Français en Amérique.

Lionel H. Laing has been promoted to a full professorship in political science at the University of Michigan.

Robert S. Lancaster, assistant professor of political science at the University of the South, has been appointed Dean of Men in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Robert E. Lane, assistant professor of political science at Yale University, has been awarded a Faculty Fellowship by the Fund for the Advancement of Education, and will be on leave of absence for the academic year 1953-54.

John W. Lederle resumed his duties in September as professor of political science and director of the Institute of Public Administration at the University of Michigan. During the past year he served as director of the Institute of Public Administration at the University of the Philippines.

Carl Leiden returned to Marshall College in September after spending a year at the University of Peshawar, Pakistan, on a Fulbright appointment. He has been promoted to an associate professorship in political science.

Werner Levi, University of Minnesota, spent the summer in Europe where he taught an international seminar in France and gave a paper before a meeting of the International Sociological Association in Liege.

Gordon K. Lewis, formerly of the University of California (Los Angeles), taught in the 1953 summer session at Michigan State College.

Ernest M. Linton retired on July 1, after having served in the department of government at Indiana University for 40 years. Professor Linton began his service in the department as the first graduate assistant when the department was separated from the department of history and political science in 1914. During recent years his teaching has been concentrated in the field of international relations.

Harvey C. Mansfield, on leave from the Ohio State University, is a member of the visiting civilian professorial staff at the National War College, Washington, D. C., for the fall term.

Edward T. McCormick, president of the American Stock Exchange and former Securities and Exchange Commissioner, has accepted an appointment as a special lecturer in finance for 1953-54 in the School of Business and Public Administration at Cornell University.

William M. McGovern, of the department of political science at Northwestern University, returned on September 1 from a year's leave of absence which he spent as a member of the faculty of the Naval War College at Newport, Rhode Island.

William Reynolds McIntyre, a graduate student in political science at the University of Michigan, has been awarded the Exchange Fellowship and will attend Queen's University, Belfast, Ireland, during the academic year 1953-54.

Edward McWhinney, lecturer in law and political science at Yale University from 1951 to 1953, has been appointed assistant professor of political science at that institution.

Robert O. McWilliams, who recently completed his doctorate at the University of Michigan, has been appointed instructor in political science at Yale University.

Dwayne Marvick has been appointed to a part-time lectureship in political science at the University of Michigan for 1953-54. He will also serve as research associate in the Institute of Public Administration assigned to the Phoenix Project.

Wallace Mendelson, professor of political science at the University of Tennessee, has been granted a leave of absence for the 1953-54 academic year to serve as research assistant to Mr. Justice Frankfurter.

James W. Miller, of the political science department at Michigan State College, has been advanced to a full professorship.

Lyman Moore, executive officer, National Institute of Mental Health, is serving as a professorial lecturer in public administration at the American University.

Forrest D. Murden, Jr. returned to Columbia University in September as administrative assistant in the School of International Affairs after serving three years with the U. S. Mission to the United Nations.

James N. Murray, of the department of political science at Northwestern University, taught the summer session at Mexico City College, Mexico City, Mexico.

Fred W. Neal, assistant professor of political science at the University of Colorado, will be a visiting lecturer at the University of Michigan during 1953-54 while continuing work toward his doctorate in political science.

Rita W. Nealon, of New York University, has been appointed associate director of the Citizenship Clearing House for Southern New York.

H. C. Nixon has been promoted from lecturer to professor of political science at Vanderbilt University. He taught during the second half of the summer session at Duke University.

Clark Norton, professor of political science at DePauw University, taught at West Virginia University during the summer session.

Georges Parthemos, who recently received the doctorate at the University of North Carolina, joined the staff of the department of political science at the University of Georgia in September. He will teach courses in political theory and has assumed the editorship of the Georgia Local Government Journal.

Tibor Payzs, chairman of the department of political science at the University of Detroit, has been designated director of the newly established Center for Human Relations at that institution.

Roy V. Peel, past director of the Bureau of the Census, was appointed, on May 4, 1953, professor and head of the department of political science and director of the Institute of Government at the University of Utah.

Nathaniel Peffer is spending his sabbatical leave from Columbia University as a Fulbright lecturer at the University of Queensland, Brisbane, Australia.

Whitney T. Perkins, recently of the University of Denver, has accepted an appointment at Brown University as associate professor of political science.

J. Cass Phillips has been appointed professor of political science at the University of Pennsylvania.

R. Vance Presthus, associate professor of political science at Michigan State College, taught in the 1953 summer session at San Diego State College.

