

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

JOHN BRAITHWAITE is a Research Criminologist at the Australian Institute of Criminology. He holds a Ph.D. in Sociology from the University of Queensland. His recent books are Inequality, Crime and Public Policy (1979), Prisons, Education and Work (1980), and Corporate Crime in the Pharmaceutical Industry (1982).

MAUREEN E. CAIN is a Visiting Fellow at the Institute of Criminology, Cambridge. She received a Ph.D. in 1969 from the London School of Economics, and has taught and conducted research at Brunel University and the London School of Economics. Her books and articles have focused primarily on the police, Marxism, and law. She edits the International Journal of Sociology of Law.

MARK A. CHESLER is an Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Michigan and Project Director of the Center for Research on Social Organization. He has conducted research on various aspects of race relations and school desegregation, and on the uses of social science in efforts toward community change.

THOMAS EPPERLEIN is Assistant Director of the Statistical Analysis Center of the Arizona Department of Public Safety. He is currently studying the impact of drinking-age legislation on traffic fatalities.

DEBRA KALMUSS is a post-doctoral fellow in the Department of Social Relations of Johns Hopkins University. She received her Ph.D. in Sociology from the University of Michigan and has done research in the areas of family and gender roles, wife abuse, and the interaction of social science and public policy.

KALMAN KULCSAR is Professor of Sociology of Law at Eötvös Lorand University, Director of the Institute of Sociology of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences, and Chairperson of the Section for Economic and Legal Sciences of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences. He has published nine books and approximately 150 articles dealing with the effectiveness of legal regulation, legal problems of development, and the history of legal thought.

RICHARD McCLEARY is Associate Professor of Criminal Justice and Director of the Program in Applied Statistics at Arizona State University. He has written several articles and books on time-series analysis including (with Richard A. Hay, Jr.) Applied Time Series Analysis for the Social Sciences (1980).

BETTY RANKIN-WIDGEON received the J.D. degree from the University of Michigan in 1980 and is currently working as a legal consultant in the area of sex equity in schools.

H. LAURENCE ROSS is Professor of Sociology and Adjunct Professor of Law at the State University of New York at Buffalo. He is the author of many articles concerning the deterrent effect of the criminal law concerning drinking and driving. He has integrated this work into a book, Deterring the Drinking Driver, forthcoming in 1982.

JOSEPH A. SANDERS works with APTECH: Imaging, Inc. in California.

LOUISE I. SHELLEY is an Associate Professor at the School of Justice of American University. She has published articles on Soviet crime and criminology, is the author of Crime and Modernization: The Impact of Industrialization and Urbanization on Crime (1981), and is the editor of Readings in Comparative Criminology (1981).

ROBERT V. STOVER is Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of Colorado at Boulder. His previous work has focused on criminal justice and theories of legal compliance.

ABOUT THE EDITORIAL TRANSITION

Richard Lempert becomes Editor of the Review beginning with Volume 17. All new manuscripts and editorial correspondence should be sent directly to him at the address listed on the inside front cover. The files of all manuscripts still under consideration have been transmitted to the new editor. Reviewers of current manuscripts, even though solicited by the present editor, should send their evaluations directly to Ann Arbor.

JBG