

Leaders Of Modern Anthropology

Charles Wagley, General Editor

Adventurous explorers in an unknown world of strange places, strange world views, and strange customs, the leaders of modern anthropology gave us new perspectives on every kind of man and way of living.

Now for the first time, a series of books is to be devoted to the careers and writings of this extraordinary group of scholars. Each book will be approximately 200 pages in length, and will be published in an inexpensive paperback edition for classroom use as well as in regular cloth binding. Each will contain: a lengthy biographical essay and critical appraisal of the subject's work by a distinguished contemporary scholar and a selection of excerpts from the subject's writings.

The series of volumes will provide both a comprehensive exposition of the fundamental ideas of modern anthropology and a unique look at what the anthropologist's work consists of, by introducing the absorbing personalities, diverse experiences, and illuminating ideas of the men and women who laid the foundations for the modern science of man.