Segundo V. Linares Quintana, until recently a professor at the Universities of La Plata and Buenos Aires, Argentina, is serving as Burton Craige Professor of Jurisprudence at the University of North Carolina during the fall semester.

Robert S. Rankin, professor and chairman of the department of political science at Duke University, was a visiting professor at Columbia University during the summer session.

Joseph M. Ray was appointed, effective June 1, 1953, as the first civilian chief of the Information and Education Branch, Personnel Services Division, Headquarters, United States Air Force. Dr. Ray is on leave from the University of Maryland, where he served as Dean of the College of Special and Continuation Services. He was formerly head of the department of government and politics at that university.

John S. Reshetar, lecturer in politics at Princeton University, has been awarded a Faculty Fellowship by the Ford Foundation and will be on leave for the academic year 1953-54.

J. William Robinson, chairman of the department of political science and international relations at Whittier College, will be on sabbatical leave of absence during the school year 1953-54.

Jack W. Rodgers has been advanced from instructor to assistant professor of political science at the University of Nebraska.

Victor G. Rosenblum has returned to the University of California at Berkeley as assistant professor of political science and supervisor of the Office of American Institutions, after seven months in Washington as staff associate with the Governmental Affairs Institute.

Clinton Rossiter, of Cornell University, has been granted a Guggenheim fellowship for a study of conservative political thought, and will be on sabbatical leave for the academic year 1953-54.

E. E. Schattschneider, professor of government at Wesleyan University, has been appointed visiting lecturer at Yale University for the year 1953-54.

S. Rezazadeh Shafaq is serving as a visiting professor at Columbia University.

Chandler Shaw, professor and head of the department of history and political science at Bethany College, taught at West Virginia University during the summer session.

Hale T. Shenefield has returned to the Program Office of the Institute of Inter-American Affairs in Washington after a year as program officer with the ICA-IIAA in Santiago, Chile.

John C. Shover, manpower specialist, Office of Under Secretary of the Navy, is serving as a professorial lecturer in public administration at the American University.

Thomas W. Simons, of the State Department, will return to Columbia University in 1953-54 to lecture in the Center of Pakistan Studies.

Ralph Smuckler, of the political science department at Michigan State College, has been advanced to the rank of assistant professor.

Albert Somit has returned to New York University as associate professor of government and associate director of the Falk Program of Training in Active Citizenship. Professor Somit has just completed a tour of duty as Psychological Warfare Intelligence Officer with the United States Army in Europe.

O. Glenn Stahl, executive vice-chairman, Federal Personnel Council, has been promoted to the rank of adjunct professor of public administration at the American University.

Harold Stein, recently staff director of the Inter-University Case Program and consultant to the Public Administration Clearing House, has been appointed director of a three-year Twentieth Century Fund research project on civil-military relations. During the academic year 1953-54 he will also be visiting lecturer at the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University.

John B. Stewart has received an appointment as assistant professor of government at Barnard College.

Paul D. Stewart has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of political science at Marshall College.

Albert L. Sturm resumed his duties in September as professor of political science at West Virginia University after serving as visiting professor at the University of Michigan the past year. During the summer months he was acting director of the Institute of Public Administration at Michigan.

Joseph L. Sutton has been appointed instructor in the department of government at Indiana University and will teach courses in world politics, Far Eastern government and Far Eastern political thought.

Rinehart John Swenson has retired from New York University after having served for thirty-three years. Professor Swenson was formerly chairman of the department of government in Washington Square College and head of the government department in the Graduate School of Arts and Science.

Sterling Tatsuji Takeuchi is spending his second year as visiting lecturer at Columbia University in the East Asian Institute and the department of public law and government.

Joseph Tanenhaus, instructor at Wells College, has been appointed assistant professor of government at New York University.

Philip B. Taylor, Jr. has been promoted to an assistant professorship in political science at the University of Michigan.

Morgan Thomas has been promoted to the rank of associate professor in the department of political science at the University of Michigan.

Kenneth W. Thompson, of the University of Chicago, accepted an appointment as associate professor of political science at Northwestern University, effective September, 1953.

Edwin Timbers, who recently completed his graduate work at the University of Michigan, has been appointed assistant professor of government at St. Lawrence University, Canton, New York.

Lois Torrence has been appointed assistant professor of political science at the American University.

R. J. Tresolini has been advanced to the rank of associate professor of political science at Lehigh University. During the summer, Professor Tresolini directed a research study carried on by students from funds provided by the Social Science Research Council.

