Auden's Apologies for Poetry

Lucy McDiarmid

"Lucy McDiarmid is the most original and important Auden critic to appear in many years. Auden's Apologies for Poetry offers brilliant new readings of the major later works, from New Year Letter to 'The Cave of Making.' This book should mark the beginning of a new understanding of those works and a markedly higher valuing of them. It will compel a fundamental reassessment of the Auden canon."

Traces of Another Time

History and Politics in Postwar British Fiction

Margaret Scanlan

Is the historical novel the outmoded genre that some people imagine? Margaret Scanlan answers a convincing "no," as she demonstrates the relevance of historical novels by well-known figures such as Anthony Burgess, John le Carré, Graham Green, Doris Lessing, Iris Murdoch, and Paul Scott, as well as by less well established writers such as Joseph Hone and Thomas Kilroy.

"This is a guide by a very insightful reader and interesting writer to the contemporary political novel. . . .The book sounds a real note of hope about contemporary literature. The novel, Scanlan shows, is not dead, as many have said, but lively, skilled, and engaged."

Against Deconstruction

John M. Ellis

"Ellis argues with force and clarity. . . . [He] concludes that what Deconstruction provides is largely an emotional bonus—it gives its adherents a routine way to a feeling of being excitedly shocking." They get the feeling that might attend a genuine piece of original thinking, but here it can be achieved without comparable effort."

Teresa of Avila and the Rhetoric of Femininity

Alison Weber

Celebrated today as a visionary chronicler of spirituality, Teresa of Avila (1515–1582) suffered persecution by the Counter-Reformation clergy in Spain, who denounced her for her “diabolical illusions” and “dangerous propaganda.” Confronting the historical irony of Teresa’s transformation from a figure of questionable orthodoxy to a national saint, Alison Weber shows how this teacher and reformer used exceptional rhetorical skills to defend her ideas at a time when women were denied participation in theological discourse.

The Hard Facts of the Grimms’ Fairy Tales

Court and Country Politics in the Plays of Beaumont and Fletcher

Philip J. Finkelpearl

“This impressive book is the work of a seasoned scholar in the field of Renaissance drama. Finkelpearl takes an unconventional—indeed even a radical—line in his interpretation of these important dramatists, and he makes an interesting case for a new and revolutionary approach. The revisionist argument that arises out of his analysis has a broader applicability and will help historians and literary critics alike to rethink some of their assumptions about the relationship of Jacobean drama to the religious and political climate of the period.”

Changing Perspectives in Literature and the Visual Arts, 1650–1820

Murray Roston

The book relates leading English writers and literary modes to contemporary developments in architecture, painting, and sculpture, exploring by a close reading of the texts and the artistic works the insights such comparison offers. Included are chapters on Milton, Dryden's heroic plays, Pope, the emergence of the novel, the concept of the sublime, Blake, Austen, and Romantic poetry.

"This book is wide-ranging, always incisive and frequently brilliant. The sequence of essays works together very effectively to demonstrate that the comparative study of the arts, done as well as it is here, is a powerful contextualizing and heuristic tool for grappling with problems in either medium."

Renaissance Perspectives in Literature and the Visual Arts

Murray Roston

"Sweeping broadly through two centuries of art and literature, Roston has clarified and 'reified' distinctions, comparisons, and theories in useful ways, and has produced what I believe will be one of the basic books in its field. A reader finds substance here, and a stimulation that should materially advance the current discussion."

The Suasive Art of David Hume

M. A. Box

Recognized in his day as a man of letters equaling Rousseau and Voltaire in France and rivaling Samuel Johnson, David Hume passed from favor in the Victorian age. Scholars now tend to focus on his thought rather than his writing. To round out our understanding of Hume, M. A. Box in this book charts the interrelated development of Hume's literary ambitions, theories of style, and compositional practice from his Treatise in 1739 through the Enquiries. In so doing, Box makes the case for Hume's career-long concern with the presentational modes of reaching an audience for his philosophical writings.

