

The Danger of Music and Other Anti-Utopian Essays

RICHARD TARUSKIN

The Danger of Music gathers some two decades of Taruskin's writing on the arts and politics, ranging in approach from occasional pieces for major newspapers such as the New York Times to full-scale critical essays for leading intellectual journals.

On Russian Music

RICHARD TARUSKIN

This volume gathers thirty-six essays on composers ranging from Bortnyansky in the eighteenth century to Tarnopolsky in the twenty-first, as well as all of the famous names in between. Some of these pieces, like the ones on Chaikovsky's alleged suicide and on the interpretation of Shostakovich's legacy, have won fame in their own right as decisive contributions to some of the most significant debates in contemporary musicology.

Brecht at the Opera

JOY H. CALICO

"A remarkably compelling and exciting book. It not only explains why Brecht's relationship to opera is so vexed, it complicates the formulaic terms by which we have come to understand that vexation—extending, deepening, and refining our sense of the place of music in Brecht's projects as well as Brecht's place in the history of opera."

—David J. Levin, author of Unsettling Opera

Struggling to Define a Nation

American Music and the Twentieth Century

CHARLES HIROSHI GARRETT

"Garrett's knowledge of his subject is deep and refreshingly informative.... There is no question that this will be a work of singular importance to our understanding of issues of nationality, ethnicity, and race as embedded fabrics in American music."

Beautiful Monsters

Imagining the Classic in Musical Media

MICHAEL LONG

Beautiful Monsters explores the ways in which "classical" music made its way into late twentieth-century American mainstream culture—in pop songs, movie scores, and print media. Beginning in the 1960s, Long's entertaining and illuminating book surveys a complex cultural field and draws connections between "classical music" and selected "monster hits" of popular music.

Editors

W. Dean Sutcliffe, University of Auckland, New Zealand
Nicholas Mathew, University of California, Berkeley, USA

Eighteenth-century Music addresses a conspicuous gap in its field and serves as a prestigious forum for all eighteenth-century music research. The aims of this dedicated journal are to draw together disparate areas of research, challenge accepted historical assumptions and adopt a broad and interdisciplinary approach which will serve the whole eighteenth-century music community.

Editor-In-Chief

Calum MacDonald, Gloucestershire, UK

Tempo is the premier English-language journal devoted to 20th-century and contemporary concert music. Literate and scholarly articles, often illustrated with music examples, explore many aspects of the work of composers throughout the world. Written in an accessible style, approaches range from the narrative to the strictly analytical.

Instructions for Contributors

Submissions should be sent by email attachment in the first instance to the editor, Dr Charles Wilson, at <tcm@cardiff.ac.uk>, or by post to Dr Charles Wilson, twentieth-century music, Cardiff School of Music, Cardiff University, Corbett Road, Cardiff, CF10 3EB, UK. The preferred software (on PC or Macintosh platforms) is Microsoft Word; authors proposing to use different software are asked to consult with the editor, as are authors unable to set music examples themselves. Submitted files should include a cover sheet giving the author's name, postal address, telephone number, fax number (if available), and email address. To ensure anonymity during the refereeing process, the article itself should not display the name of the author. If articles are accepted for publication, authors will be asked to submit a final version both electronically and in hard copy. The publisher reserves the right to typeset any article by conventional means if the author's file proves unusable. Upon acceptance of a submission, the author will be asked to assign copyright (on certain conditions) to Cambridge University Press.

Articles should normally be between 6,000 and 9,000 words in length (main text); authors proposing longer or shorter submissions should seek the advice of the editor.

Unsolicited articles submitted by post cannot be returned unless a stamped envelope addressed to the author is also enclosed.

Submissions will be referred to two independent assessors, who may or may not be members of the Editorial Board.

Submissions are considered on the understanding that they have not been previously, and are not currently being, considered for publication elsewhere.

Authors will normally be notified within three months as to whether a submission has been accepted for publication.

Contributors are responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce any material for which they do not hold copyright and for ensuring that the appropriate acknowledgements are included in their typescript.

See <journals.cambridge.org/tcm> for an extended version of the instructions for contributors.