Amry Vandenbosch, of the University of Kentucky, will hold the Burton Craige Professorship of Jurisprudence at the University of North Carolina during the spring semester of 1954.

Clement E. Vose, who has been an instructor in government at Beloit College during the past academic year, has accepted an appointment as assistant professor in the department of political science at Western Reserve University.

John C. Wahlke, of Amherst College, has accepted an appointment as assistant professor of political science at Vanderbilt University, effective September, 1953.

H. O. Waldby, on leave of absence from Florida State University, is serving for one year as visiting assistant professor of political science at the University of Michigan, assigned to the Institute of Public Administration, University of the Philippines.

Edwin W. Webber resigned his position as instructor of social sciences at Gulf Park College, Gulfport, Mississippi, to accept a research fellowship and to complete work for the Ph.D. degree at Tulane University.

Henry Wells, recently of Yale University, has been appointed visiting professor and research associate, School of Public Administration, University of Puerto Rico, for the academic year 1953-54.

Wilhelm Wengler, of the Free University of Berlin, was a visiting professor at Columbia University on a Ford Foundation grant during the spring session.

Ferdinand Westphalen, of the University of Vienna, was a visiting professor at Duke University during the spring term.

John P. Wheeler, Jr., formerly a graduate student at Florida State University and Syracuse University, has been appointed to an instructorship in the department of political science at Middlebury College.

Howard B. White, associate professor on the graduate faculty of the New School for Social Research, has received an advanced studies grant from the Ford Foundation and will be on leave of absence during the academic year 1953-54.

Allen S. Whiting, of the political science department at Northwestern University, will spend next year studying Chinese government from basic points in Formosa and Hong Kong. His research is being financed by the Ford Foundation.

Robert F. Wilcox, of the department of political science at San Diego State College, taught in the 1953 summer session at Michigan State College.

Charlotte Williams, of Middle Tennessee State College, has accepted a one-year appointment as visiting lecturer in political science at Vanderbilt University to teach courses in public law and jurisprudence.

Henry Williams has accepted a graduate research fellowship at Columbia Law School for 1953-54.

Harold Winkler has been reappointed assistant professor of political science at the University of California (Berkeley).

S. Joseph Wodka, graduate student at the University of Michigan, was a member of the teaching staff in the department of history and government at Central Michigan College of Education at Mt. Pleasant during the summer term.

Francis D. Wormuth, professor of political science at the University of Utah, will be on leave during 1953-54 on a Ford Fellowship at Yale, observing relationships between the Law School and the social sciences in Yale's experimental program.

Paul Ylvisaker, of Swarthmore College, has been appointed staff director of the Inter-University Case Program, to succeed Harold Stein. The Program's headquarters were moved on July 1, 1953, from Washington to Swarthmore where Professor Ylvisaker will divide his time during the coming academic year between the teaching of political science and the case project.

Roland Young, of Northwestern University, was a visiting professor at Columbia University during the summer session.

Harold Zink, of the Ohio State University, was a visiting professor of political science at Duke University during the spring term.

IN MEMORIAM

Emerson David Fite, professor emeritus of political science at Vassar College, died in Poughkeepsie on May 17, 1953, at the age of seventy-nine.

Professor Fite was born in Marion, Ohio, in 1874. He received the bachelor's degree from Yale in 1897, and the doctor's degree from Harvard in 1905. Before coming to Vassar in 1913, Professor Fite had held teaching positions at the Mt. Hermon School, Harvard University, and Yale. He was Vassar's first professor of political science and he remained at Vassar until his retirement in 1944.

Professor Fite was a distinguished scholar. He broke new ground with his Social and Industrial Conditions in the North during the Civil War (1910) and The Presidential Campaign of 1860 (1911). His History of the United States, published in 1916, was widely used in secondary schools in the United States and many an American schoolboy knew his "Fite." His other publications included The United States (with Archibald Freeman, 1923); A Book of Old Maps (1926); and Government by Cooperation (1932).

Professor Fite was not only a scholar; he was also an indefatigable public servant. He was elected Justice of the Peace in 1928; and from 1934 to 1943 he served the Poughkeepsie area as a member of the New York State Legislature. His outstanding achievement as Assemblyman was the Fite Civil Service Law.

Mr. Fite stimulated in his students a genuine interest in political science, particularly in the fields of international law and constitutional law. In his teaching of American government, because of his first-hand experience with politics and politicians, he was able to bring life and substance into the classroom.

He will long be remembered by his students and his colleagues as a good teacher, a gentle friend, a kindly neighbor, and a wise counselor.
—C. GORDON POST.