THE NEW LATIN AMERICAN CINEMA

A Continental Project

By Zuzana M. Pick

Pick explores the filmmakers who, nearly three decades ago, set out to use film as an instrument of social awareness and change. Investigating the impressive body of work since produced by New Cinema, the author maps out six areas of inquiry—history, authorship, gender, popular cinema, ethnicity, and exile.

ISBN 0-292-76545-2, $37.50 cloth

SOLDIERS IN A NARROW LAND

THE PINOCHET REGIME IN CHILE

"An accurate and objective account of the political events in Chile. . . . An important document for those who want to know what happened, and for those who should not forget."

—Isabel Allende

£23.50 cloth

Claudio Véliz

THE NEW WORLD OF THE GOTHIC FOX

CULTURE AND ECONOMY IN ENGLISH AND SPANISH AMERICA

Adopting the provocative metaphor of foxes and hedgehogs that Isaiah Berlin used to describe opposite types of thinkers, Véliz provides an original and lively approach to understanding the development of English and Spanish America.

The Rise of Protestant Evangelism in Ecuador, 1895-1990

Alvin M. Goffin

"Sheds new light on those 3 R's of Ecuador's historical development and experience: race, regionalism, and religion."—Frank MacDonald Spindler, George Mason University

• Tracing the growing influence of foreign-based Protestant fundamentalist groups in Ecuador, Goffin acknowledges some positive aspects of their influence but argues that they have contributed to the dissolution of indigenous cultures, exploited the natural environment, and failed to promote social justice or offer relief for long-standing conditions of poverty.

216 pp. 15 b&w photos, maps, notes, bibliog., index. Cloth, $29.95

Voices of Migrants: Rural-Urban Migration in Costa Rica

Paul Kutsche

"Examining migration through life histories puts flesh on analytical bones. . . . Kutsche is an astute interviewer with a real capacity to establish rapport with his informants. . . . Nothing like this book exists in the Latin American migration literature."

—Leigh Binford, University of Connecticut

• These fourteen life histories emphasize the psychic costs of migration and reveal the personal characteristics that correlate with success or failure in moving from the country to the city. Like Oscar Lewis's Children of Sanchez, this book puts a face on the phenomenon of migration.

264 pp. Bibliog., maps, glossary, index. Cloth, $39.95 Paper, $19.95

Transnational Capitalism and Hydropolitics in Argentina: The Yacretá High Dam

Gustavo Lins Ribeiro

Foreword by Eric R. Wolf

"A powerful critique of mainstream understandings of 'development.'"—Richard Tardanico, Florida International University

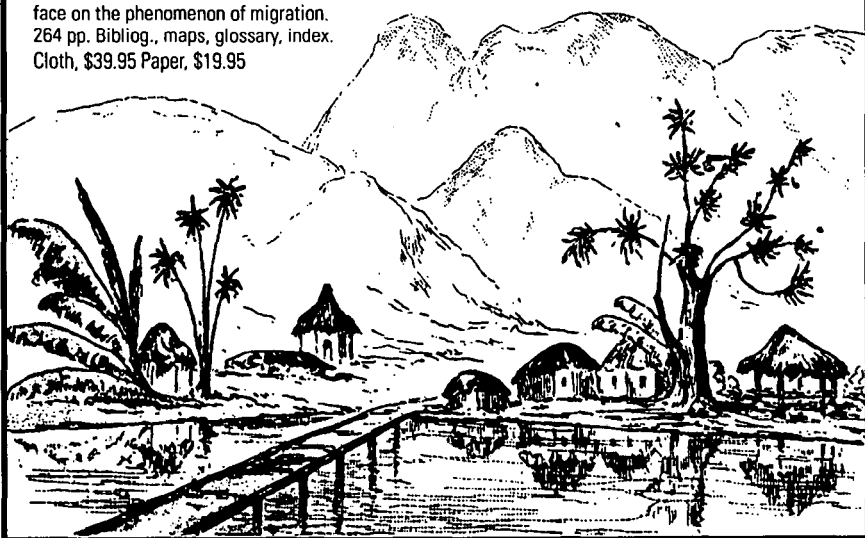

• In this first anthropological work to study a large-scale infrastructure project from within, Ribeiro analyzes the power groups that competed for access to and control of the dam, and shows how the dam modified the social and physical landscape. He links development projects more closely to the needs of national and international elites than to the local populations and concludes that the prevailing model of development must change.

in the Countryside

by Jim Handy

"Likely to become the standard treatment of Guatemala's 1952–54 land reform and of the political and social conflict that surrounded it. . . . Essential to understanding the violence that has rent that country for the past forty years."—David McCreery, Georgia State University

Revolution in the Countryside examines the rural poor, both Maya and Ladino, as key players who had a decisive impact on the nature of change in Guatemala. He looks at the ways in which ethnic and class relations affected government policy and identifies the conflict generated in the countryside by new economic and social policies.