Exemplum

The Rhetoric of Example in Early Modern France and Italy

John D. Lyons

Examples, crucial links between discourse and society's view of reality, have until now been largely neglected in literary criticism. In the first book-length study of the rhetoric of example, John Lyons situates this figure by comparing it with more frequently studied tropes such as metaphor and synecdoche, discusses meanings of the terms example and exemplum, and proposes a set of descriptive concepts for the study of example in early modern literature.

Verbal Dueling in Heroic Narrative

The Homeric and Old English Traditions

Ward Parks

This work is a rare cross-cultural study of one of the most universal dialogic genres: heroic flyting, or the verbal duel in which the heroes, prior to physical combat, make boastful claims that must be backed up through action in the arena of public contesting. In presenting the verbal duel as a literary expression of the contest, Ward Parks shows how flyting interfaces words and physical action. He explores the place of flyting in the patterning of culture, both Eastern and Western, including Homeric and Old English martial narratives.

The Smile of Truth

The French Satirical Eulogy and Its Antecedents

Annette H. Tomarken

In this book Annette Tomarken reconstructs the history of the classical satirical eulogy as it was revived, expanded, and finally adapted to new purposes in Renaissance literature. Tracing the development of this type of paradox from its classic roots through the Neo-Latin, Italian, and French mock encomia, Tomarken examines its various forms in the Renaissance.

"Exercising good control over a broad range of sources, Annette Tomarken presents much new material which has not been discussed before from this perspective. Her analysis of individual works often includes acute general observations, and the subjects covered are extremely varied and entertaining. The next time I read a Renaissance comedy in which someone praises baldness or fleas, I shall have a context in which to put it."

The Discipline of Subjectivity

An Essay on Montaigne

Ermanno Bencivenga

Through an interpretation of Montaigne's philosophical vision as expressed in his Essays, Ermanno Bencivenga contributes to the current debate about the "death of the subject" by developing a view of the self as a project of continuous construction rather than the source and foundation of knowledge. Montaigne makes for a productive case study in this regard: he declares that he himself is the matter of his book, and that nothing but the constitution of his own self is his business.

"Bencivenga's use of Montaigne makes his discussion of Subjectivity distinctive. By bringing Montaigne to bear on the question of self-knowledge and by further stimulating an already growing interest in Montaigne, Bencivenga has produced a significant book."

Worlds within Worlds

The Novels of Ivan Turgenev

Jane T. Costlow

Jane Costlow accounts for both the historicity and aesthetic elegance of Turgenev's realist novels in close readings of Rudin, A Nest of Gentry, On the Eve, and Fathers and Children, all written between 1855 and 1861. Each essay focuses on a particular aspect of Turgenev's art as it relates to his human and aesthetic concerns. This study challenges traditional views of Turgenev as an objective recorder of his times, suggesting that the engaging qualities of his novels lie less in their historicity than in the lyricism and aesthetic consciousness with which he shaped his narratives.

Autobiographical Statements in Twentieth-Century Russian Literature

Edited by Jane Gary Harris

The fifteen essays in this volume explore the extraordinary range and diversity of the autobiographical mode in twentieth-century Russian literature from various critical perspectives. The introduction focuses on the central issues and key problems of current autobiographical theory and practice in both the West and in the Soviet Union, while each essay treats an aspect of auto-biographical praxis in the context of an individual author's work and often in dialogue with another of the included writers.

Extravagant Narratives

Closure and Dynamics in the Epistolary Form

Elizabeth J. MacArthur

Challenging the view of epistolary narrative as a faulty precursor to the nineteenth-century realist novel, Elizabeth MacArthur argues that the openness and flexibility that characterize correspondences, both real and fictional, reflect the preoccupations of the late seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Her readings of the Lettres portugaises, Mme du Deffand's correspondence with Horace Walpole, and Rousseau's La Nouvelle Héloïse propose an alternative to closure-oriented theories of narrative as they uncover an interplay between two forces: a tendency towards closure and meaning (metaphor) and a tendency towards openness and desire (metonymy).

