SAUNDERS Flying Control

BRITISH PATENT No. 502093
Overseas Patents Pending

A single device, providing a combination of RECIPROCATING and ROTARY action, which enables a main and a secondary element, such as Main Rudder Control and Elevator Trimmer, to be inter-connected, yet operated independently or simultaneously as desired, without one in any way interfering with the other. In its conception, special consideration was given to standardisation and interchangeability, rendering the system easily adaptable to any type of machine. Therefore, its adoption shows a considerable saving in design and manufacturing costs, besides providing the pilot with a dependable and easy operative control giving improved flying performance.