The Confucian's Progress

Autobiographical Writings in Traditional China

Pei-yi Wu

Challenging the widely held belief that autobiography is a unique product of the West, Pei-yi Wu demonstrates that writing about the self did thrive in one non-Western civilization. The pages of this first full-length treatment of Chinese autobiography teem with fascinating individuals. Affording the reader a view of some never before examined aspects of the Chinese psyche, The Confucian's Progress is also an accessible introduction to Chinese history and literature.

"Pei-yi Wu reflects considerable light on the ways of European and American autobiography while still attending strictly to Chinese works. His book will be a very exciting one to students of autobiography of whatever nation, period, or formal variety."

Travels of a Genre

The Modern Novel and Ideology

Mary N. Layoun

If the modern Western novel is linked to the rise of a literate bourgeoisie with particular social values and narrative expectations, to what extent can that history of the novel be anticipated in non-Western contexts? In this bold, insightful work Mary Layoun investigates the development of literary practice in the Greek, Arabic, and Japanese cultures, which initially considered the novel a foreign genre, a cultural accoutrement of "Western" influence.

Offering a textual and contextual analysis of six novels representing early twentieth-century and contemporary literary fiction in these cultures, Layoun illuminates the networks of power in which genre migration and its interpretations have been implicated. She also examines the social and cultural practice of constructing and maintaining narratives, not only within books but outside of them as well.

CHICANO NARRATIVE

The Dialectics of Difference

Ramón Saldívar

New in The Wisconsin Project on American Writers

Frank Lentricchia, General Editor

"Chicano Narrative is both a call for a new, revisionist moment in the criticism of American literature and a representation of that moment. In its shrewd and always courteous critique of the exclusionary practices of American literary history and criticism, it will provoke debate, enlighten a generation of scholars, and provide additional groundwork for the brilliant advance in Chicano literary-critical scholarship that is now in train in the United States."

THE IDEA OF AUTHORSHIP IN AMERICA

Democratic Poetics from Franklin to Melville

Kenneth Dauber

A brilliant analysis of American writing from its beginnings to the Civil War, The Idea of Authorship in America is a classic study of a classic period. In studies of Franklin, Brockden Brown, Cooper, Poe, Hawthorne, and Melville, Dauber follows the relation of the writer to culture from exemplar to representative to antagonist to silent witness. Refreshing and original, this is perhaps the first book of criticism to describe democracy in American literature not as a theme or a style or even an influence, but as a working principle.

THE CRITICAL ROMANCE The Critic as Reader, Writer, Hero Jean-Pierre Mileur

Mileur asserts that "the literary tradition, the great tradition of the Romantics, is now being carried on by criticism," and that modern criticism "is a late Romantic literary genre, a distinctive form of the romance." By collapsing the boundaries between the literary and the literary/critical traditions, Mileur embarks on a thought-provoking analysis of literary criticism.

Masking and Unmasking the Female Mind

Disguising Romances in Feminine Fiction, 1713-1799

By Mary Anne Schofield

The author demonstrates that in eighteenth-century women's writing the two strands of romance and novel are more closely woven together than in the work of male novelists such as Richardson and Fielding. Through the use of disguise, minor novelists transformed the romance genre into a document of female assertion of the heroine and the author.

Old Southwest Humor from the St. Louis Reveille, 1844-1850

EDITED WITH AN INTRODUCTION
BY FRITZ OEHLSCHLAEGER

The St. Louis Reveille was second in importance only to New York's Spirit of the Times as an outlet for the unique genre of frontier writing known as the humor of the Old Southwest. The sixty-five stories collected here depict the rich panorama of frontier life: from hunting to practical joking to riverboating and military life, from politics to theater to the outrageous antics and tales of the ring-tailed roarers.

Necessary Lives Biographical Reflections

B. L. REID

"B. L. Reid's Necessary Lives abundantly manifests the virtues of style and substance that the author has demonstrated time and again. . . . Here he joins criticism to the practical consideration of biography and autobiography as modes of writing and means of reliving life in its myriad forms.

"Professor Reid is a master of sustained argument, of succinct and pointed summary, of the droll aside and the darting insight. This is a collection of wise and winning essays for anyone who appreciates literature and is engaged by literature's relation to the life of its makers."—George Core, Editor, The Sewanee Review
192 pages, $22.95

Milton, the Bible, and Misogyny

PHILIP J. GALLAGHER
EDITED BY EUGENE R. CUNNAR
AND GAIL L. MORTIMER

"It is absolutely the most detailed examination I know of biblical cruces in examining Milton's theodicy—his major concern with the fall and with regeneration of man. It is the most informed study I know which argues against Milton as misogynist."—Arthur F. Kinney.

Dickens, Manzoni, Zola, and James

The Impossible Romance

RUTH NEWTON AND
NAOMI LEBOWITZ

Ruth Newton and Naomi Lebowitz argue that in a critical atmosphere thoroughly secularized, there is a special urgency to recover the rich spiritual passion in the work of Dickens, Manzoni, Zola, and James, maintaining that if their spiritual convictions are read seriously, our sense of literary genealogy will be altered.

Socialism and the Literary Artistry of William Morris

EDITED BY FLORENCE S. BOOS
AND CAROLE G. SILVER

William Morris was not only a major Victorian designer, translator, and poet, but also the author of some of his century's most varied and innovative political and utopian literature. Representing a spectrum of critical approaches and topics, the essays collected here explore the interconnections between Morris's political thought and his later writings. 168 pages, illustrations, $25.00

Melancholy and the Secular Mind in Spanish Golden Age Literature

TERESA SCOTT SOUFAS

Soufas artfully illuminates the complex responses of Spanish Golden Age authors to major shifts in European intellectual outlook during the late sixteenth and early seventeenth century. 208 pages, $25.00

Reconstructing the Rhythm of Beowulf

ROBERT PAYSON CREED

This is the most thorough study of the prosody of Beowulf ever undertaken. It questions every assumption every editor and metrist has ever made about the poem and builds a prosody of Beowulf that is both well-founded and complete. 264 pages, charts, tables, illustrations, $42.50

Middle English Debate Poetry and the Aesthetics of Irresolution

THOMAS L. REED, JR.

Treating the Latin, Continental vernacular, and early English traditions that lie behind poems such as The Owl and the Nightingale and The Parlement of Foules, Reed offers the first full and unified exploration of the relationship between these texts and the academic, legal, and parliamentary contexts to which they clearly responded. 488 pages, $43.00

Borges and His Successors

The Borgesian Impact on Literature and the Arts

EDITED BY EDNA AIZENBERG

In the first book devoted to the impact made by Borges on the contemporary aesthetic imagination, Aizenberg brings together specially commissioned essays from international scholars in a variety of disciplines to provide a wide-ranging assessment of Borges's influence on the fiction, literary theory, and arts of our time. 320 pages, $30.00

The Argentine Generation of 1880

Ideology and Cultural Texts

DAVID WILLIAM FOSTER

By exploring the works of the Argentine Generation of 1880 from a specifically ideological point of view, Foster shows how the works reflect the values and beliefs that contributed to the society's formation of its guiding ideologies. 216 pages, $26.00

The Topical Notebooks of Ralph Waldo Emerson, Volume I

EDITED BY SUSAN SUTTON SMITH; RALPH H. ORTH, CHIEF EDITOR

Published here for the first time are seven of Emerson's topical notebooks, which served as a source for his lectures, essays, and books of the 1850's, 1860's, and 1870's. Concerned primarily with nature, art, philosophy, American culture, and his contemporaries, the notebooks in this first of a three-volume edition afford fascinating insight into the art and philosophy of one of America's foremost thinkers. 328 pages, illustrations, $37.50

Emerson's Modernity and the Example of Goethe

GUSTAAF VAN CROMPHOUT

Drawing upon the major works and private writings of these two men of letters, Van Cromphout traces their relationship with thoroughness and vigor, giving us new perspectives on the intellectual and literary achievements of both men. 168 pages, $22.50

William Faulkner, Life Glimpses

By Louis Daniel Brodsky

"Louis Brodsky's new book on Faulkner is fascinating. . . . the glimpses afforded the reader are well chosen, adroitly angled, and reveal a great deal about Faulkner as a man and artist."

—Cleanth Brooks

During thirty years of collecting, Brodsky has acquired some of the most important source materials on Faulkner's life and work. In William Faulkner, Life Glimpses, he mines this storehouse of previously unpublished material, drawing from interviews, letters, speeches, movie scripts, and notes.

Faulkner's Marginal Couple

Invisible, Outlaw, and Unspeakable Communities

By John N. Duvall

This innovative study challenges the traditional readings of Faulkner's work, specifically focusing on his treatment of the gender roles of his characters. Drawing on semiotics, feminism, and Marxism, Faulkner's Marginal Couple demonstrates that Faulkner's fiction traces the full androgynous spectrum of the human condition.

Tense and Narrativity

From Medieval Performance to Modern Fiction

By Suzanne Fleischman

The study of narrative marks the convergence of a number of disciplines, including linguistics, literary theory, cognitive psychology, ethnomethodology, and historiography. Fleischman sees linguistics as laying the foundation for all narratological study, since it offers insight into how narratives are constructed in their most primary context: everyday speech.

THE CRITICAL TRADITION: Classic Texts and Contemporary Trends

David H. Richter, Queens College of C.U.N.Y.

1989/cloth/1488 pages

"The Critical Tradition is the fullest one-volume collection of major texts in literary theory and criticism. Richter manages to include not only all of the works usually treated in a historical survey but more than three-score representative essays of contemporary criticism and theory. Richter's introductions are judicious, informed, and incisive, inviting the beginner into a serious engagement with even the most difficult selections while avoiding the simplistic categories that mar too many anthologies."

—Wayne C. Booth, The University of Chicago

"I admire the intellectual command and cogent, clear writing style of the introductions and value the fine, thoughtful selection of texts."

—William Cain, Wellesley College

THE RHETORICAL TRADITION: Readings From Classical Times to the Present

Patricia Bizzell, College of the Holy Cross

Bruce Herzberg, Bentley College

Speaking of Writing

Selected Hopwood Lectures

Edited and with an Introduction by
Nicholas Delbanco

This collection includes essays by some of the nation's finest writers, from Louise Bogan's meditation on the popular and unpopular in poetry, to Saul Bellow's assessment of the future of fiction, to Francine du Plessix Gray's reflections on women and Russian literature. Spanning five decades of writing, the essays address topics both timely and timeless in nature, and investigate both the process and the product of writing.

Inside Poetry Out

An Introduction to Poetry

Centers discussion and explications on five complete poems to develop skills of poetic analysis.

John O. Hayden

PROFESSOR
JOHN O. HAYDEN
University of California

A highly original approach: rather than introducing bits and pieces of disparate works as he goes along, the author immerses the student in just five poems, all major works, which are explicated in their entirety. Thus, Inside Poetry Out has a unity and focus lacking in all poetry texts.

“A poem asks immediately for attention. It demands that you spend some time and thought if you wish to appreciate it fully. And intelligent reading and discussion of poetry require some knowledge of how it works, what to expect, and what terms to use in talking about it.

“To provide such knowledge is what this book is all about.”

Nothing But the Night

A Novel by John Williams

First published in 1948, Nothing But the Night marked the auspicious beginning of the career of the author of Butcher's Crossing, Stoner, and Augustus, for which he won the National Book Award in 1973.

"[John Williams'] first undertaking is carried out with a success that compels admiration. Mr. Williams has an uncommonly fine ear and uncommonly sensitive perceptions. The atmosphere quivers as he discloses the weights of fear and the horror of spiritual isolation."

John Gould Fletcher and Southern Modernism

by Lucas Carpenter

In this fascinating study, the author argues that the prevailing tendency to view Fletcher as an Imagist turned Fugitive-Agrarian pigeonholes the poet too neatly, obscuring the complexity and continuity that characterize his poetry.

John Gould Fletcher and Southern Modernism advances Fletcher as the first identifiable figure of the Southern literary renaissance and as perhaps the most representative poet of his generation.

Microfiche Collections for the Serious Scholar

Shakespeariana

UMI's Shakespeariana microfiche collection is a compilation of four centuries of documents on William Shakespeare and his work. Uniquely tailored to meet the needs of the scholar, it comprises the largest body of material ever assembled into a single published collection, totaling over one million pages, organized into thirty carefully structured units. Included is research material on Shakespearian literature and scholarship as well as the institutions and outside influences which shaped the Elizabethan world view.

The thirty units of Shakespeariana cover a variety of aspects and include facts and fictions about William Shakespeare; institutions, trade, commerce and educational practices of the day; early texts of poems and sonnets; literature which influenced Shakespeare's writing; Shakespearian theater; criticism; biographical data; and Shakespeare's editors.

Herbert Lottman, the author of the definitive biography of Albert Camus, has now written a fresh and compelling portrait of the first great modern novelist. In this vivid account, Lottman has drawn on many previously untapped resources—unexpurgated correspondence, early drafts of manuscripts, and Flaubert's own notes on his writing—to demolish much of the speculation and myth surrounding Flaubert's erotic and literary idiosyncrasies.

"Eminently readable and richly informative ... Amorous adventures, travels, financial crises, literary tribulations—all are unveiled skillfully, providing a portrait that will satisfy anyone interested in the life of this famous 19th-century French writer."

The increasing internationalization of cultural and scientific exchange within the linguistic sciences and the important role played by the lexicon as a component in language modelling have led to a significant increase in the interest in lexicography over the last twenty years. Also contributing to this revival has been the "rediscovery" of vocabulary in foreign-language teaching and the role of computers in lexicographical applications. Together with this increasing interest in lexicography, the last two decades have witnessed the development of dictionary research as a discipline in its own right. This discipline investigates all types of language-related reference works, in particular their forms and structures, their critique and history, and thus their position in society.

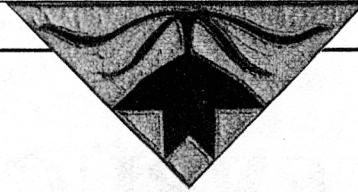

We are pleased to announce the publication of this major new reference work. Scheduled in three volumes, 248 contributors, collaborating to produce 349 articles in German, English, and French, present for the first time a comprehensive study on all the various aspects of lexicography and dictionary research.

Introducing a new tradition in literature

Literature: Reading, Reacting, Writing

Laurie G. Kirszner, Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science
Stephen R. Mandell, Drexel University

This fall, Holt, Rinehart and Winston will create a new tradition in literature with an anthology like no other. In Kirszner and Mandell's Literature: Reading, Reacting, Writing, traditional works are interwoven with writings from a broad range of women, minority, non-Western, and contemporary authors.

The rich tapestry of selections is textured with unusual coverage of the reading/writing connection. Probing questions, checklists, and writing suggestions invite students to react to what they read. Unique casebooks by three renowned contemporary authors provide critical and biographical material on a short story, a collection of poems, and a play.

Literature: Reading, Reacting, Writing encourages students to explore diverse subjects, styles, and perspectives, and to take an active role in creating a new literary tradition. ISBN 0-03-013768-3 Hardcover 1800 pp.
